Exon, Whelan Easy Winners

. . . Other Posts To GOP

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Riding a high tide of statewide voter support, Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday sailed to an impressive re-election victory.

The wave of Exon sentiment, which was handing him about 60% of the vote in a three-candidate scrap, carried to the statehouse with him Gerald Whelan, the first Democrat to be elected lieutenant governor since 1964.

Nebraskans this year selected their governor and lieutenant governor as a partisan team for the first time in history.

But other Democratic officeseekers fell to their Republican opponents in contests for four other major statehouse positions.

Douglas A Winner

In the key battle, Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas grabbed a quick lead over former Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison in the sharply contested battle for attorney general, and held it.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann and Auditor Ray. A. C. Johnson, both Republicans, headed toward their second four-year terms

And. Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, also a Republican, won his bid to change statehouse jobs for the second time. A former secretary of state for 18 years, Marsh will turn in the lieutenant governor's duties for those of state treasurer next January.

Left in Exon's wake in the one-sided gubernatorial showdown were Republican nominee Richard Marvel of Hastings and independent petition candidate Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Senate Possibility

For Exon, 53, the triumph renewed his lease on the governor's mansion for four years and shot him into position to seek a U.S. Senate seat as an incumbent governor, either in 1976 or 1978.

If the governor were to go for Roman Hruska's Senate post in 1976, and win it, Whelan, 49, a Hastings attorney, would automatically inherit the governorship for the final two years of Exon's new term.

Tuesday's victory assured the governor's wife, Pat, of a happy 53rd birthday celebration Wednesday.

Return To Unicam

Marvel, 56, a political science professor at Nebraska Wesleyan University, and Chambers, 37, a black barber, will return to their seats in the Legislature. Both are at the mid-point of four-year terms.

In an election day interview on KHAS-TV in Hastings prior to the compilation of Tuesday's vote, Marvel said he would "fight," if necessary, to win legislative re-election as chairman of the Appropriations Committee and see to it that "the Exon administration will have to answer for every action it takes in the next two or four years."

Marvel and his running mate, Anne Batchelder, the 54-year-old former Republican national committeewoman from Omaha, peppered Exon in the final weeks of the campaign with a series of allegations of favoritism in state government leases and contracts.

Chambers' Theme Justice

Chambers ran alone — filing his petitions prior to the effective date of the new law requiring team election. His campaign centered on a theme of social reform and equal justice.

Marvel was winning about one of every three votes, while Chambers' figures hovered near 8% of the total vote.

Douglas, 47, who has served as Lancaster County attorney since 1960, will assume the office which Attorney General Clarence Meyer has occupied for 14 years. Meyer decided not to seek re-election this year.

For Morrison, 69, the former three-term (1961-67) governor, now Douglas County public defender, defeat probably ends a political career which has spanned nearly three decades.

Beermann, 34, who was first elected secretary of state in 1970, defeated Catherine Dahlquist, 50, an Omaha real estate and investment manager.

Larsen Turned Back

Johnson, 51, who has held the auditor's post since 1971, turned back 51-year-old Omaha construction steward Richard Larsen, who served one term as state treasurer from 1959 to 1961.

Marsh, 50, who has been lieutenant governor since 1971, kayoed Kurt Rasmussen, 35, an Omaha salesman.

Two Republicans also led in district voting for seats on the Public Service Commission.

Apparently headed toward election were incumbent Eric Rasmussen, 48, a former state senator from Fairmont who was first elected to the commission in 1968, and Jack Romans, 60, a former state senator from Ord.

Smith, Ziebarth In Tight Contest

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Bucking the national trend, incumbent Republican Congressmen Charles Thone and John McCollister swept toward re-election to third terms early Wednesday.

But western and central Nebraska's vast Third District battle remained nip and tuck, with Democrats still clinging to the hope of wihning their first Nebraska congressional contest in a decade.

If Wayne Ziebarth, 53, the Wilcox farmer and former state senator, prevails, it will mark the first Democratic House triumph since 1964 and the first in western Nebraska since 1958.

If Mrs Haven Smith, 63, the Chappell homemaker and longtime American Farm Bureau Federation director, wins it, she will become the first woman ever elected to the House from Nebraska.

With nearly 60% of the precincts counted, Ziebarth led by a hair.

Margins Trimmed

For Thone and McCollister, the hard times which beset Republicans this election year appeared only to reduce the size of their 1972 victories.

Thone, 50, the Lincoln attorney who won his initial First District term in 1970, withstood the best organized, most generously financed Democratic congressional bid in state political history in the 27-county eastern Nebraska district.

Hess Dyas, 37, former Democratic state chairman, was the challenger.

Featured Walkathon

Fueled by more than $100,000 in campaign financing, he mounted a nine-month campaign, which featured Nebraska's first candidate walkathon, a 734-mile trek through every county in the district.

Thone, a conservative congressman with an occasional independent voting streak, held on to win re-election in what traditionally has been a swing district, susceptible to the national mood.

Dyas needed to win the politically moderate Lincoln vote comfortably in order to stave off Thone margins in more conservative northern counties. But the Dyas lead in Lincoln early Wednesday was too slim.

State's Smoothest

McCollister, 53, a former Douglas County commissioner, first won the Omaha-dominated Second District seat in 1970. A conservative, he has since developed into the smoothest, most polished member of the Nebraska delegation.

His Democratic opponent, Dan Lynch, 45, chairman of the Douglas County board of commissioners, depended on the Democratic voter registration advantage in Omaha to bring him the first Second District Democratic triumph since 1948.

But Omaha voters gave McCollister an early lead, and the ballgame was over.

Tuesday's results push both Thone and McCollister into position to claim U.S. Senate seats now held by Republicans Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis if the senators choose to retire in 1976 and 1978, respectively.

Either might even decide to challenge the incumbent senator at that time.

Seek Martin's Seat

Mrs. Smith and Ziebarth were battling for the Third District seat being vacated by Republican Congressman Dave Martin, who is retiring after seven House terms.

Ziebarth was best known during his only legislative term (1969-73) for his sponsorship of legislation leading to the creation of a statewide system of community colleges.

Mrs. Smith gained the general election finals by defeating seven male opponents in the May primary election.

Whereas Dyas and Lynch were more liberal alternatives to their Republican opponents, both Mrs. Smith and Ziebarth are political conservatives.

The winner will represent 61 counties in the western two-thirds of the state.

Demos Gain Big In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats parlayed Republican scandals and gnawing inflation into a landslide of off-year election victories Tuesday, strengthening their command of Congress and their grip on the nation's state houses.

In the election after Watergate surfaced into scandal, they made massive gains in the House of Representatives, both in numbers and in the ouster of Republican veterans.

Democratic challengers took away at least three Republican Senate seats and took over at least six GOP governorships, including those of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut. A Republican gained one in South Carolina.

A Democrat, Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown Jr., 36, led in his bid to become governor of California.

Rep. Hugh L. Carey, a Brooklyn congressman, was elected governor of New York, ending a 16-year Republican reign there.

While the statewide races for senator and governor featured the biggest names that rose and fell on election day, the Democratic sweep apparently went deepest in the House.

Democrats had won or led for 289 House seats, 41 more than they currently hold, with returns yet to come from races in 2 congressional districts.

President Ford conceded his Republican Party had been trounced. "Those who lose often come back to win another day," he said at the White House.

In Senate races, the victorious Democratic challengers were Colorado's Gary Hart, 36, manager of George McGovern's disastrous presidential campaign two years ago; Gov. Wendell H. Ford of Kentucky, and Richard Stone, a former secretary of state, in Florida.

In the past five mid-term elections, the party out of White House power has gained an average of four seats in the Senate in off-year elections.

Traditionally, a president's party loses congressional seats in off-year balloting. This time, Watergate and nagging economic woes were added to that pattern.

In the Senate, with 34 seats at stake and 51 needed for a majority, Democrats won 22 and had 38 holdovers for a new total of 60, while Republicans won 7 and had 28 holdovers for a new total of 35. That is a net gain of 4 Democrats with 5 races undecided.

In the House, with all 435 seats at stake and 218 needed for a majority, Democrats won 249 while Republicans won 96. That is a net gain of 33 Democrats with 88 races undecided, compared with the current lineup of 268 Democrats and 167 Republicans.

In the races for governor in 35 states, Democrats won 25 and had 9 holdovers for a new total of 34, while Republicans won 4 and had 6 holdovers for a new total of 34, while Republicans won 4 and had 6 holdovers for a new total of 10. That is a net gain of 5 Democrats with 6 races undecided.

Michigan Republican Gov. William G. Milliken won a close contest for re-election.

Senate turnovers came as Hart ousted Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo.; Ford beat Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., and Stone topped millionaire druggist Jack Eckerd for the seat vacated by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., who was indicated for bribery and conspiracy, and chose not to run.

For the Republicans, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York bucked the gubernatorial tide there, and defeated Democratic former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark to win a fourth term.

In Kansas, Sen. Robert J. Dole, a former Republican national chairman burdened by past White House ties, fended off the stiff challenge of Democratic Rep. William R. Roy.

Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, Robert Packwood of Oregon all won re-election.

In New Hampshire, Rep. Louis C. Wyman won Senate election to succeed the retiring Republican Norris Cotton.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota was reelected. So was Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, the Democratic running mate McGovern deposed in 1972. Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas won Senate election was expected. Former astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. swept to Senate election in Ohio after 10 years of trying. Sen. Birch Bayh won over Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar in Indiana.

Other Democratic incumbents who won new terms included Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, Alan Cranston of California, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Another Democratic victor was Rep. John C. Culver of Iowa, who won the seat from which Democratic Harold E. Hughes is retiring.

State School Aid Apparently Nixed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska voters opposed the historic state aid to education bill in incomplete returns Tuesday night.

Ballots counted outside Lincoln and Omaha initially tended to shift the balance toward approval of the bill, LB772, but that trend reversed later on.

Returns in Douglas County showed heavy opposition to LB772, and of more than 44,000 ballots cast in Lancaster County, the final tally showed opposition to the bill by a margin of about 4,000 votes.

A voter decision to reject LB772 would sustain Gov. J. James Exon's veto of the bill, which passed by the minimum 30-vote override in the 1974 Legislature. Exon has vetoed four similar state school aid bills in as many years, on grounds that a shift in taxation would hurt people with the least ability to pay, such as renters, middle-income people and the elderly.

Drive Organized

State Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell organized a petition drive to force the bill to a vote of the people.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner, sponsor of LB772, and the State Department of Education then mounted a statewide information drive to explain the bill. LB772 represented 11 years of legislative work by Warner to shift to the state more of the burden to operate public schools.

A lawsuit claiming LB772 was a state budget bill and thus not constitutionally eligible for popular vote was rejected by the Lancaster County District Court, a decision upheld by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

A defeat of LB772 would leave in effect the current state school aid bill, passed in 1967, providing $55 million annually in state revenues to local schools.

A defeat of LB772 would also mean loss of a $12 million increase for special education programs under LB403. The boost from $8 million currently to $20 million was tied to provisions of LB772.

Informed of the apparent rejection of LB772, Warner said early Wednesday morning he will not introduce comprehensive school finance legislation in the 1975 Unicameral.

"Primarily, I want to give the opponents to LB772 a chance to make good on their word they have a better way."

Warner said he will reintroduce a bill similar to LB831, which provides for a 5% increase in the state income tax; the revenue raised would be returned to each school district in amounts based on resident taxpayers in each district.

Warner said he considers that an "interim step to a comprehensive type of plan" such as LB772.

Nixon Marks Up Absentee Ballot In Hospital Bed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon voted Monday in his hospital room by absentee ballot, his former press secretary said Tuesday.

"As soon as he was strong enough to hold a pencil in his hand he marked up the ballot," Ronald L. Ziegler said in a statement released by his secretary.

The ballot was mailed to the Orange County registrar of voter's office. Ziegler did not say whether Nixon's wife, Pat, or daughters Tricia and Julie voted

Exon, Whelan Easy Winners

. . . Other Posts To GOP

By DON WALTON

Riding a high tide of statewide voter support, Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday sailed to an impressive re-election victory.

The wave of Exon sentiment, which was handing him about 60% of the vote in a three-candidate scrap, carried to the statehouse with him Gerald Whelan, the first Democrat to be elected lieutenant governor since 1964.

Nebraskans this year selected their governor and lieutenant governor as a partisan team for the first time in history.

But other Democratic officeseekers fell to their Republican opponents in contests for four other major statehouse positions.

Douglas A Winner

In the key battle, Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas grabbed a quick lead over former Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison in the sharply contested battle for attorney general, and held it.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann and Auditor Ray. A. C. Johnson, both Republicans, headed toward their second four-year terms.

And. Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, also a Republican, won his bid to change statehouse jobs for the second time. A former secretary of state for 18 years, Marsh will turn in the lieutenant governor's duties for those of state treasurer next January.

Left in Exon's wake in the one-sided gubernatorial showdown were Republican nominee Richard Marvel of Hastings and independent petition candidate Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Senate Possibility

For Exon, 53, the triumph renewed his lease on the governor's mansion for four years and shot him into position to seek a U.S. Senate seat as an incumbent governor, either in 1976 or 1978.

If the governor were to go for Roman Hruska's Senate post in 1976, and win it, Whelan, 49, a Hastings attorney, would automatically inherit the governorship for the final two years of Exon's new term.

Tuesday's victory assured the governor's wife, Pat, of a happy 53rd birthday celebration Wednesday.

Return To Unicam

Marvel, 56, a political science professor at Nebraska Wesleyan University, and Chambers, 37, a black barber, will return to their seats in the Legislature. Both are at the mid-point of four-year terms.

In an election day interview on KHAS-TV in Hastings prior to the compilation of Tuesday's vote, Marvel said he would "fight," if necessary, to win legislative re-election as chairman of the Appropriations Committee and see to it that "the Exon administration will have to answer for every action it takes in the next two or four years."

Marvel and his running mate, Anne Batchelder, the 54-year-old former Republican national committeewoman from Omaha, peppered Exon in the final weeks of the campaign with a series of allegations of favoritism in state government leases and contracts.

Chambers' Theme Justice

Chambers ran alone — filing his petitions prior to the effective date of the new law requiring team election. His campaign centered on a theme of social reform and equal justice.

Marvel was winning about one of every three votes, while Chambers' figures hovered near 8% of the total vote.

Douglas, 47, who has served as Lancaster County attorney since 1960, will assume the office which Attorney General Clarence Meyer has occupied for 14 years. Meyer decided not to seek re-election this year.

For Morrison, 69, the former three-term (1961-67) governor, now Douglas County public defender, defeat probably ends a political career which has spanned nearly three decades.

Beermann, 34, who was first elected secretary of state in 1970, defeated Catherine Dahlquist, 50, an Omaha real estate and investment manager.

Larsen Turned Back

Johnson, 51, who has held the auditor's post since 1971, turned back 51-year-old Omaha construction steward Richard Larsen, who served one term as state treasurer from 1959 to 1961.

Marsh, 50, who has been lieutenant governor since 1971, kayoed Kurt Rasmussen, 35, an Omaha salesman.

Two Republicans also led in district voting for seats on the Public Service Commission.

Apparently headed toward election were incumbent Eric Rasmussen, 48, a former state senator from Fairmont who was first elected to the commission in 1968, and Jack Romans, 60, a former state senator from Ord.

Smith, Ziebarth In Tight Contest

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Bucking the national trend, incumbent Republican Congressmen Charles Thone and John McCollister swept toward re-election to third terms early Wednesday.

But western and central Nebraska's vast Third District battle remained nip and tuck, with Democrats still clinging to the hope of winning their first Nebraska congressional contest in a decade.

If Wayne Ziebarth, 53, the Wilcox farmer and former state senator, prevails, it will mark the first Democratic House triumph since 1964 and the first in western Nebraska since 1958.

If Mrs. Haven Smith, 63, the Chappell homemaker and longtime American Farm Bureau Federation director, wins it, she will become the first woman ever elected to the House from Nebraska.

With nearly 60% of the precincts counted, Ziebarth led by a hair.

Margins Trimmed

For Thone and McCollister, the hard times which beset Republicans this election year appeared only to reduce the size of their 1972 victories.

Thone, 50, the Lincoln attorney who won his initial First District term in 1970, withstood the best organized, most generously financed Democratic congressional bid in state political history in the 27-county eastern Nebraska district.

Hess Dyas, 37, former Democratic state chairman, was the challenger.

Featured Walkathon

Fueled by more than $100,000 in campaign financing, he mounted a nine-month campaign, which featured Nebraska's first candidate walkathon, a 734-mile trek through every county in the district.

Thone, a conservative congressman with an occasional independent voting streak, held on to win re-election in what traditionally has been a swing district, susceptible to the national mood.

Dyas needed to win the politically moderate Lincoln vote comfortably in order to stave off Thone margins in more conservative northern counties. But the Dyas lead in Lincoln early Wednesday was too slim.

State's Smoothest

McCollister, 53, a former Douglas County commissioner, first won the Omaha-dominated Second District seat in 1970. A conservative, he has since developed into the smoothest, most polished member of the Nebraska delegation.

His Democratic opponent, Dan Lynch, 45, chairman of the Douglas County board of commissioners, depended on the Democratic voter registration advantage in Omaha to bring him the first Second District Democratic triumph since 1948.

But Omaha voters gave McCollister an early lead, and the ballgame was over.

Tuesday's results push both Thone and McCollister into position to claim U.S. Senate seats now held by Republicans Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis if the senators choose to retire in 1976 and 1978, respectively.

Either might even decide to challenge the incumbent senator at that time.

Seek Martin's Seat

Mrs. Smith and Ziebarth were battling for the Third District seat being vacated by Republican Congressman Dave Martin, who is retiring after seven House terms.

Ziebarth was best known during his only legislative term (1969-73) for his sponsorship of legislation leading to the creation of a statewide system of community colleges.

Mrs. Smith gained the general election finals by defeating seven male opponents in the May primary election.

Whereas Dyas and Lynch were more liberal alternatives to their Republican opponents, both Mrs. Smith and Ziebarth are political conservatives.

The winner will represent 61 counties in the western two-thirds of the state.

Demos Gain Big In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats parlayed Republican scandals and gnawing inflation into a landslide of off-year election victories Tuesday, strengthening their command of Congress and their grip on the nation's state houses.

In the election after Watergate surfaced into scandal, they made massive gains in the House of Representatives, both in numbers and in the ouster of Republican veterans.

Democratic challengers took away at least three Republican Senate seats and took over at least six GOP governorships, including those of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut. A Republican gained one in South Carolina.

A Democrat, Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown Jr., 36, led in his bid to become governor of California.

Rep. Hugh L. Carey, a Brooklyn congressman, was elected governor of New York, ending a 16-year Republican reign there.

While the statewide races for senator and governor featured the biggest names that rose and fell on election day, the Democratic sweep apparently went deepest in the House.

Democrats had won or led for 289 House seats, 41 more than they currently hold, with returns yet to come from races in 2 congressional districts.

President Ford conceded his Republican Party had been trounced. "Those who lose often come back to win another day," he said at the White House.

In Senate races, the victorious Democratic challengers were Colorado's Gary Hart, 36, manager of George McGovern's disastrous presidential campaign two years ago; Gov. Wendell H. Ford of Kentucky, and Richard Stone, a former secretary of state, in Florida.

In the past five mid-term elections, the party out of White House power has gained an average of four seats in the Senate in off-year elections.

Traditionally, a president's party loses congressional seats in off-year balloting. This time, Watergate and nagging economic woes were added to that pattern.

In the Senate, with 34 seats at stake and 51 needed for a majority, Democrats won 22 and had 38 holdovers for a new total of 60, while Republicans won 7 and had 28 holdovers for a new total of 35. That is a net gain of 4 Democrats with 5 races undecided.

In the House, with all 435 seats at stake and 218 needed for a majority, Democrats won 249 while Republicans won 98. That is a net gain of 33 Democrats with 88 races undecided, compared with the current lineup of 248 Democrats and 187 Republicans.

In the races for governor in 35 states, Democrats won 25 and had 9 holdovers for a new total of 34, while Republicans won 4 and had 6 holdovers for a new total of 34, while Republicans won 4 and had 6 holdovers for a new total of 10. That is a net gain of 5 Democrats with 6 races undecided.

Michigan Republican Gov. William G. Milliken won a close contest for re-election.

Senate turnovers came as Hart ousted Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo.; Ford beat Sen. Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., and Stone topped millionaire druggist Jack Eckerd for the seat vacated by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., who was indicated for bribery and conspiracy, and chose not to run.

For the Republicans, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York bucked the gubernatorial tide there, and defeated Democratic former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark to win a fourth term.

In Kansas, Sen. Robert J. Dole, a former Republican national chairman burdened by past White House ties, fended off the stiff challenge of Democratic Rep. William R. Roy.

Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland, Robert Packwood of Oregon all won re-election.

In New Hampshire, Rep. Louis C. Wyman won Senate election to succeed the retiring Republican Norris Cotton.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota was reelected. So was Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, the Democratic running mate McGovern deposed in 1972. Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas won Senate election was expected. Former astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. swept to Senate election in Ohio after 10 years of trying. Sen. Birch Bayh won over Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar in Indiana.

Other Democratic incumbents who won new terms included Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, Alan Cranston of California, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Another Democratic victor was Rep. John C. Culver of Iowa, who won the seat from which Democratic Harold E. Hughes is retiring.

Nixon Marks Up Absentee Ballot In Hospital Bed

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon voted Monday in his hospital room by absentee ballot, his former press secretary said Tuesday.

"As soon as he was strong enough to hold a pencil in his hand he marked up the ballot," Ronald L. Ziegler said in a statement released by his secretary.

The ballot was mailed to the Orange County registrar of voter's office. Ziegler did not say whether Nixon's wife, Pat, or daughters Tricia and Julie voted.

State School Aid Apparently Nixed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska voters opposed the historic state aid to education bill in incomplete returns Tuesday night.

Ballots counted outside Lincoln and Omaha initially tended to shift the balance toward approval of the bill, LB772, but that trend reversed later on.

Returns in Douglas County showed heavy opposition to LB772, and of more than 44,000 ballots cast in Lancaster County, the final tally showed opposition to the bill by a margin of about 4,000 votes.

A voter decision to reject LB772 would sustain Gov. J. James Exon's veto of the bill, which passed by the minimum 30-vote override in the 1974 Legislature. Exon has vetoed four similar state school aid bills in as many years, on grounds that a shift in taxation would hurt people with the least ability to pay, such as renters, middle-income people and the elderly.

Drive Organized

State Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell organized a petition drive to force the bill to a vote of the people.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner, sponsor of LB772, and the State Department of Education then mounted a statewide information drive to explain the bill. LB772 represented 11 years of legislative work by Warner to shift to the state more of the burden to operate public schools.

A lawsuit claiming LB772 was a state budget bill and thus not constitutionally eligible for popular vote was rejected by the Lancaster County District Court, a decision upheld by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

A defeat of LB772 would leave in effect the current state school aid bill, passed in 1967, providing $55 million annually in state revenues to local schools.

A defeat of LB772 would also mean loss of a $12 million increase for special education programs under LB403. The boost from $8 million currently to $20 million was tied to provisions of LB772.

Informed of the apparent rejection of LB772, Warner said early Wednesday morning he will not introduce comprehensive school finance legislation in the 1975 Unicameral.

"Primarily, I want to give the opponents to LB772 a chance to make good on their word they have a better way."

Warner said he will reintroduce a bill similar to LB831, which provides for a 5% increase in the state income tax; the revenue raised would be returned to each school district in amounts based on resident taxpayers in each district.

Warner said he considers that an "interim step to a comprehensive type of plan" such as LB772.

Kissinger Calls For Global Food Bank

Rome (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger challenged the World Food Conference on Tuesday to ignore national differences and establish a global food bank to provide reserves for fighting famine.

He said the United States has an open mind about a new world food authority "to fuse our efforts and provide leadership" for the war on hunger.

"Let the nations gathered here resolve to confront the challenge, not each other," he told delegates of more than 100 nations at the opening session of the 11-day conference. "Let us agree that the scale and severity of the task require a collaborative effort unprecedented in history."

As the American secretary of state appealed for unity, Italian leftists marched through the city and demonstrated at the Colosseum against his presence in Rome, and terrorists attacked an American firm for the fourth day. The strong Italian Communist party is angry because of alleged American meddling in Italian politics.

During his stay of less than a day, Kissinger constantly was shadowed by Italian and American security forces, including 200 policemen outside the Vatican when Kissinger went in for a visit with Pope Paul VI. He also met with Italian politicians and the Argentine and Greek foreign ministers.

The American diplomat left immediately after his speech on another tour of the Middle East, starting in Cairo, leaving U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz as head of the U.S. delegation. There are more than 1,000 delegates at the conference.

Kissinger, the main keynote speaker at the conference's opening, was not off the speaker's rostrum an hour before the Argentine, Alberto Vignes, began what is expected to be a systematic assault on the United States and other affluent countries as being too well-fed and too rich.

Vignes charged that the United States is partially responsible for the world's monetary and food crises and said:

"By way of reparation of the damage that it has caused the world with the devaluation of its currency, the United States should allocate a significant portion of the food it produces toward covering the needs of those countries that do not have enough to pay."

The secretary-general of the United Nations, Kurt Waldheim, also assailed the disparity between the industrial and the underdeveloped countries in his address that opened the conference. "The great differences in the consumption habits between the rich and the poor societies . . . became indefensible in periods of penury and shortage," Waldheim said.

Kissinger did not refer in his address to cutting back consumption by the rich nations to leave food for the hungry. He suggested that the only lasting solution to the food crisis is population control, another topic becoming increasingly sensitive to poor governments.

In his specific proposals, Kissinger urged the conference to work out as quickly as possible details of his proposed international system of grain stocks to ensure food in emergencies. It would not be under international control but would include measures for dealing with noncompliance by signatories.

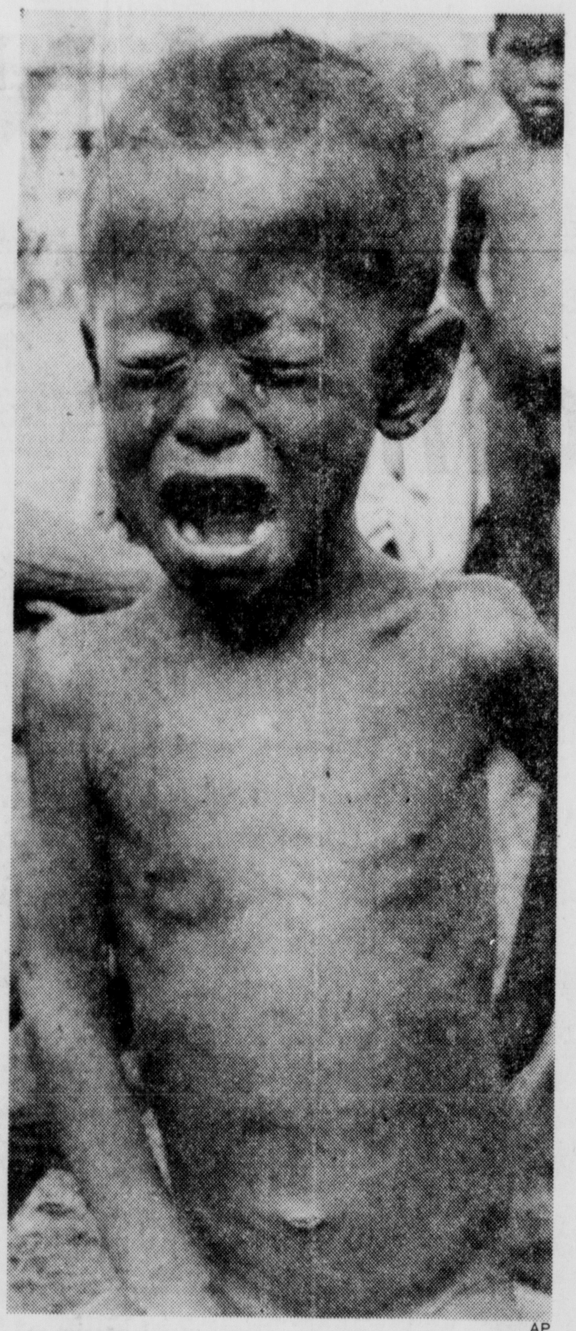

He also proposed three new international organizations to strengthen and coordinate national efforts in agriculture: an exporters' planning group and groups to coordinate food production, investment and grain reserves.

On food aid, Kissinger pledged America to "do everything humanly possible to assure that our future contribution will be responsive to the growing needs."

But he declared that the oil rich countries "have a special responsibility in this regard. Many of them have income far in excess of that needed to balance their international payments or to finance their economic development."

Reaction of delegates to Kissinger's speech was polite but not very enthusiastic.

The Saudi Arabian agriculture minister, Hassan Mishari, said: "Labeling us rich stands in need of correction." He said Saudi Arabia cannot be called wealthy, despite its oil money, as long as it faces "so many social and economic problems."

Israelis Arrest Chief

BEIRUT (AP) — Israeli troops carried off in a daring raid Tuesday a Lebanese village chief accused of cooperating with Arab terrorists as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger started another Mideast peace mission.

Witnesses said an estimated 150 Israelis in helicopters swooped down on the town of Majdal Zoun, six miles from the Israeli frontier, just before sunrise. They arrested Mukhtar Aref Suleiman and his 15-year-old son Ali and blew up the family house after ordering other family members to leave.

"Both were known to have cooperated with terrorists," the Israeli government announced after the father and son had been flown to Israel.

Kissinger flew to Cairo on Tuesday from Rome. He planned to stop in Saudi Arabia and Jordan on Wednesday and Syria and Israel on Thursday.

In other Middle East developments:

—U.S. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger denied a published report that the United States was dangerously stripping itself of military hardware for delivery to Israel.

—A guerrilla newspaper published in Beirut said the Palestinians would escalate their conflict with Jordan's King Hussein over future control of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River.

—Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin rejected calls for a Palestinian nation and reaffirmed Israel's refusal to negotiate with Arab guerrilla movements.

Schlesinger, on an official visit to West Germany, told a news conference there was some stripping of U.S. Army active reserve units to provide hardware to Israel during the October 1973 war but that it was not extensive.

"The United States has a long-standing relationship with Israel that involves the delivery of military equipment," Schlesinger said. "But there has been no dramatic change in that relationship in the last few days or weeks."

Prosecutors Win Round In Fight Over Tape Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate prosecutors won a preliminary victory Tuesday in a developing battle over the use of White House tapes as evidence in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Overruling objections from defense attorneys, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica permitted the prosecutors to begin presenting evidence authenticating tapes even though the judge hasn't yet decided whether they can be used as evidence.

A principal issue involved is the prosecutors' attempt to use tapes which they can't authenticate through the testimony of a participant in the conversation.

"This court believes this evidence should be submitted to the jury as a preliminary matter" Sirica said after hearing arguments from opposing counsel. "The court will then rule on the admissibility of the tapes."

The prosecutors then called Alexander P. Butterfield, the man who first publicly disclosed the existence of the tapes, and he described how he helped the prosecution identify the voices on nearly 30 tapes.

Butterfield, administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, was a special assistant to Richard M. Nixon during four years and two months on the White House staff.

Butterfield went through a pile of tapes placed in front of him on the witness stand and verified that he had listened to each and initialed it.

Kissinger Begins Tour To Test Mideast Diplomacy

Cairo (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began Tuesday night a fast tour of the Middle East that will test the effectiveness of his personal diplomacy and assess prospects for negotiations holding off another Arab-Israeli war.

A senior American official said Kissinger's task was complicated by newly obstructionist tactics by the Soviet Union.

Kissinger appeared to be pinning his hopes on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's possible interest in trying for an interim Sinai settlement with Israel in advance of reconvening the Geneva peace conference.

The recent Arab summit conference recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — as the sole representative for some 650,000 west bank Palestinians. But Israel is believed willing to go ahead with Sinai talks.

The question is whether Sadat is prepared to deal with Israel now in preference to an early Geneva resumption.

Arriving at Cairo International Airport, Kissinger said, "I'm on a quick visit to see President Sadat and Foreign Minister (Ismail) Fahmy to discuss with them their conclusions in the light of the Rabat summit as to how further progress can be made toward a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Kissinger added: "The United States is ready as it has been through the past year to be helpful to the parties in making rapid progress."

Plans were for Sadat, who requested Kissinger's visit, to meet the secretary briefly after his arrival from Rome and for them to hold longer talks Wednesday before Kissinger goes to Saudi Arabia.

Kissinger's other stops over two days will be Jordan, Syria and Israel. The senior American official said he could not rule out a return to Cairo before Kissinger goes to Turkey on Friday for discussions about the Cyprus dispute, but it is considered unlikely.

The new Soviet tactics appeared to be signaled by a Soviet commentator, Igor Belayev, interviewed by the Beirut newspaper An Nahar. The paper quoted Belayev, who usually reflects Kremlin thinking, as saying Moscow would veto any Middle East peace settlement that hurt Soviet interests.

Part Of Nixon's Lung Collapses

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Part of Richard M. Nixon's right lung has collapsed, and there was fluid in his left lung, his doctor said Tuesday.

Neither of the lung problems was believed serious, and Dr. John C. Lungren said he asked the former president to cough and breathe deeply to overcome them. Lungren said he also had directed Nixon to take more walks in his hospital room.

Lungren said Nixon suffered atelectasis in the right lung, meaning part of the organ had collapsed. He said the condition was detected last week but was not made public until the latest bulletin from Memorial Hospital Medical Center. He said despite some improvements, the former president remained in serious condition and was "terribly physically weak."

Cairo (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began Tuesday night a fast tour of the Middle East that will test the effectiveness of his personal diplomacy and assess prospects for negotiations holding off another Arab-Israeli war.

A senior American official said Kissinger's task was complicated by newly obstructionist tactics by the Soviet Union.

Kissinger appeared to be pinning his hopes on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's possible interest in trying for an interim Sinai settlement with Israel in advance of reconvening the Geneva peace conference.

The recent Arab summit conference recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — as the sole representative for some 650,000 west bank Palestinians. But Israel is believed willing to go ahead with Sinai talks.

The question is whether Sadat is prepared to deal with Israel now in preference to an early Geneva resumption.

Arriving at Cairo International Airport, Kissinger said, "I'm on a quick visit to see President Sadat and Foreign Minister (Ismail) Fahmy to discuss with them their conclusions in the light of the Rabat summit as to how further progress can be made toward a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Kissinger added: "The United States is ready as it has been through the past year to be helpful to the parties in making rapid progress."

Plans were for Sadat, who requested Kissinger's visit, to meet the secretary briefly after his arrival from Rome and for them to hold longer talks Wednesday before Kissinger goes to Saudi Arabia.

Kissinger's other stops over two days will be Jordan, Syria and Israel. The senior American official said he could not rule out a return to Cairo before Kissinger goes to Turkey on Friday for discussions about the Cyprus dispute, but it is considered unlikely.

The new Soviet tactics appeared to be signaled by a Soviet commentator, Igor Belayev, interviewed by the Beirut newspaper An Nahar. The paper quoted Belayev, who usually reflects Kremlin thinking, as saying Moscow would veto any Middle East peace settlement that hurt Soviet interests

Reds Expel Tourists

Moscow (UPI) — The official Tass news agency said two American Jewish tourists have been expelled from the Soviet Union for distributing what it called anti-Soviet propaganda.

Part Of Nixon's Lung Collapses

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Part of Richard M. Nixon's right lung has collapsed, and there was fluid in his left lung, his doctor said Tuesday

Neither of the lung problems was believed serious, and Dr. John C. Lungren said he asked the former president to cough and breathe deeply to overcome them. Lungren said he also had directed Nixon to take more walks in his hospital room.

Lungren said Nixon suffered atelectasis in the right lung, meaning part of the organ had collapsed. He said the condition was detected last week but was not made public until the latest bulletin from Memorial Hospital Medical Center. He said despite some improvements, the former president remained in serious condition and was "terribly physically weak."

Safety Improvements Needed

People living in the area of 27th and Capital Parkway have petitioned for safety improvements at the railroad crossing at that intersection and experience indicates it is not an unreasonable request. A car-train fatality last month was not the first bad accident at the crossing, which is guarded by flashing signals, but not gates.

The local Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD), contending that the Lincoln City Council is responsible for setting crossing improvement priorities, has referred the petition to the council and the council has referred the matter to the city Public Works Department for a report.

Local officials may be hesitant about committing funds to improvements to a line which may be relocated in the future, but we think the safety needs of the present are a more compelling argument. Other major intersections on that particular track are guarded by gates. It only makes sense that motorists on heavily traveled Capital Parkway and 27th receive the same protection.

While the council's attention is focused on safety improvements, it's time that the traffic signal priority list is reviewed.

For some years now we have wondered why the intersections on 40th south of O St., particularly at A St. and South St., have not been signalized.

Comparative traffic counts may not back us up, but it seems that the heavy volume of traffic on 40th, despite its non-arterial status, and the heavy traffic on A and South, both arterials, warrant signalization. The safety hazards at both intersections, 40th and A and 40th and South, are further compounded by visibility obstructions.

If the intersections are not high enough on the priority list to be funded for traffic signals at the present level of funding, it is time more money was appropriated for installing traffic signals each year.

In order to keep traffic flowing and to help prevent accidents, signals should be installed at 40th and A and 40th and South.

Hopefully it won't take a fatal accident to pinpoint the needs in this area.

The Burglar's Memo

Electioneering has stolen the spotlight from the Watergate coverup trial and it's probably a blessing, considering how thoroughly saturated the nation has become with Watergate news.

But the trial continues and with it the collapse of loyalty and the spilling forth of stories about the coverup which Nixon administration antagonists have suspected were true for so long.

The incredible memo written by E. Howard Hunt just after Nixon's landslide victory in November, 1972, which sets forth the Watergate burglars' position, illustrates in certain terms the folly of the Nixon circle's approach to containing the spread of the truth.

The seven defendants were apprehensive of the future and resentful of their treatment up to that point. At least Hunt was. And although he disclaimed any intent to threaten or bribe the "higher-ups", it seems clear that at that point there was very little hope of keeping the lid on unless the defendants were taken care of. And even in that case, very little hope.

It would seem almost impossible that the White House was unaware of the feelings of Hunt and the others. And if they were known, the pattern of conduct subsequently was inexplicable.

Letting it all hang out right after the election probably would have solved the problem as far as public opinion was concerned and Nixon might still be in office. The way it happened, however, it seems the Nixon administration consciously plotted its own destruction.

RUSSELL BAKER

Watered-Down Sugar

WASHINGTON — Life is sweet these days in the sugar business. Prices have gone up 300% in the past year and profits are rising apace.

Net income for Amstar, formerly the American Sugar Company, is up 250%. Great Western United, the biggest beet-sugar refiner, is up 1,120% in net income, and another boost in sugar prices is due at your supermarket this week.

It is a thrilling success story at a time when the general economy is not only stale, flat and unprofitable, but also in rotten shape, and so, in response to the public outcry for less gloomy news and more roses. I sought to interview the man behind the miracle.

He is, of course, The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States.

"You may have an audience in a few moments along with this gentleman right here," his secretary said.

"I want a private audience," said the other pilgrim.

"The Big Sugar Daddy is too busy to grant private audiences," the secretary explained. "You are lucky he can see you at all, considering the huge backlog of price increases he has to complete."

"Do you know who I am?" asked the gentleman.

"Of course," the secretary said. "You are The Oil King of the Western World. Now behave yourself or we'll price the icing right off your cake."

"The Oil King himself!" I marvelled. "Waiting on The Big Sugar Daddy! And you the only other man in America who is raking in exorbitant profits while all around you others are losing theirs."

"Button your lip," said the King, "or I'll squeeze you for another 2 cents a gallon."

"Gentlemen, The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States!" cried the secretary. We stood up.

"Be seated," he said, and wept.

"Those are crocodile tears," whispered The Oil King.

"How do you know?"

"Because he's stolen my crocodile."

"Your crocodile?"

"Of course. In big business you've got to have a crocodile to supply you with crocodile tears to weep every time you raise prices to ever more fantastic levels. Those tears mean he's going to raise sugar prices again."

"I have only one announcement to make before going to questions," wept The Big Sugar Daddy.

"I regret that intolerable economic hardship compels me to increase the price of sugar by 4 cents effective as of this instant. I will now take a respectful question or two."

"Mr. Daddy," I cried.

"Call me Your Sweetness," he sobbed.

"Will you tell me, Your Sweetness, the secret which has enabled you to turn fantastic profits while almost everybody else is losing theirs?"

He was convulsed in tears. "Oh no," he managed at last. "Not fantastic profits, my lad. The figures may look startling to the uninformed, but when you consider the depressed profits base of previous years when your poor old Big Sugar Daddy was making nothing at all — nothing at all—"

He was weeping so intensely he could not continue for a minute or two, and when he did it was only incoherent blubbering. "All those years driving a '51 Hudson," he wept. "Seeing the children fade and fail before my eyes while I scrimped and struggled to supply America with the sweetest soda pop this side of heaven—"

"I want my crocodile," yelled The Oil King.

His Sweetness dried his eyes and stared at The Oil King as one very, very rich man to another; that is, without tears of bogus piety.

"I need that crocodile," said The Oil King. "The way the price of sugar is going up, I'm going to have more of those wonderful increased costs which regrettably always compel me to raise the price of oil, and I am going to need plenty of crocodile tears to give the public an eyewash when the fantastic new profits are reported."

"Leave us not discuss business in public," said His Sweetness, urging me to leave. I declined, but reconsidered when he told me that he had ways of making me drink coffee without sugar.

The Oil King was less subtle. "Give the crocodile a taste of him," he suggested.

"Oh no," HIs Sweetness was saying as I fled. "Why let the crocodile have what is rightfully ours?"

Quantity Of Trash Mail

Lincoln, Neb.

The ultimate waste of paper in the mail and in ads is enormous. Some days all the mail I receive consists of trash without value. If I need something, I am going downtown to buy it.

Not long ago we read that Canada will decrease paper material deliveries to this country, at the same time the prices are going up. No question that this and the big ads in newspapers are contributing to inflation.

We remember what one farmer did with unwanted mail. Beside his mail box, he put an iron stove in order to burn up all unwanted materials received.

The Phone Calls

Lincoln, Neb.

The following bit of prose exemplifies my justified fears concerning obscene phone calls. I am sure many women have experienced the same fears.

An ominous phone call in the quiet of early morning
then again
on a workday afternoon spent secretly at home and now
a weekend alone
interrupted
by a foreboding ring
of slanderous insults
and malicious proposals.

I slam the receiver
as in previous times,
his frustrations
now amplified.

He knows my name
and when I'm home.
Is he part of the scenery
I occasionally view
does he live next door
and watch me from his window?

Or is he just someone waiting for the right time
to let me know
that he will wait no more?

Governmental Chaos

Crete, Neb.

For reasons that have been obvious for too many years, the President's Summit Conference has revealed little more than theories for solutions to our inflation problems. Our country is inflated with muddled information and political and economic chaos.

The President and Congress cannot cope with chaos in government unless university regents and legislatures cope with the causes: efficiency, deficiencies and delinquencies in education. Marvelous products of efficiency in the physical sciences and technology move men to the moon and multiply and complicate the problems of government on earth, and dire deficiencies and delinquencies in essential studies leave us without competence for solutions. The universities do not have faculties and compilation of data that are needed to educate elementary and high school teachers of government and competent citizenship.

If we were properly educated, we would avert chaos by enlightenment and deliberation in political campaigns for perfecting the purposes proclaimed by the preamble instead of courting calamity with hocus, hates and hysteria in brawls for votes of selfish interests. It is high time for all of us to stifle selfishness and to organize for corrective action that will save the children of today from disaster.

We Sink Deeper And Deeper

Valparaiso, Neb.

We can complain about the wrongs of our society today. We have but to listen to the news or read the newspaper and we are told about the rising crime and lowering of morality in the United States. These are not two separate areas of concern but both are intertwined.

If we are to put a finger on the cause of most of the ills in this country, it would have to be the rapid decay of morals in this country and the world. In the last presidential election, we heard rumors of the evils of the Democratic candidate. Although Watergate hearings proved they were rumors started by CREEP people, they ruined McGovern at the polls in '72. We were led to believe the Democratic candidate was guilty of the worst evils against man, a pro-abortionist and legalizing of marijuana. A very strange turn of fate, indeed, when two short years later we have a president of the United States whose wife, Betty Ford, has proclaimed she is for abortion and legalizing of marijuana.

If this weren't bad enough, the vice president designate, Nelson Rockefeller, is also a pro-abortionist.

The very sad part of it all is that these people have been appointed or are about to be and we have to sit and stew while our congressional delegation sit idly by in silent approval.

How much further into the quagmire will we slide before we become concerned enough to seek changes?

Troubled Classrooms

Falls City, Neb.

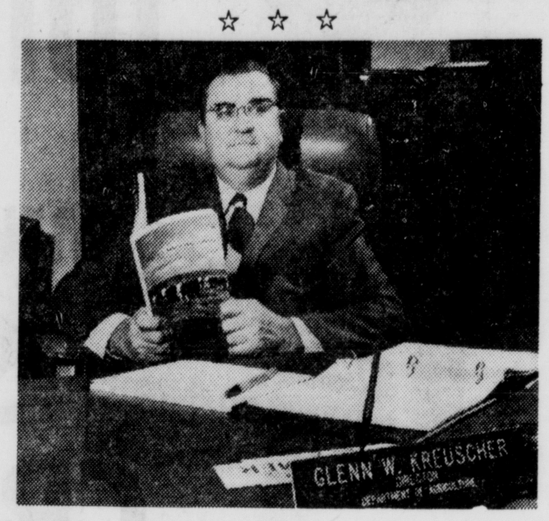

Classes on Watergate! What a presumptuous idea that any teacher can handle that subject objectively! And about sex education — aren't school-age children better informed than their teachers, thanks to saturation efforts by pornography hucksters and association with older sexually experienced college-age siblings and friends?

How about using sex education class-time to drill students in vital facts about their personal health requirements? With tooth decay among the young at a national crisis level, why not point the finger at the real culprit? The big sugar industry has manufactured and unleased enough junk food to destroy the health of our children, to the tune of a 1200% increase in profit in the last 10 years. The government offers fluoride as the usual instant remedy. How about encouraging a little self-discipline and instruction in home care?

On the other hand, what good are sound teeth for our children when their brains are scrambled from pot-smoking and other drugs? If I had young children at this time of my life, I wouldn't send them into a public school system anywhere for a million dollars!

In regard to Glenn Kreuscher's remark about not enough food on his plate when eating out — we can't complain but we watch where we go and what we order and we eat out three to five times a week.

Maybe the waitress and kitchen help took one look at Mr. Kreuscher's size and decided he needed less food on his plate.

Nursing Home Meals

Lincoln, Neb.

I read in The Star of Oct. 30 that Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher intends to visit the restaurants during November and check on the food served at high prices.

How about someone's inspecting the nursing homes regarding meals? My mother is in a home and from some of the meals she tells me about, it sounds as if they need a manager. No wonder they feed them so many pills, which she doesn't approve of, if they do not receive enough to eat.

I still say that food is cheaper than medicine. These older folks look forward to their meals, having little else to think about. Surely they shouldn't be denied this small satisfaction.

Someone must be getting a pocketful, especially when the elderly are able to care for themselves and get little in return for the high price they pay monthly.

Some of these elderly people pay out more in a month than they used to make in a year's time at the wages they received 50 or 60 years ago.

'Scream In The Dark'

Lincoln, Neb.

I sincerely hope that the Halloween fiasco that was allowed to go on between 31st and 32nd Streets ("Scream In The Dark") will never be allowed again. Surely a permit from the city was needed, and who in his right mind would issue a permit for such an enterprise to function at night on busy O Street? It was a hazard for children and a nightmare for those of us who live a block or so away. Our property was trespassed upon by cars parking wherever they could, to say nothing about the garbage strewn about.

I certainly hope that I am not so old that I cannot remember the fun of this time of year, nor would I deny it to the youth of today, but I feel this fiasco was for the pocketbooks of some enterprising people.

Let's have our fun, but let's also keep in mind what it does to those who live in the neighborhood, those of us who take pride in our properties, dwellings as well as businesses. The properties used for this purpose should have been condemned as hazards a long time ago. I am wondering who owns these properties. Did the owners need the money that bad? Who will be next, another year? I feel sorry for them.

WILLA SHEA

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 10, has diabetes and severe sinus trouble. We have no trouble controlling the diabetes as long as the sinus does not act up, but every winter we have trouble with sinus infection. Cutting a window in the sinus for drainage did not help. Last winter she was under the care of a pediatric allergy specialist. I have heard that prolonged stays in West Texas, New Mexico or Arizona cause sinus infections to dry up. Is this so, and if so how far west would one have to go for relief?—O.T.F.

Quite true that infections make it difficult to control diabetes and I most certainly agree that keeping after some correction of your daughter's sinus infections is important.

The seasonal flare-ups suggest allergy of some sort — house dust in the winter, mold perhaps, perhaps some other factor. It's my feeling that your present approach, seeking an allergy, is the logical one.

But I have to admit that sometimes allergies can be pretty baffling. In many cases, of course, tests for the more common allergens produce a prompt answer. And then again sometimes the allergist has to seek among some of the less familiar ones before finding the right answer. It can take time.

But to reply to your direct question, about trying a Western climate to "dry up" the infections — it's risky to put too much dependence on that. To be sure, it may be helpful. Then again you may find either the same or other allergens there which keep the trouble flourishing.

So before contemplating any such long stays, first consult your allergist to see what clues, if any, he can provide. Second, instead of plunging into a prolonged stay, make a test visit to one of the areas you have in mind and see whether a short stay begins to have any effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know about niacinamide, otherwise called nicotinic acid, for canker sores. My daughter has been having soreness inside the cheek for almost a year.—Mrs. G.

It is also called niacin, a member of the vitamin B complex family, which is essential for proper growth and good health.

Deficiency of this in older people often is accompanied by a cracking at the corners of the mouth. Niacin therapy is often helpful in such cases.

Unless your daughter is a very poor eater, I doubt that this is her problem. It would more likely be canker sores caused by either an allergy or a skin sensitivity to some foods — citrus juice, for example.

At any rate, your doctor could determine whether or not the cause is either an allergy or a deficient diet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know more about two types of cancer. I have had two removed from my lip called leukoplakia, and one on my forehead named actinic keratosis. I am very worried and want to know if this type of cancer can be controlled. Should I go to a cancer clinic? I am getting more places on my face.—F.H.

No, I don't think you need to seek out any special clinic. I also suspect you may be more upset than you need to be — not that these spots shouldn't be watched if and as they appear. But I doubt if they are as dangerous to you as you seem to fear.

Leukoplakia is the white thickening of the membrane lining of the mouth and lips (and can appear on other mucous surfaces, too). It is due to chronic irritation — smoking, heat of the smoke, jagged teeth, etc.

Not all patches of leukoplakia are cancerous. Rather they are regarded as potentially precancerous. They may develop into cancer. In advanced cases they can become quite thick, may have fissures (cracks), or may ulcerate. At that stage they possess a strong possibility of becoming cancerous and, of course, need to be removed.

Mild, faint patches of leukoplakia may, however, disappear if the irritation is removed.

Hence the rule is to watch such spots, and if your doctor or dentist sees suspicious changes, remove them.

Actinic keratoses are skin cancers due to excessive exposure to the sun, not uncommon in people who are outdoors a great deal — farmers, sportsmen, other outdoor workers, sun-worshipers.

These should be removed. But keep this in mind: they are visible; they are accessible; they can be seen in their early stages and removed easily before they have had a chance to spread.

When they are removed a laboratory test will determine whether they actually contain any cancer cells.

When your skin shows a tendency to develop such spots, by all means have them watched, but at the same time have high confidence that they can be removed before they really endanger you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I took a physical for track, my blood pressure was 120/70. I am 11 years old. My great aunt said this was bad but my doctor says it is usual for 11 years old. Who is right?—D.M.

Your doctor is right. That pressure is quite normal for your age.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Immunization Lack Could Lead To Epidemics

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jules Abend is manager of news operations for McGraw-Hill World News.)

By JULES ABEND

New York — We are not taking care of our children, or of ourselves either.

In this country today, there are nearly five and one-half million children between the ages of one and four who have never been adequately immunized against polio.

There are close to four million who have not been protected against tetanus, diphtheria, and whooping cough. There are more than five million with no immunity to measles. And six million children are defenseless against German measles.

And, despite the expectation of a "significant" outbreak of Port Chalmers Flu in all parts of the nation, except the mid-Atlantic and northeast regions, only one out of every five persons in the high-risk group — the elderly, very young or chronically ill — are expected to get flu shots.

Also, there is a substantial resurgence of lice. The number of cases of pediculosis (lice) is expected to reach three million by the end of this year, an increase of 50%.

According to Dr. Saul Krugman, professor of pediatrics, New York University School of Medicine, "parents and the medical profession have become complacent in regard to pre-school immunization for polio, diphtheria and other preventable diseases that can strike the very young."

The pediatric specialist warns that these diseases have not disappeared. He feels that parents and some doctors as well, have been lulled into a false sense of security because they have been successfully controlled.

"The real threat," Dr. Krugman believes, "is that not enough children are being immunized to assure that epidemics will not occur on a broad scale."

Apathy is also responsible for the lack of interest in flu shots, although Port Chalmers Flu, first isolated last year in New Zealand, is a Type A strain, deadlier than the Type B flu that swept the nation last winter.

Only about nine million of the 45 million persons in the high-risk category are expected to get shots this year, according to Dr. Larry Corey of the Center for Disease Control, despite predictions that flu-related deaths will increase this winter.

This flu is related to the 1972 London Flu, which caused more than 1,000 deaths a week in U.S. cities at the peak of a February, 1973, epidemic.

Nobody talks about lice. But everyone knows about them. Dr. Milton Orkin, clinical professor of dermatology at the University of Minnesota Medical School, observes that the increase in pediculosis has occurred without regard to socio-economic barriers. He advises physicians that a "high index of suspicion is necessary to prevent the progression of this epidemic."

The greatest increase has been found in cases of head lice and public lice, the dermatologist says. He claims that changing life-styles are primarily responsible.

Safety Improvements Needed

People living in the area of 27th and Capital Parkway have petitioned for safety improvements at the railroad crossing at that intersection and experience indicates it is not an unreasonable request. A car-train fatality last month was not the first bad accident at the crossing, which is guarded by flashing signals, but not gates.

The local Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD), contending that the Lincoln City Council is responsible for setting crossing improvement priorities, has referred the petition to the council and the council has referred the matter to the city Public Works Department for a report.

Local officials may be hesitant about committing funds to improvements to a line which may be relocated in the future, but we think the safety needs of the present are a more compelling argument. Other major intersections on that particular track are guarded by gates. It only makes sense that motorists on heavily traveled Capital Parkway and 27th receive the same protection.

While the council's attention is focused on safety improvements, it's time that the traffic signal priority list is reviewed.

For some years now we have wondered why the intersections on 40th south of O St., particularly at A St. and South St., have not been signalized.

Comparative traffic counts may not back us up, but it seems that the heavy volume of traffic on 40th, despite its non-arterial status, and the heavy traffic on A and South, both arterials, warrant signalization. The safety hazards at both intersections, 40th and A and 40th and South, are further compounded by visibility obstructions.

If the intersections are not high enough on the priority list to be funded for traffic signals at the present level of funding, it is time more money was appropriated for installing traffic signals each year.

In order to keep traffic flowing and to help prevent accidents, signals should be installed at 40th and A and 40th and South.

Hopefully it won't take a fatal accident to pinpoint the needs in this area.

The Burglar's Memo

Electioneering has stolen the spotlight from the Watergate coverup trial and it's probably a blessing, considering how thoroughly saturated the nation has become with Watergate news.

But the trial continues and with it the collapse of loyalty and the spilling forth of stories about the coverup which Nixon administration antagonists have suspected were true for so long.

The incredible memo written by E. Howard Hunt just after Nixon's landslide victory in November, 1972, which sets forth the Watergate burglars' position, illustrates in certain terms the folly of the Nixon circle's approach to containing the spread of the truth.

The seven defendants were apprehensive of the future and resentful of their treatment up to that point. At least Hunt was. And although he disclaimed any intent to threaten or bribe the "higher-ups", it seems clear that at that point there was very little hope of keeping the lid on unless the defendants were taken care of. And even in that case, very little hope.

It would seem almost impossible that the White House was unaware of the feelings of Hunt and the others. And if they were known, the pattern of conduct subsequently was inexplicable.

Letting it all hang out right after the election probably would have solved the problem as far as public opinion was concerned and Nixon might still be in office. The way it happened, however, it seems the Nixon administration consciously plotted its own destruction.

RUSSELL BAKER

Watered-Down Sugar

WASHINGTON — Life is sweet these days in the sugar business. Prices have gone up 300% in the past year and profits are rising apace.

Net income for Amstar, formerly the American Sugar Company, is up 250%. Great Western United, the biggest beet-sugar refiner, is up 1,120% in net income, and another boost in sugar prices is due at your supermarket this week.

It is a thrilling success story at a time when the general economy is not only stale, flat and unprofitable, but also in rotten shape, and so, in response to the public outcry for less gloomy news and more roses, I sought to interview the man behind the miracle.

He is, of course, The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States.

"You may have an audience in a few moments along with this gentleman right here," his secretary said.

"I want a private audience," said the other pilgrim.

"The Big Sugar Daddy is too busy to grant private audiences," the secretary explained. "You are lucky he can see you at all, considering the huge backlog of price increases he has to complete."

"Do you know who I am?" asked the gentleman.

"Of course," the secretary said. "You are The Oil King of the Western World. Now behave yourself or we'll price the icing right off your cake."

"The Oil King himself!" I marvelled. "Waiting on The Big Sugar Daddy! And you the only other man in America who is raking in exorbitant profits while all around you others are losing theirs."

"Button your lip," said the King, "or I'll squeeze you for another 2 cents a gallon."

"Gentlemen, The Big Sugar Daddy of the United States!" cried the secretary. We stood up.

"Be seated," he said, and wept.

"Those are crocodile tears," whispered The Oil King.

"How do you know?"

"Because he's stolen my crocodile."

"Your crocodile?"

"Of course. In big business you've got to have a crocodile to supply you with crocodile tears to weep every time you raise prices to ever more fantastic levels. Those tears mean he's going to raise sugar prices again."

"I have only one announcement to make before going to questions," wept The Big Sugar Daddy.

"I regret that intolerable economic hardship compels me to increase the price of sugar by 4 cents effective as of this instant. I will now take a respectful question or two."

"Mr. Daddy," I cried.

"Call me Your Sweetness," he sobbed.

"Will you tell me, Your Sweetness, the secret which has enabled you to turn fantastic profits while almost everybody else is losing theirs?"

He was convulsed in tears. "Oh no," he managed at last. "Not fantastic profits, my lad. The figures may look startling to the uninformed, but when you consider the depressed profits base of previous years when your poor old Big Sugar Daddy was making nothing at all — nothing at all—"

He was weeping so intensely he could not continue for a minute or two, and when he did it was only incoherent blubbering. "All those years driving a '51 Hudson," he wept. "Seeing the children fade and fail before my eyes while I scrimped and struggled to supply America with the sweetest soda pop this side of heaven—"

"I want my crocodile," yelled The Oil King.

His Sweetness dried his eyes and stared at The Oil King as one very, very rich man to another; that is, without tears of bogus piety.

"I need that crocodile," said The Oil King. "The way the price of sugar is going up, I'm going to have more of those wonderful increased costs which regrettably always compel me to raise the price of oil, and I am going to need plenty of crocodile tears to give the public an eyewash when the fantastic new profits are reported."

"Leave us not discuss business in public," said His Sweetness, urging me to leave. I declined, but reconsidered when he told me that he had ways of making me drink coffee without sugar.

The Oil King was less subtle. "Give the crocodile a taste of him," he suggested.

"Oh no," His Sweetness was saying as I fled. "Why let the crocodile have what is rightfully ours?"

Quantity Of Trash Mail

Lincoln, Neb.

The ultimate waste of paper in the mail and in ads is enormous. Some days all the mail I receive consists of trash without value. If I need something, I am going downtown to buy it.

Not long ago we read that Canada will decrease paper material deliveries to this country, at the same time the prices are going up. No question that this and the big ads in newspapers are contributing to inflation.

We remember what one farmer did with unwanted mail. Beside his mail box, he put an iron stove in order to burn up all unwanted materials received.

The following bit of prose exemplifies my justified fears concerning obscene phone calls. I am sure many women have experienced the same fears.

An ominous phone call in the quiet of early morning
then again
on a workday afternoon spent secretly at home
and now
interrupted
by a foreboding ring
of slanderous insults
and malicious proposals.
I slam the receiver
as in previous times,
his frustrations
now amplified.
He knows my name
and when I'm home.
Is he part of the scenery
I occasionally view
does he live next door
and watch me from his window?
Or is he just someone waiting for the right time
to let me know
that he will wait no more?

We Sink Deeper And Deeper

Valparaiso, Neb.

We can complain about the wrongs of our society today. We have but to listen to the news or read the newspaper and we are told about the rising crime and lowering of morality in the United States. These are not two separate areas of concern but both are intertwined.

If we are to put a finger on the cause of most of the ills in this country, it would have to be the rapid decay of morals in this country and the world. In the last presidential election, we heard rumors of the evils of the Democratic candidate. Although Watergate hearings proved they were rumors started by CREEP people, they ruined McGovern at the polls in '72. We were led to believe the Democratic candidate was guilty of the worst evils against man, a pro-abortionist and legalizing of marijuana. A very strange turn of fate, indeed, when two short years later we have a president of the United States whose wife, Betty Ford, has proclaimed she is for abortion and legalizing of marijuana.

If this weren't bad enough, the vice president designate, Nelson Rockefeller, is also a pro-abortionist.

The very sad part of it all is that these people have been appointed or are about to be and we have to sit and stew while our congressional delegation sit idly by in silent approval.

How much further into the quagmire will we slide before we become concerned enough to seek changes?

Troubled Classrooms

Falls City, Neb.

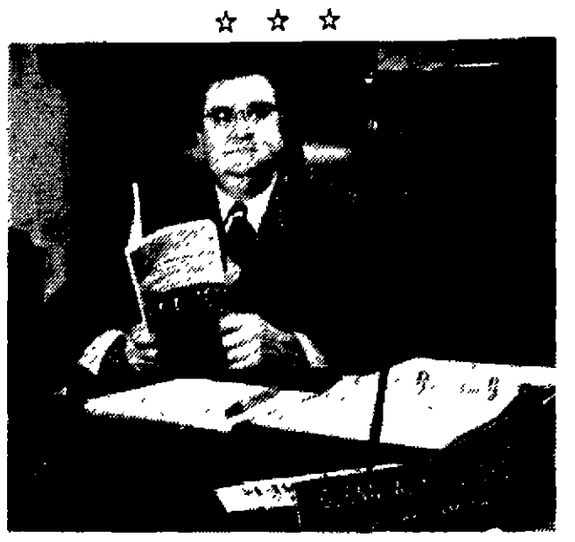

Classes on Watergate! What a presumptuous idea that any teacher can handle that subject objectively! And about sex education — aren't school-age children better informed than their teachers, thanks to saturation efforts by pornography hucksters and association with older sexually experienced college-age siblings and friends?

How about using sex education class-time to drill students in vital facts about their personal health requirements? With tooth decay among the young at a national crisis level, why not point the finger at the real culprit? The big sugar industry has manufactured and unleased enough junk food to destroy the health of our children, to the tune of a 1200% increase in profit in the last 10 years. The government offers fluoride as the usual instant remedy. How about encouraging a little self-discipline and instruction in home care?

On the other hand, what good are sound teeth for our children when their brains are scrambled from pot-smoking and other drugs? If I had young children at this time of my life, I wouldn't send them into a public school system anywhere for a million dollars!

Big Glenn Kreuscher

DeWitt, Neb.

In regard to Glenn Kreuscher's remark about not enough food on his plate when eating out — we can't complain but we watch where we go and what we order and we eat out three to five times a week.

Maybe the waitress and kitchen help took one look at Mr. Kreuscher's size and decided he needed less food on his plate.

Nursing Home Meals

Lincoln, Neb.

I read in The Star of Oct. 30 that Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher intends to visit the restaurants during November and check on the food served at high prices.

How about someone's inspecting the nursing homes regarding meals? My mother is in a home and from some of the meals she tells me about, it sounds as if they need a manager. No wonder they feed them so many pills, which she doesn't approve of, if they do not receive enough to eat.

I still say that food is cheaper than medicine. These older folks look forward to their meals, having little else to think about. Surely they shouldn't be denied this small satisfaction.

Someone must be getting a pocketful, especially when the elderly are able to care for themselves and get little in return for the high price they pay monthly.

Some of these elderly people pay out more in a month than they used to make in a year's time at the wages they received 50 or 60 years ago.

'Scream In The Dark'

Lincoln, Neb.

I sincerely hope that the Halloween fiasco that was allowed to go on between 31st and 32nd Streets ("Scream In The Dark") will never be allowed again. Surely a permit from the city was needed, and who in his right mind would issue a permit for such an enterprise to function at night on busy O Street? It was a hazard for children and a nightmare for those of us who live a block or so away. Our property was trespassed upon by cars parking wherever they could, to say nothing about the garbage strewn about

I certainly hope that I am not so old that I cannot remember the fun of this time of year, nor would I deny it to the youth of today, but I feel this fiasco was for the pocketbooks of some enterprising people.

Let's have our fun, but let's also keep in mind what it does to those who live in the neighborhood, those of us who take pride in our properties, dwellings as well as businesses. The properties used for this purpose should have been condemned as hazards a long time ago. I am wondering who owns these properties. Did the owners need the money that bad? Who will be next, another year? I feel sorry for them.

WILLA SHEA

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 10, has diabetes and severe sinus trouble. We have no trouble controlling the diabetes as long as the sinus does not act up, but every winter we have trouble with sinus infection. Cutting a window in the sinus for drainage did not help. Last winter she was under the care of a pediatric allergy specialist. I have heard that prolonged stays in West Texas, New Mexico or Arizona cause sinus infections to dry up. Is this so, and if so how far west would one have to go for relief?—O.T.F.

Quite true that infections make it difficult to control diabetes and I most certainly agree that keeping after some correction of your daughter's sinus infections is important.

The seasonal flare-ups suggest allergy of some sort — house dust in the winter, mold perhaps, perhaps some other factor. It's my feeling that your present approach, seeking an allergy, is the logical one.

But I have to admit that sometimes allergies can be pretty baffling. In many cases, of course, tests for the more common allergens produce a prompt answer. And then again sometimes the allergist has to seek among some of the less familiar ones before finding the right answer. It can take time.

But to reply to your direct question, about trying a Western climate to "dry up" the infections — it's risky to put too much dependence on that. To be sure, it may be helpful. Then again you may find either the same or other allergens there which keep the trouble flourishing.

So before contemplating any such long stays, first consult your allergist to see what clues, if any, he can provide. Second, instead of plunging into a prolonged stay, make a test visit to one of the areas you have in mind and see whether a short stay begins to have any effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know about nicknamide, otherwise called nicotinic acid, for canker sores. My daughter has been having soreness inside the cheek for almost a year.—Mrs. G.

It is also called niacin, a member of the vitamin B complex family, which is essential for proper growth and good health.

Deficiency of this in older people often is accompanied by a cracking at the corners of the mouth. Niacin therapy is often helpful in such cases.

Unless your daughter is a very poor eater, I doubt that this is her problem. It would more likely be canker sores caused by either an allergy or a skin sensitivity to some foods — citrus juice, for example.

At any rate, your doctor could determine whether or not the cause is either an allergy or a deficient diet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know more about two types of cancer. I have had two removed from my lip called leukoplakia, and one on my forehead named actinic keratosis. I am very worried and want to know if this type of cancer can be controlled. Should I go to a cancer clinic? I am getting more places on my face.—F.H.

No, I don't think you need to seek out any special clinic. I also suspect you may be more upset than you need to be — not that these spots shouldn't be watched if and as they appear. But I doubt if they are as dangerous to you as you seem to fear.

Leukoplakia is the white thickening of the membrane lining of the mouth and lips (and can appear on other mucous surfaces, too). It is due to chronic irritation — smoking, heat of the smoke, jagged teeth, etc.

Not all patches of leukoplakia are cancerous. Rather they are regarded as potentially precancerous. They may develop into cancer. In advanced cases they can become quite thick, may have fissures (cracks), or may ulcerate. At that stage they possess a strong possibility of becoming cancerous and, of course, need to be removed.

Mild, faint patches of leukoplakia may, however, disappear if the irritation is removed.

Hence the rule is to watch such spots, and if your doctor or dentist sees suspicious changes, remove them.

Actinic keratoses are skin cancers due to excessive exposure to the sun, not uncommon in people who are outdoors a great deal — farmers, sportsmen, other outdoor workers, sun-worshipers.

These should be removed. But keep this in mind: they are visible; they are accessible; they can be seen in their early stages and removed easily before they have had a chance to spread.

When they are removed a laboratory test will determine whether they actually contain any cancer cells.

When your skin shows a tendency to develop such spots, by all means have them watched, but at the same time have high confidence that they can be removed before they really endanger you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When I took a physical for track, my blood pressure was 120/70. I am 11 years old. My great aunt said this was bad but my doctor says it is usual for 11 years old. Who is right?—D.M.

Your doctor is right. That pressure is quite normal for your age.

Why does the downtown Cornhusker Bank charge extra for cashing a check?

—Carrie DeVal, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Cornhusker Bank, 2834 No. 14th St., like many other banks in twon, charges non-customers for cashing checks, according to executive vice president, J. A. Mastera.

Mastera added, however, that if a check was drawn on an account in the bank, a non-customer would not be charged. Fee is 25 cents a $100.

I've heard there is a brilliant meteor display visible sometime in the middle of November. Will I be able to see it this year?

—Stargazer, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There's good news in sight, Stargazer. According to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor, a meteor shower in the Leonids (the constellation of Leo) will peak Nov. 17 at about 6 a.m.

Although only 15% of the meteors are expected to be visible, the professor reports that sometimes the display can be quite extraordinary. Nov. 17, 1966, the Leonids display showed 140 meteors a second.

The professor said about a dozen displays occur yearly. Nov. 4 a meteor shower appeared in the Taurids and on Nov. 14, a weaker shower will appear in the Andromedids.

Is there any place in Lincoln where a five-year-old girl could take baton twirling lessons?

—All-a-Twirl, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Batons are twirling all over Lincoln, but lessons are available only for the six-year-old. The next lesson for that age twirler under the supervision of Gary Cooper, begins in mid January at the city's five recreation centers.

For seven-year-olds, opportunities burgeon. Free lessons offered by the City Parks and Recreation Dept. begin in June at 10 locations.

Keep an eye out for publication of schedules and fees.

ACTION TIP: The Consumer Product Safety Commission has warned that some 200,000 household "trouble lights" or "mechanical lights" sold in the past year pose an imminent danger of fatal electric shock.

The light, which retails for about $1.50, bears no brand name, label or other distinguishing marks. Consumers uncertain whether they own the product should discontinue its use and contact the store where it was bought to see if it is the "trouble light" causing concern.

How do I apply for a job as a guide at the United Nations?

—Cindy Schultz, Seward

ACTION LINE: Becoming a guide for the United Nations many be difficult for a non-resident of New York. According to the Office of Personnel Services, guides are recruited on a local basis.

Application forms can only be obtained prior to an interview in the New York City office. An interview, usually scheduled in the fall, can be arranged by writing the United Nations, Room 1041, New York City, N.Y. 10017.

Guides must be female, 20-30 years old, have a college education or equivalent, speak English fluently and have a good speaking voice. Training for the job begins in March.

Commission To Develop Space Heater Safety Rules

Washington (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said it will develop safety rules for space heaters because the appliances present "an unreasonable risk of injury."

The agency said it will publish as soon as possible a notice of its intent to form such rules, inviting consumer groups and industry to participate in the project.

Commissioner Barbara Franklin said the project will cover all four general types of space heaters — gas, electric, solid fuel and liquid fuel.

"The commission does find that this class of products . . . does present an unreasonable risk of injury to consumers," she said.

The decision resulted from a petition presented to the agency early in the year by the Missouri Public Interest Group, one of the Ralph Nader-backed community-campus consumer organizations.

Bruce Hamilton New Commissioner

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

In what may be the most active campaign launched in a county commissioner race in many years, Democrat Bruce Hamilton Tuesday unseated veteran Commissioner Kenneth Bourne in the third district race.

Hamilton, a 32-year-old attorney, waged a door-to-door campaign for "progressive" county government and working toward consolidation with the city to eliminate what he saw as duplication and inefficiency.

Hamilton contended a strictly county government is outdated and antiquated and should be merged with municipal government.

Commissioner Bourne, on the board for 16 years, said he was "proud of my record as a full-time county commissioner."

Demo Trend'

Bourne told The Star he was a "little surprised at the outcome" but "it looks like a Democratic trend to me."

He said he thought that the active campaign launched by Hamilton would result in a close vote but not a defeat.

The second district race — apparently because of the heavy Democratic vote — was closer than expected but Republican Commissioner Robert Colin managed to gain 55% of the vote to defeat Democrat Ralph Harlan.

Colin, 53, seeking his second term on the board, emphasized the need for cooperation between the city and county and pointed to the progress made "toward better, more efficient government" since he became a board member four years ago.

Merger Opposed

Colin opposes city and county government merger. He says one government should contract with the other for services in which that particular government may have the greater expertise.

Harlan, a 72-year-old cattle feeder and builder from Hickman, served on the board for 12 years, being first elected in 1958.

He did not seek re-election four years ago when Colin was elected in order to run for the Railway Commission, which is now the Public Service Commission.

Unsuccessful in that bid, Harlan was hoping to get back on the board "to give the rural people some representation."

Harlan made a plea that spending should be limited in order to cut taxes.

He noted that many farmers, because of the drought and inflation, are facing problems which may make it difficult for them to pay their tax bills.

Kandra Hahn Defeats Clerk Of District Court

An ambitious campaign apparently resulted in Kandra Hahn upsetting Incumbent District Court Clerk Otis Nelson.

Nelson, who had worked in the office for 24 years, was making a bid for his second term as clerk.

Hahn, a 26-year-old journalist, who had a strong following of Democrats and the younger voters, is the second woman to be elected to a Lancaster County office. County Commissioner Jan Gauger was the first.

A graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Ms. Hahn was a reporter for the Lincoln Journal until she announced her candidacy for the court clerk's post in March.

The 63-year-old Nelson was first appointed in November, 1968, to fill the vacancy created by the death of his predecessor. He ran unopposed for his first term in 1970.

Nelson, when contacted by The Star, said he was "surprised and shocked" at his defeat but felt that a strong Democratic trend had a definite effect in county races.

He said he didn't think the Republicans "got out as strong" as they had in the past.

Nuernberger Leading Close Surveyor Race

Absentee ballots could determine the outcome of the Lancaster County surveyor race.

Petition candidate Marvin Nuernberger held a narrow margin over Chief Deputy Surveyor Henry Graff, a Democrat, and Republican candidate Nathaniel (Nate) W. Beezley.

There are 1,123 absentee and disabled ballots to be counted.

Nuernberger, executive director of the Lancaster County Railroad Transportation Safety District and a former state engineer, had first filed for the office prior to the primary but later withdrew when questions were raised about his candidacy being a possible violation of the Hatch Act.

Graff, who has served as chief deputy under retiring Surveyor Walter Hoppe for three years and is a former York County Surveyor, was holding a close second.

Beezley, who owns the Nate Beezley consulting engineering firm, charged his two opponents with violating the Hatch Act, which restricts candidacies by people in agencies which receive federal funds.

In other races:

—Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp easily defeated his Democratic opponent, Ed Pierce. Pierce, a 37-year-old fireman, also ran unsuccessfully against the 64-year-old sheriff four years ago. Karnopp, who has served as sheriff for 24 years, served as a deputy sheriff for eight years prior to his election to the sheriff's post. Johnny "Cash" Austin, who was defeated by Pierce in the primary, was an unsuccessful write-in candidate.

—Republican incumbent Kenneth Ferguson, was elected to his fifth term as register of deeds. His opponent, Deon Wunderlich, is a newcomer to the political scene.

—County Clerk Carl Hartman was again successful in regaining the position which he has held since 1959. Hartman, a Democrat, maintained a wide lead against his Republican challenger, John Wenzl, a real estate salesman from Denton.

Lahners Wins Attorney Post Despite 'Full Time' Argument

Chief Deputy Lancaster County Attorney Ronald Lahners overcame the "full-time" county attorney campaign battle waged by his democratic opponent Jack Lindner to succeed Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas as the chief law enforcement officer of the county.

Lahners, 40, has served in the county attorney's office for 13 years and as chief deputy since July, 1972.

Linder, also 40, served in the city attorney's office for seven years before going into private practice in Iowa. He recently returned to Lincoln and filed for the county attorney's post.

Lindner said that, if elected, he would discontinue private practice by the county attorney and his deputies.

Lahners said he was never known any of the attorneys in the county attorney's office to work less than 40 hours on county attorney duties, even while maintaining private practices.

He said that a private practice does not conflict with the county's legal business and that many times deputies and the county attorney are required to work up to 65 to 70 hours a week on county business without over-time pay.

Late in the campaign, Lahners said he had no objection to a law which takes effect in January, 1979, which prohibits private practice by the Lancaster County attorney.

He said such a change would require a transition period and that, if elected, he would attempt to get the salaries of deputies in that office increased "at a level commensurate with their professional abilities."

Lindner charged that since the community pays the county attorney and his staff full-time salaries, the community has a right to expect the county attorney and his staff to devote full time and energy to their duties and "refrain from all other professional activities."

Lahners pledged that "in no way will any outside activities interfere with my duties as county attorney."

Idle Funds Campaign Fails; Golden Returned As Treasurer

"Idle funds" and missing funds didn't stop Lancaster County Treasurer Frank Golden from winning re-election over Republican Dwane E. Wegner in Tuesday's general election.

Wegner, who had the support of Lancaster County Commissioner Jan Gauger, challenged Golden on his deposit practices, saying there were funds not deposited and not drawing interest for the county.

The 67-year-old Golden contended throughout the campaign that the charges levied against him by the 45-year-old real estate broker and insurance agent, were unfounded.

Golden said he had "made the county more money, kept more of the county's money working and kept it working more days, hours and minutes than ever before."

The vote indicated that Golden also overcame a possible obstacle created by $7,400 in missing funds from the motor vehicle division of that office.

Golden discovered a shortage in September and reported the matter to the county attorney and state auditor's office which has just completed an audit determining that the shortage was not a bookkeeping error.

Golden, who was first elected in 1970, was appointed in March, 1970, to fill the unexpired term of the late C. E. Berg. Prior to that time, Golden had served as deputy county clerk.

On Anti-Weed Board:

Pro-Weed Welsch Wins Seat

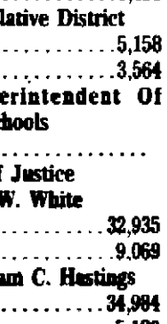

Roger Welsch entered the race for Lancaster County Weed Control Authority saying crazy things like people should eat milkweed pods as artichokes.

And he won.

In fact, he led the field of four candidates from which two were elected.

The apparent other winner late Tuesday night was C. V. Keller who was the last superintendent of the State Reformatory when he retired almost 10 years ago. Other candidates were Robert Weigel and Leslie L. Myers Sr.

Welsch, assistant professor of English at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, won his spot with a "pro-weed" platform.

Roger Welsch

'Weed no more my lady'

"If you can't beat 'em, eat 'em," he campaigned. Or: "Weed No More My Lady."

Welsch received national attention when he fed weed salad to CBS roving reporter Charles Kuralt, and when he won an endorsement from wild hickory nut-eating Euell Gibbons.

Gibbons said he endorsed Welsch because he felt the Nebraskan adequately appreciates diversity in plants and he liked Welsch's "grass-roots (pun intended)" campaign.

Welsch said his concern about weeds, especially his concern about weed killers, is genuine.

Two years ago the Weed Control Authority budgeted $450 for chemical sprays, he said; by spring of this year, it had budgeted $4,500.

"This is when it ceases to be a joke," he said.

Welsch campaigned on the promise that, if elected, he would stop spending money for sprays and start hiring kids to go out in ditches and hoe weeds.

"Kids with hoes don't drift," he said. "Sprays do."

Welsch is a former assistant professor of German at Nebraska Wesleyan University. He traveled in August as a folklorist to West Germany for the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

He is the author of "Shingling the Fog and Other Plains Lies," published in 1972, among other books.

Amendments Approved

By slim margins Lincoln voters Tuesday endorsed charter amendments dealing with the mayor's salary and the financing of city improvement projects.

Lincolnites narrowly lifted the charter provision requiring the mayor to take home a fatter paycheck than any of his department heads.

Absentee ballots could hold the key in the mayor's salary issue. Those ballots will be counted Thursday.

Present returns indicate that the City Council will be authorized by the voters to set the mayor's wage no later than the Jan. 1 preceding the beginning of each term of office. The rate of pay will stay the same throughout the four-year mayoral term.

City officials lobbied for the charter change on the grounds that the provision requiring the mayor to be paid more money has caused a bunching up of top department heads' salaries at a level just below the mayor's. The mayor now takes home $26,875 annually.

The League of Women Voters objected to changing the charter, arguing that the lifting of that provision would erode Lincoln's strong-mayor form of government. They mayor should maintain his role as the strong administrative chief of City Hall, the argument goes, by remaining the highest paid city official.

Voters also approved three other changes in the charter giving the City Council more control over financing.

Absentee ballots will not affect the results of those charter amendments votes.

The amendments will:

—remove the 7% interest ceiling on revenue bonds and allow the council to set the rates prior to the issuance of such bonds

—remove the 8% interest rate ceiling on special assessment revolving fund bonds and allow that rate to be determined by the council prior to the issuance of such bonds

—remove the 6% interest rate ceiling on unpaid special assessment installments and remove the 7% ceiling on unpaid delinquent installments and allow the council to set the rates

As a result of voter action Tuesday, the city now will be able to borrow money to finance capital improvements. The city has halted financing of such improvements because the present bond market has interest rates above the limits imposed by the charter.

Bruce Hamilton New Commissioner

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

In what may be the most active campaign launched in a county commissioner race in many years, Democrat Bruce Hamilton Tuesday unseated veteran Commissioner Kenneth Bourne in the third district race.

Hamilton, a 32-year-old attorney, waged a door-to-door campaign for "progressive" county government and working toward consolidation with the city to eliminate what he saw as duplication and inefficiency.

Hamilton contended a strictly county government is outdated and antiquated and should be merged with municipal government.

Commissioner Bourne, on the board for 16 years, said he was "proud of my record as a full-time county commissioner."

Demo Trend'

Bourne told The Star he was a "little surprised at the outcome" but "it looks like a Democratic trend to me."

He said he thought that the active campaign launched by Hamilton would result in a close vote but not a defeat.

The second district race — apparently because of the heavy Democratic vote — was closer than expected but Republican Commissioner Robert Colin managed to gain 55% of the vote to defeat Democrat Ralph Harlan.

Colin, 53, seeking his second term on the board, emphasized the need for cooperation between the city and county and pointed to the progress made "toward better, more efficient government" since he became a board member four years ago.

Merger Opposed

Colin opposes city and county government merger. He says one government should contract with the other for services in which that particular government may have the greater expertise.

Harlan, a 72-year-old cattle feeder and builder from Hickman, served on the board for 12 years, being first elected in 1958.

He did not seek re-election four years ago when Colin was elected in order to run for the Railway Commission, which is now the Public Service Commission.

Unsuccessful in that bid, Harlan was hoping to get back on the board "to give the rural people some representation."

Harlan made a plea that spending should be limited in order to cut taxes.

He noted that many farmers, because of the drought and inflation, are facing problems which may make it difficult for them to pay their tax bills.

Kandra Hahn Defeats Clerk Of District Court

An ambitious campaign apparently resulted in Kandra Hahn upsetting Incumbent District Court Clerk Otis Nelson.

Nelson, who had worked in the office for 24 years, was making a bid for his second term as clerk.

Hahn, a 26-year-old journalist, who had a strong following of Democrats and the younger voters, is the second woman to be elected to a Lancaster County office. County Commissioner Jan Gauger was the first.

A graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Ms. Hahn was a reporter for the Lincoln Journal until she announced her candidacy for the court clerk's post in March.

The 63-year-old Nelson was first appointed in November, 1968, to fill the vacancy created by the death of his predecessor. He ran unopposed for his first term in 1970.

Nelson, when contacted by The Star, said he was "surprised and shocked" at his defeat but felt that a strong Democratic trend had a definite effect in county races.

He said he didn't think the Republicans "got out as strong" as they had in the past.

Nuernberger Leading Close Surveyor Race

Absentee ballots could determine the outcome of the Lancaster County surveyor race.

Petition candidate Marvin Nuernberger held a narrow margin over Chief Deputy Surveyor Henry Graff, a Democrat, and Republican candidate Nathaniel (Nate) W. Beezley.

There are 1,123 absentee and disabled ballots to be counted.

Nuernberger, executive director of the Lancaster County Railroad Transportation Safety District and a former state engineer, had first filed for the office prior to the primary but later withdrew when questions were raised about his candidacy being a possible violation of the Hatch Act.

Graff, who has served as chief deputy under retiring Surveyor Walter Hoppe for three years and is a former York County Surveyor, was holding a close second.

Beezley, who owns the Nate Beezley consulting engineering firm, charged his two opponents with violating the Hatch Act, which restricts candidacies by people in agencies which receive federal funds.

In other races:

—Lancaster County Sheriff Merle Karnopp easily defeated his Democratic opponent, Ed Pierce. Pierce, a 37-year-old fireman, also ran unsuccessfully against the 64-year-old sheriff four years ago. Karnopp, who has served as sheriff for 24 years, served as a deputy sheriff for eight years prior to his election to the sheriff's post. Johnny "Cash" Austin, who was defeated by Pierce in the primary, was an unsuccessful write-in candidate.

—Republican incumbent Kenneth Ferguson, was elected to his fifth term as register of deeds. His opponent, Deon Wunderlich, is a newcomer to the political scene.

—County Clerk Carl Hartman was again successful in regaining the position which he has held since 1959. Hartman, a Democrat, maintained a wide lead against his Republican challenger, John Wenzl, a real estate salesman from Denton.

Lahners Wins Attorney Post Despite 'Full Time' Argument

Chief Deputy Lancaster County Attorney Ronald Lahners overcame the "full-time" county attorney campaign battle waged by his democratic opponent Jack Lindner to succeed Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas as the chief law enforcement officer of the county.

Lahners, 40, has served in the county attorney's office for 13 years and as chief deputy since July, 1972.

Linder, also 40, served in the city attorney's office for seven years before going into private practice in Iowa. He recently returned to Lincoln and filed for the county attorney's post.

Lindner said that, if elected, he would discontinue private practice by the county attorney and his deputies.

Lahners said he was never known any of the attorneys in the county attorney's office to work less than 40 hours on county attorney duties, even while maintaining private practices.

He said that a private practice does not conflict with the county's legal business and that many times deputies and the county attorney are required to work up to 65 to 70 hours a week on county business without over-time pay.

Late in the campaign, Lahners said he had no objection to a law which takes effect in January, 1979, which prohibits private practice by the Lancaster County attorney.

He said such a change would require a transition period and that, if elected, he would attempt to get the salaries of deputies in that office increased "at a level commensurate with their professional abilities."

Lindner charged that since the community pays the county attorney and his staff full-time salaries, the community has a right to expect the county attorney and his staff to devote full time and energy to their duties and "refrain from all other professional activities."

Lahners pledged that "in no way will any outside activities interfere with my duties as county attorney."

Idle Funds Campaign Fails; Golden Returned As Treasurer

"Idle funds" and missing funds didn't stop Lancaster County Treasurer Frank Golden from winning re-election over Republican Dwane E. Wegner in Tuesday's general election.

Wegner, who had the support of Lancaster County Commissioner Jan Gauger, challenged Golden on his deposit practices, saying there were funds not deposited and not drawing interest for the county.

The 67-year-old Golden contended throughout the campaign that the charges levied against him by the 45-year-old real estate broker and insurance agent, were unfounded.

Golden said he had "made the county more money, kept more of the county's money working and kept it working more days, hours and minutes than ever before."

The vote indicated that Golden also overcame a possible obstacle created by $7,400 in missing funds from the motor vehicle division of that office.

Golden discovered a shortage in September and reported the matter to the county attorney and state auditor's office which has just completed an audit determining that the shortage was not a bookkeeping error.

Golden, who was first elected in 1970, was appointed in March, 1970, to fill the unexpired term of the late C. E. Berg. Prior to that time, Golden had served as deputy county clerk.

Amendments Approved

By slim margins Lincoln voters Tuesday endorsed charter amendments dealing with the mayor's salary and the financing of city improvement projects.

Lincolnites narrowly lifted the charter provision requiring the mayor to take home a fatter paycheck than any of his department heads.

Absentee ballots could hold the key in the mayor's salary issue. Those ballots will be counted Thursday.

Present returns indicate that the City Council will be authorized by the voters to set the mayor's wage no later than the Jan. 1 preceding the beginning of each term of office. The rate of pay will stay the same throughout the four-year mayoral term.

City officials lobbied for the charter change on the grounds that the provision requiring the mayor to be paid more money has caused a bunching up of top department heads' salaries at a level just below the mayor's. The mayor now takes home $26,875 annually.

The League of Women Voters objected to changing the charter, arguing that the lifting of that provision would erode Lincoln's strong-mayor form of government. They mayor should maintain his role as the strong administrative chief of City Hall, the argument goes, by remaining the highest paid city official.

Voters also approved three other changes in the charter giving the City Council more control over financing.

Absentee ballots will not affect the results of those charter amendments votes.

The amendments will:

—remove the 7% interest ceiling on revenue bonds and allow the council to set the rates prior to the issuance of such bonds.

—remove the 8% interest rate ceiling on special assessment revolving fund bonds and allow that rate to be determined by the council prior to the issuance of such bonds.

—remove the 6% interest rate ceiling on unpaid special assessment installments and remove the 7% ceiling on unpaid delinquent installments and allow the council to set the rates.

As a result of voter action Tuesday, the city now will be able to borrow money to finance capital improvements. The city has halted financing of such improvements because the present bond market has interest rates above the limits imposed by the charter.

Mastera added, however, that if a check was drawn on an account in the bank, a non-customer would not be charged. Fee is 25 cents a $100.

I've heard there is a brilliant meteor display visible sometime in the middle of November. Will I be able to see it this year?

—Stargazer, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There's good news in sight, Stargazer. According to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor, a meteor shower in the Leonids (the constellation of Leo) will peak Nov. 17 at about 6 a.m.

Although only 15% of the meteors are expected to be visible, the professor reports that sometimes the display can be quite extraordinary. Nov. 17, 1966, the Leonids display showed 140 meteors a second.

The professor said about a dozen displays occur yearly. Nov. 4 a meteor shower appeared in the Taurids and on Nov. 14, a weaker shower will appear in the Andromedids.

Commission To Develop Space Heater Safety Rules

Washington (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said it will develop safety rules for space heaters because the appliances present "an unreasonable risk of injury."

The agency said it will publish as soon as possible a notice of its intent to form such rules, inviting consumer groups and industry to participate in the project.

Commissioner Barbara Franklin said the project will cover all four general types of space heaters — gas, electric, solid fuel and liquid fuel.

"The commission does find that this class of products . . . does present an unreasonable risk of injury to consumers," she said.

The decision resulted from a petition presented to the agency early in the year by the Missouri Public Interest Group, one of the Ralph Nader-backed community-campus consumer organizations.

Merle Beattie Class Holds Exciting Election

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

It was a heated campaign, with issues ranging from gum in the classrooms to safety on the playgrounds.

The six young candidates running on the Whig, Tory and Independent (write-in) tickets for class offices of the sixth grade classroom at Merle Beattie school were visibly excited as the hour of balloting grew nearer.

But the excitement was not theirs alone.

Many of the 100 sixth-graders in the unit sported paper campaign buttons for their favorite team. Virtually all were involved in the election which marked the culmination of a three-week unit on the democratic political process.

Both sides of a hallway were lined with campaign posters. "Sackett and Myers Arn't (sic) Liers" — "Cotter Isn't Crummy" — "Dale Won't Fail" — "Happiness is Cotter and Gottsche."

But there were more than slogans and smiles involved in this election.

Each of the young voters followed the election process through by filling out pre-registration forms, formulating, party planks, volunteering to make posters for candidates and voting by secret ballot.

Before casting their own votes, the group had a chance to see some real voting in action at the polling station set up in the school for Tuesday's statewide elections.

Whig candidate for president Dale Sackett, lamented that the election was like Watergate — "with a lot of things covered up." He was specifically referring to some of his poster paper which he said got "ripped off."

Before the election, Dale couldn't pick out the highlight of the campaign. "The best part isn't here yet," the candidate said. "It's not until you win the election."

And win he did.

Henry Petersen Resigns; Relayed Reports To Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry E. Petersen, who directed the early Watergate investigation and relayed reports of grand jury progress to former President Richard M. Nixon, is resigning as assistant attorney general, a White House spokesman announced Tuesday.

Petersen will leave the Justice Department Dec. 31 after 27 years. His most recent assignment has been directing the criminal division.

President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Petersen "decided to resign on his own" and had not been asked to leave.

No replacement has been chosen, Nessen said. Petersen, 53, has not indicated his plans for the future.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe praised his record and regretted Petersen's decision.

"We feel a profound gratitude and admiration for his 27 years of dedicated, conscientious service," Saxbe said.

AP

"His decision to retire is completely his own, and I believe he can look back on many notable achievements."

"He is more than any other man the architect of the federal government's highly effective enforcement program against organized crime — an effort that will benefit the nation for years to come," Saxbe said.

Petersen's resignation letter to Ford was dated Friday and was accepted Monday by Ford.

The President lauded Petersen for "a record of unique achievement."

Petersen was in charge of the Watergate investigation before the first special prosecutor was appointed in May, 1973. The White House Watergate transcripts released last spring showed that Petersen regularly informed Nixon about the grand jury proceedings.

While announcing Petersen's resignation, Nessen was asked whether Ford would replace Arthur Sampson as head of the General Services Administration.

"There's been no decision made to replace Mr. Sampson," Nessen said.

A reporter suggested that the reply implied that the matter was under active consideration and Nessen said: "You will have to infer what you want."

59 Democrats And 1 Republican In House Sure To Be Re-Elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-nine Democrats and one Republican in the House were virtually assured of re-election Tuesday even before the polls opened. They had no major party opposition.

In addition, three Democratic members of the Senate had only token opposition.

A check of voting records showed that a score of the House members have been staunch ideological foes of President Ford and at least seven were consistent supporters of the President.

The senators with only token opposition were Russell B. Long of Louisiana, James B. Allen of Alabama and Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii. All three voted to confirm Ford as vice president. Allen and Inouye voted to cut off U.S. military aid to Turkey, defying a Ford veto threat. Long supported Ford on that vote.

In the House, the one Republican without Democratic opposition was Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr. of Ohio.

Unopposed Democrats included House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon of Texas, who have criticized Ford's economic proposals but often agreed with him on other issues.

Among the Democratic group also was House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., of Massachusetts, who had opposition from Communist and U. S. Labor party candidates. O'Neill opposed Ford on Turkish aid and has made frequent speeches against Ford's economic proposals.

Thirty-eight of the Democrats with no major party opposition were from the South, including eight from Texas, six from Florida, five from Louisiana and four from Alabama. Among the others, six were from Massachusetts, five from New York and five from California.

Dreary Weather Widespread Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Dreary weather conditions were widespread Tuesday as voters participated in off-year elections.

Rain, drizzle and some snow continued in some areas through much of the day.

Light snow sifted into parts of the upper Mississippi Valley. One inch of snow fell at Mason City, Iowa.

Showers and thunderstorms ranged from western Indiana through Alabama. Scattered rain systems lingered over the Northeast and in the central Great Lakes area.

There were scattered showers in Northern California and rain and drizzle in parts of Oregon and Washington.

Morning temperatures in the 30s reached as far south as central Texas and Arkansas. It was below freezing in the northern half of the plains and most of the Rockies.

The mid and lower Atlantic Coast states and the eastern Gulf Coast states were relatively warm with readings in the 60s.

Heist Suspect Nabbed

Las Vegas, Nev., (UPI)—Johnnie White, 28, was arrested by federal agents as a suspect in the holdup of a savings and loans office in Minnesota last month.

Where Was 'Happy Days'?

DENVER (AP) — When KLZ disc jockey Mike McKuen asked his Tuesday morning radio listeners to call in and request songs for election day, he had no idea the responses would be so appropriate.

Among the songs requested were "Yakety Yak," "It's Crying Time Again," "What Kind of Fool Am I," "You Are the Devil in Disguise," "Fame and Fortune," "Shaft," "If I Ruled the World" and "Get A Job."

Connecticut Elects Woman

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Democratic Congresswoman Ella Grasso was elected governor of Connecticut on Tuesday, the first woman in the history of the United States to win a gubernatorial election in her own right.

Mrs. Grasso, 55, handily defeated Republican Congressman Robert Steele, 36.

With 71 per cent of the precincts reporting, Mrs. Grasso had 423,733 votes or 61 per cent. Steele had 274,989 or 39 per cent.

In the Senate race, incumbent Democrat Abraham Ribicoff defeated Republican challenger James Brannen, a black state legislator and airline pilot.

With 68 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ribicoff had 417,324 votes or 66 per cent to Brannen's 215,878 or 34 per cent.

In congressional races, Democrats won two of the state's six districts and led in a third. The other races were too close to call.

In the gubernatorial campaign, Mrs. Grasso's sex was an unspoken issue.

"There's a fine line you can't cross," Steele said once. "You can't look like you're hitting a lady."

Mrs. Grasso contended that the voters didn't care what sex she was and said she was disappointed at the competition Steele gave her.

In the final weeks of the campaign, both candidates said soaring electric bills was the key issue.

Mrs. Grasso became the fourth woman governor in the nation's history, but her three predecessors succeeded their husbands in office. The most recent was the late Lurleen Wallace, the first wife of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Wallace Wins His Third Term

BIRMINGHAM Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace, reelected Tuesday for an unprecedented third term as governor of Alabama, hinted strongly at another presidential race, and not necessarily as a Democrat.

"I do have plans," he said in a television interview after his victory. He said those plans will be dictated by the wishes of the people in the months to come. He said he plans to remain in the national Democratic party "provided it doesn't get overtaken by the new left like it did in 1972."

Wallace said the nation is "fed up" now and the Democrats need to "relate to the average citizen and his tax burden."

The 55-year-old partially paralyzed Democrat had only token opposition from former state Sen. Elvin McCary, a Republican repudiated by his own party leaders, and from Jim Partain, the politically unknown nominee of the Prohibition party.

Also reelected was U.S. Sen. James B. Allen, another Democrat. He easily outdistanced his only challenger, prohibitionist Alvin Abercrombie.

Other Democrats on the ballot in the statewide election also ran ahead. They were heavily favored from the outset, partly because of Watergate and partly because of the state's traditional allegiance to the Democratic party. In the past century, no other party has ever won a statewide election.

Wallace's fellow townsman, Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley of Clayton, also won his race for reelection. Alabama for only the second time in its history has a governor and lieutenant governor from the same county.

Beasley defeated Republican Donald Collins, one of the GOP leaders who tried in vain to get McCary out of the governor's race.

Wallace, who carried five states as a third party candidate in 1968 and was wounded in an assassination attempt while campaigning for the Democratic nomination four years later, may try it again in 1976.

He has declined to say what part, if any, he will play in the next presidential election, but his national campaign beadquarters is still in operation and visibly soliciting contributions.

However, Wallace has voiced discontent over the proposed new Democratic party charter and has hinted at another third party campaign unless the party pays more attention to "the average American."

Thone To Work On 3 Issues

Congressman Charles Thone early Wednesday pledged to give priority consideration to three major issues: inflation, farm income and a national health program.

In the wake of his re-election victory, Thone said he will press "an intensified effort to stem the tide of inflation."

As for national health care, Thone said chief consideration should be given to some form of program for catastrophic illnesses.

Thone said he was pleased with his victory, "especially in view of the national political scene" which produced a host of Democratic gains elsewhere.

"We were aware we had problems," the Republican noted. "We intensified our efforts. We had more volunteers working throughout the district than ever before. And the effort obviously paid off."

Thone declined to look ahead to a possible Senate race later in the decade. "I've got my hands full being a responsible congressman," he said.

Exon Pleased

Gov. J. James Exon early Wednesday said his re-election triumph was most pleasing because "the vote was positive, strong and uniform all across the state."

That kind of statewide support "confirms that our administration's efforts to unify Nebraska are working," the governor said.

"To the wonderful people of this state, let me just say a simple and humble 'thank you' for your tremendous support and vote of confidence."

Now, he said, it is "time for all of us to put aside any possible frustrations as we all work together to further Nebraska, the good life."

3 Incumbent State Senators Win Re-Election In Lincoln

Roland Luedtke

Harold Simpson

Wally Barnett

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

In Lincoln legislative races Tuesday, all three incumbents won re-election by comfortable margins.

Sen. Roland Luedtke overcame a strong challenge from Ms. Marge Schlitt, a 40-year-old homemaker and teacher aide. Final vote totals showed Luedtke with 5,158 votes and Ms. Schlitt with 3,564 votes.

Ms. Schlitt's well-organized campaign stressed tax reform, strict monitoring of lobbyists, limits on campaign spending and contributions, a ban on no-return bottles and improved child care centers.

She criticized Luedtke for refusing to support a bill during the 1975 Legislature which would have restricted lobbyists, and for failing to gain approval for brick-and-mortar improvements at the State Penitentiary.

Luedtke stressed his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee in his re-election bid. Under Luedtke, the committee became one of the Legislature's most active, promoting legislation to improve the state penal program and updating the probate and criminal codes.

A former deputy secretary of state, Luedtke was also Lancaster County GOP chairman. Ms. Schlitt is a Democrat and Sierra Club member.

Ms. Schlitt mounted an intensive door-to-door campaign across her district during the months leading up to the general election.

Luedtke tried to broaden his appeal to voters by coming out in favor of community mental health programs, improved juvenile justice procedures, coordination of higher education, better retirement programs for state employes and a reform of the Nebraska Corrupt Practices Act, which deals with lobbyists.

In northeast Lincoln, incumbent Sen. Wally Barnett also defeated a Democratic challenger, Jim Kubert.

Barnett, a 43-year-old salesman of musical instruments, led Kubert, 5,476 to 2,506.

Prior to the election, Barnett appeared confident of his win. As a lifelong Lincoln resident, he said, "I have a true feeling of the majority of the people in this city and in my district."

Barnett's legislative concerns included better juvenile justice procedures, women's rights, improved highway safety efforts and better treatment in the state's mental institutions.

Kubert, 31, is a Lincoln realtor and a Vietnam veteran. His chief concerns included district elections for Lincoln City Council offices, more equitable taxation and better vocational education. He opposed an increase in the usury ceiling.

The third Lincoln incumbent, Sen. Harold Simpson, was unopposed for re-election. Simpson, a worker at Gooch's Mill, is regarded as a top contender for speaker of the Unicameral. He has served in the Legislature since 1967 and is a member of the Appropriations Committee.

At 48, Simpson, who usually sports a smile and a bow tie, has promoted legislation to benefit the working person, such as increasing the minimum wage, and aid to education. His district is in North Lincoln.

Democrat Defeats Rocky's Successor

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrat Hugh L. Carey defeated Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson, Nelson A. Rockefeller's handpicked successor, in Tuesday's election, ending a 16-year Rockefeller Republican reign in Albany.

Three-term Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, 70, fighting to escape the GOP Watergate burden that was sinking Wilson, defeated former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, 46.

The turnout was heavier than expected on a dark, rainy day. With 8.2 million eligible, it appeared the vote would near the 6.1 million cast in 1970.

Carey was leading Wilson 3 to 1 in New York and running even in scattered upstate returns.

The closing hours of the campaign saw Carey hammering at economic issues and accusing Wilson of timidity with respect to his party's national scandal. Wilson countered with pleas to voters to regard Watergate and the pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon as "non-issues" in the state campaign.

Wilson called Carey a man "who hasn't had five minutes' experience in state government." He compared this with his nearly 36 years in Albany, 15 of which were spent as Rockefeller's lieutenant governor and this one as his successor after the vice president-designate resigned last December.

Javits, too, sought to put distance between himself and Watergate in an advertising campaign in which he pictured himself as having opposed Nixon on abuse of presidential power. Javits hit at Clark's judgment, particularly his 1972 wartime trip to North Vietnam, where he condemned U.S. bombing.

Clark, who scored a primary victory and ran his general campaign with a $100 individual contribution limit, made an issue of Javits' acceptance of large contributions from business and finance sources and from Rockefeller.

Ohio Sends John Glenn To Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrat John Glenn, the former astronaut who defied his party leadership to win the U.S. Senate nomination, won the seat Tuesday by defeating Republican Mayor Ralph J. Perk of Cleveland.

Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan was leading in a tight contest with former Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes in the scramble for the Ohio statehouse. NBC projected Gilligan would win.

On the basis of early returns, Glenn led Perk in both urban and rural areas, and was strongly ahead in Cleveland, Perk's home town.

Glenn declined to claim the victory so soon. "Things look pretty good, of course," said Glenn, but he added, "We're waiting for the final vote to come in." A Perk spokesman declined to concede, saying, "We want to wait and see what happens downstate."

While Glenn didn't claim the victory, a 460-pound victory cake was on display at his downtown headquarters.

3 Towns Nix Fluoridation

DeWitt, Edgar and Dunning voted to exempt themselves from state fluoridation requirements in balloting Tuesday.

The three towns were the first to report vote totals out of more than 100 towns facing the fluoridation issue. State law requiring municipal fluoridation gave opponents the opportunity to bring the issue to a vote through the petition process before Jan. 1, 1975.

Voters in DeWitt defeated fluoridation 104-78, while Edgar voters turned it down by two votes, 137-135. Fluoridation lost by 64-24 in Dunning.

Unicam Results Skimpy

Latest returns indicated incumbent state senators in 14 races were making strong showings in their bids for re-election.

However, there will be at least 10 new faces in the 1975 Legislature due to the fact that there are no incumbents in 10 races.

In the closely watched race in Scottsbluff, former Sen. Terry Carpenter received 2,473 write-in votes out of 7,811 cast in 24 of 26 precincts.

It was not known if that put Carpenter in the lead since county election officials had not tallied the votes cast for William Nichol and Ben Wilson, the two other candidates in that race.

Here are the vote totals available for legislative races outside Lancaster County:

Gary Hart Defeats Dominick

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart, who managed George McGovern's disastrous presidential campaign two years ago, shed an extremist image and defeated Republican incumbent Peter Dominick for the U.S. Senate from Colorado Tuesday.

In the gubernatorial race, state legislator Richard Lamm, a Democrat, defeated Republican Gov. John Vanderhoof in a close race.

Democratic Reps. Frank Evans and Patricia Schroeder won easy victories. Republican Rep. William Armstrong won reelection but two other Republican incumbents, Donald Brotzman and James Johnson, were inclose races.

McGovern Heads Off Ex-POW

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., rebounded Tuesday from his disastrous 1972 presidential bid to win a third term.

McGovern took control of the race early and withstood a challenge from former prisoner of war Leo Thorsness of Sioux Falls, who retired from the U.S. Air Force after 23 years to try to unseat the two-term Democrat.

Thorsness accused McGovern of ignoring South Dakota interests except in election years, but McGovern said his 12 years of Senate experience and second-ranking position on the Senate's Agriculture Committee were valuable assets for the state.

Democratic Gov. Richard Kneip became the first man in state history to win a third term as governor, outpolling Republican John Olson, who had accused Kneip of massive state spending and hiring practices.

Republican Rep. James Abdnor piled up a 18,865-9,577 vote margin with 28% counted over his Democratic challenger, Jack Weiland, and won a second term as 2nd District congressman.

In the state's 1st District, Republican newcomer Larry Pressler was holding the possibility of an upset, leading incumbent Democrat Rep. Frank Denholm in nearly every part of the district with 57% of the vote.

Lines Cause Delays At Some Polls

Voters had to stand in line for more than an hour in some Lancaster County precincts to cast their votes in Tuesday's general election which saw a heavy Democratic turn-out at the polls.

Election Commissioner Bill Davidson said the polls were packed from 5 p.m. on and that in some instances "people walked out in disgust" because of the long lines.

Davidson attributed the back-up at some precincts not only to a heavy turn-out, but to a lengthy ballot.

"People had to make some 70 to 80 choices today," he said.

About 55% of the county's 89,966 registered voters cast ballots Tuesday. A total of 49,269 people voted.

Davidson attributed the heavier than expected turn-out Lancaster County Democrats, who like their counterparts across the nation, flooded the polls Tuesday in the first national election since Watergate.

But in Lancaster County, Davidson said, it appeared voters were "picking and chosing" candidates across party lines since some key Republicans won the election.

Gamblers Lose In New Jersey

Trenton, N.J. (UPI) — A ballot proposal to legalize casino gambling in New Jersey was defeated Tuesday despite a half-million-dollar promotional campaign by Atlantic City business interests where the casinos would be located.

Mills Prevails

©The New York Times

Little Rock, Ark. — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, won reelection early Wednesday, but by a smaller margin than he had expected.

Fighting back after an embarrassing late-night incident in Washington last month, he got about 56% of the vote to defeat his hard-working Republican opponent, Mrs. Judy Petty.

Anti-Aid Ad Violates Law—Beermann

Albion (AP) — Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Tuesday a political advertisement in the Albion publication apparently violated Nebraska's Corrupt Practices Act.

The ad in The Shopper, Oct. 29, opposed LB772, the state aid to education bill that went before voters Tuesday.

Beermann said the advertisement did not identify its sponsors. He said political ads for individuals must contain the name and address of at least one sponsor, and those by committees must carry names and addresses of two sponsors. He said none were listed in the ad in The Shopper.

Dennis McCoig of Genoa said he was co-cnairman of an organization known as "Citizens Opposed to LB772," which sponsored the dvertisement. The other co-chairman was identified as Roger Nelson of Genoa.

McCoig said about 20 residents of Genoa and Fullerton are members of the organization. He said there had been no intention "of hoodwinking anyone" by omitting names of the ad's sponsors.

Paul Thies, publisher of The Shopper, said he had thought the ad was proper and he had seen "many unsigned political advertisements in newspapers."

Beermann said only sponsors of the ad, not the publication, would be subject to prosecution under the misdemeanor statute involved.

Boone County Atty. Ray Medlin was not available for comment.

26% Unaware

Texarkana, Ark. (UPI) — A poll of 200 persons on the Texas and Arkansas sides of the border city showed 26% were unaware of Tuesday's election.

Connecticut Elects Woman

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Democratic Congresswoman Ella Grasso was elected governor of Connecticut on Tuesday, the first woman in the history of the United States to win a gubernatorial election in her own right.

Mrs. Grasso, 55, handily defeated Republican Congressman Robert Steele, 36.

With 71 per cent of the precincts reporting, Mrs. Grasso had 423,733 votes or 61 per cent. Steele had 274,985 or 39 per cent.

In the Senate race, incumbent Democrat Abraham Ribicoff defeated Republican challenger James Brannen, a black state legislator and airline pilot.

With 68 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ribicoff had 417,324 votes or 66 per cent to Brannen's 215,878 or 34 per cent.

In congressional races, Democrats won two of the state's six districts and led in a third. The other races were too close to call.

In the gubernatorial campaign, Mrs. Grasso's sex was an unspoken issue.

"There's a fine line you can't cross," Steele said once. "You can't look like you're hitting a lady."

Mrs. Grasso contended that the voters didn't care what sex she was and said she was disappointed at the competition Steele gave her.

In the final weeks of the campaign, both candidates said soaring electric bills was the key issue.

Mrs. Grasso became the fourth woman governor in the nation's history, but her three predecessors succeeded their husbands in office. The most recent was the late Lurleen Wallace, the first wife of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Wallace Wins His Third Term

BIRMINGHAM Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace, reelected Tuesday for an unprecedented third term as governor of Alabama, hinted strongly at another presidential race, and not necessarily as a Democrat.

"I do have plans," he said in a television interview after his victory. He said those plans will be dictated by the wishes of the people in the months to come. He said he plans to remain in the national Democratic party "provided it doesn't get overtaken by the new left like it did in 1972."

Wallace said the nation is "fed up" now and the Democrats need to "relate to the average citizen and his tax burden."

The 55-year-old partially paralyzed Democrat had only token opposition from former state Sen. Elvin McCary, a Republican repudiated by his own party leaders, and from Jim Partain, the politically unknown nominee of the Prohibition party.

Also reelected was U.S. Sen. James B. Allen, another Democrat. He easily outdistanced his only challenger, prohibitionist Alvin Abercrombie.

Other Democrats on the ballot in the statewide election also ran ahead. They were heavily favored from the outset, partly because of Watergate and partly because of the state's traditional allegiance to the Democratic party. In the past century, no other party has ever won a statewide election.

Wallace's fellow townsman, Lt. Gov. Jere Beasley of Clayton, also won his race for reelection. Alabama for only the second time in its history has a governor and lieutenant governor from the same county.

Beasley defeated Republican Donald Collins, one of the GOP leaders who tried in vain to get McCary out of the governor's race.

Wallace, who carried five states as a third party candidate in 1968 and was wounded in an assassination attempt while campaigning for the Democratic nomination four years later, may try it again in 1976.

He has declined to say what part, if any, he will play in the next presidential election, but his national campaign headquarters is still in operation and visibly soliciting contributions.

However, Wallace has voiced discontent over the proposed new Democratic party charter and has hinted at another third party campaign unless the party pays more attention to "the average American."

Democrat Defeats Rocky's Successor

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrat Hugh L. Carey defeated Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson, Nelson A. Rockefeller's handpicked successor, in Tuesday's election, ending a 16-year Rockefeller Republican reign in Albany.

Three-term Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits, 70, fighting to escape the GOP Watergate burden that was sinking Wilson, defeated former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, 46.

The turnout was heavier than expected on a dark, rainy day. With 8.2 million eligible, it appeared the vote would near the 6.1 million cast in 1970.

Carey was leading Wilson 3 to 1 in New York and running even in scattered upstate returns.

The closing hours of the campaign saw Carey hammering at economic issues and accusing Wilson of timidity with respect to his party's national scandal. Wilson countered with pleas to voters to regard Watergate and the pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon as "non-issues" in the state campaign.

Wilson called Carey a man "who hasn't had five minutes' experience in state government." He compared this with his nearly 36 years in Albany, 15 of which were spent as Rockefeller's lieutenant governor and this one as his successor after the vice president-designate resigned last December.

Javits, too, sought to put distance between himself and Watergate in an advertising campaign in which he pictured himself as having opposed Nixon on abuse of presidential power. Javits hit at Clark's judgment, particularly his 1972 wartime trip to North Vietnam, where he condemned U.S. bombing.

Clark, who scored a primary victory and ran his general campaign with a $100 individual contribution limit, made an issue of Javits' acceptance of large contributions from business and finance sources and from Rockefeller.

Ohio Sends John Glenn To Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrat John Glenn, the former astronaut who defied his party leadership to win the U.S. Senate nomination, won the seat Tuesday by defeating Republican Mayor Ralph J. Perk of Cleveland.

Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan was leading in a tight contest with former Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes in the scramble for the Ohio statehouse. NBC projected Gilligan would win.

On the basis of early returns, Glenn led Perk in both urban and rural areas, and was strongly ahead in Cleveland, Perk's home town.

Glenn declined to claim the victory so soon. "Things look pretty good, of course," said Glenn, but he added, "We're waiting for the final vote to come in." A Perk spokesman declined to concede, saying, "We want to wait and see what happens downstate."

While Glenn didn't claim the victory, a 460-pound victory cake was on display at his downtown headquarters.

3 Towns Nix Fluoridation

DeWitt, Edgar and Dunning voted to exempt themselves from state fluoridation requirements in balloting Tuesday.

The three towns were the first to report vote totals out of more than 100 towns facing the fluoridation issue. State law requiring municipal fluoridation gave opponents the opportunity to bring the issue to a vote through the petition process before Jan. 1, 1975.

Voters in DeWitt defeated fluroidation 164-76, while Edgar voters turned it down by two votes, 137-135. Fluoridation lost by 64-24 in Dunning.

Thone To Work On 3 Issues

Congressman Charles Thone early Wednesday pledged to give priority consideration to three major issues: inflation, farm income and a national health program.

In the wake of his re-election victory, Thone said he will press "an intensified effort to stem the tide of inflation."

As for national health care, Thone said chief consideration should be given to some form of program for catastrophic illnesses.

Thone said he was pleased with his victory, "especially in view of the national political scene" which produced a host of Democratic gains elsewhere.

"We were aware we had problems," the Republican noted. "We intensified our efforts. We had more volunteers working throughout the district than ever before. And the effort obviously paid off."

Thone declined to look ahead to a possible Senate race later in the decade. "I've got my hands full being a responsible congressman," he said.

Exon Pleased

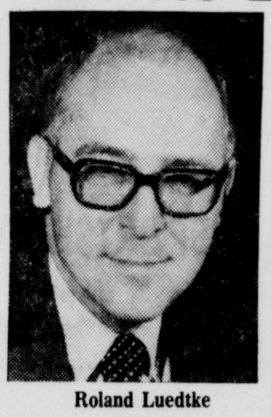

Gov. J. James Exon early Wednesday said his re-election triumph was most pleasing because "the vote was positive, strong and uniform all across the state."

That kind of statewide support "confirms that our administration's efforts to unify Nebraska are working," the governor said.

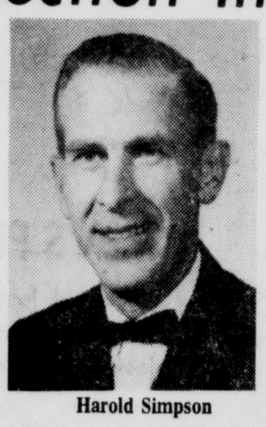

"To the wonderful people of this state, let me just say a simple and humble 'thank you' for your tremendous support and vote of confidence."

Now, he said, it is "time for all of us to put aside any possible frustrations as we all work together to further Nebraska, the good life."

3 Incumbent State Senators Win Re-Election In Lincoln

Roland Luedtke

Harold Simpson

Wally Barnett

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

In Lincoln legislative races Tuesday, all three incumbents won re-election by comfortable margins.

Sen. Roland Luedtke overcame a strong challenge from Ms. Marge Schlitt, a 40-year-old homemaker and teacher aide. Final vote totals showed Luedtke with 5,158 votes and Ms. Schlitt with 3,564 votes.

Ms. Schlitt's well-organized campaign stressed tax reform, strict monitoring of lobbyists, limits on campaign spending and contributions, a ban on no-return bottles and improved child care centers.

She criticized Luedtke for refusing to support a bill during the 1975 Legislature which would have restricted lobbyists, and for failing to gain approval for brick-and-mortar improvements at the State Penitentiary.

Luedtke stressed his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee in his re-election bid. Under Luedtke, the committee became one of the Legislature's most active, promoting legislation to improve the state penal program and updating the probate and criminal codes.

A former deputy secretary of state, Luedtke was also Lancaster County GOP chairman. Ms. Schlitt is a Democrat and Sierra Club member.

Ms. Schlitt mounted an intensive door-to-door campaign across her district during the months leading up to the general election.

Luedtke tried to broaden his appeal to voters by coming out in favor of community mental health programs, improved juvenile justice procedures, coordination of higher education, better retirement programs for state employes and a reform of the Nebraska Corrupt Practices Act, which deals with lobbyists.

In northeast Lincoln, incumbent Sen. Wally Barnett also defeated a Democratic challenger, Jim Kubert.

Barnett, a 43-year-old salesman of musical instruments, led Kubert, 5,476 to 2,506.

Prior to the election, Barnett appeared confident of his win. As a lifelong Lincoln resident, he said, "I have a true feeling of the majority of the people in this city and in my district."

Barnett's legislative concerns included better juvenile justice procedures, women's rights, improved highway safety efforts and better treatment in the state's mental institutions.

Kubert, 31, is a Lincoln realtor and a Vietnam veteran. His chief concerns included district elections for Lincoln City Council offices, more equitable taxation and better vocational education. He opposed an increase in the usury ceiling.

The third Lincoln incumbent, Sen. Harold Simpson, was unopposed for re-election. Simpson, a worker at Gooch's Mill, is regarded as a top contender for speaker of the Unicameral. He has served in the Legislature since 1967 and is a member of the Appropriations Committee.

At 48, Simpson, who usually sports a smile and a bow tie, has promoted legislation to benefit the working person, such as increasing the minimum wage, and aid to education. His district is in North Lincoln.

Unicam Results Skimpy

Latest returns indicated incumbent state senators in 14 races were making strong showings in their bids for re-election.

However, there will be at least 10 new faces in the 1975 Legislature due to the fact that there are no incumbents in 10 races.

In the closely watched race in Scottsbluff, former Sen. Terry Carpenter received 2,473 write-in votes out of 7,811 cast in 24 of 26 precincts.

It was not known if that put Carpenter in the lead since county election officials had not tallied the votes cast for William Nichol and Ben Wilson, the two other candidates in that race.

Here are the vote totals available for legislative races outside Lancaster County:

Gary Hart Defeats Dominick

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart, who managed George McGovern's disastrous presidential campaign two years ago, shed an extremist image and defeated Republican incumbent Peter Dominick for the U.S. Senate from Colorado Tuesday.

In the gubernatorial race, state legislator Richard Lamm, a Democrat, defeated Republican Gov. John Vanderhoof in a close race.

Democratic Reps. Frank Evans and Patricia Schroeder won easy victories. Republican Rep. William Armstrong won reelection but two other Republican incumbents, Donald Brotzman and James Johnson, were inclose races.

McGovern Heads Off Ex-POW

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., rebounded Tuesday from his disastrous 1972 presidential bid to win a third term.

McGovern took control of the race early and withstood a challenge from former prisoner of war Leo Thorsness of Sioux Falls, who retired from the U.S. Air Force after 23 years to try to unseat the two-term Democrat.

Thorsness accused McGovern of ignoring South Dakota interests except in election years, but McGovern said his 12 years of Senate experience and second-ranking position on the Senate's Agriculture Committee were valuable assets for the state.

Democratic Gov. Richard Kneip became the first man in state history to win a third term as governor, outpolling Republican John Olson, who had accused Kneip of massive state spending and hiring practices.

Republican Rep. James Abdnor piled up a 18,865-9,577 vote margin with 28% counted over his Democratic challenger, Jack Weiland, and won a second term as 2nd District congressman.

In the state's 1st District, Republican newcomer Larry Pressler was holding the possibility of an upset, leading incumbent Democrat Rep. Frank Denholm in nearly every part of the district with 57% of the vote.

Lines Cause Delays At Some Polls

Voters had to stand in line for more than an hour in some Lancaster County precincts to cast their votes in Tuesday's general election which saw a heavy Democratic turn-out at the polls.

Election Commissioner Bill Davidson said the polls were packed from 5 p.m. on and that in some instances "people walked out in disgust" because of the long lines.

Davidson attributed the back-up at some precincts not only to a heavy turn-out, but to a lengthy ballot.

"People had to make some 70 to 80 choices today," he said.

About 55% of the county's 89,966 registered voters cast ballots Tuesday. A total of 49,269 people voted.

Davidson attributed the heavier than expected turn-out Lancaster County Democrats, who like their counterparts across the nation, flooded the polls Tuesday in the first national election since Watergate.

But in Lancaster County, Davidson said, it appeared voters were "picking and chosing" candidates across party lines since some key Republicans won the election.

Gamblers Lose In New Jersey

Trenton, N.J. (UPI) — A ballot proposal to legalize casino gambling in New Jersey was defeated Tuesday despite a half-million-dollar promotional campaign by Atlantic City business interests where the casinos would be located.

Mills Prevails

©The New York Times

Little Rock, Ark. — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, the Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, won reelection early Wednesday, but by a smaller margin than he had expected.

Fighting back after an embarrassing late-night incident in Washington last month, he got about 56% of the vote to defeat his hard-working Republican opponent, Mrs. Judy Petty.

Anti-Aid Ad Violates Law—Beermann

Albion (AP) — Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Tuesday a political advertisement in the Albion publication apparently violated Nebraska's Corrupt Practices Act.

The ad in The Shopper, Oct. 29, opposed LB772, the state aid to education bill that went before voters Tuesday.

Beermann said the advertisement did not identify its sponsors. He said poltiical ads for individuals must contain the name and address of at least one sponsor, and those by committees must carry names and addresses of two sponsors. He said none were listed in the ad in The Shopper.

Dennis McCoig of Genoa said he was co-chairman of an organization known as "Citizens Opposed to LB772," which sponsored the dvertisement. The other co-chairman was identified as Roger Nelson of Genoa.

McCoig said about 20 residents of Genoa and Fullerton are members of the organization. He said there had been no intention "of hoodwinking anyone" by omitting names of the ad's sponsors.

Paul Thies, publisher of The Shopper, said he had thought the ad was proper and he had seen "many unsigned political advertisements in newspapers."

Beermann said only sponsors of the ad, not the publication, would be subject to prosecution under the misdemeanor statute involved.

Boone County Atty. Ray Medlin was not available for comment.

Merle Beattie Class Holds Exciting Election

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

It was a heated campaign, with issues ranging from gum in the classrooms to safety on the playgrounds.

The six young candidates running on the Whig, Tory and Independent (write-in) tickets for class offices of the sixth grade classroom at Merle Beattie school were visibly excited as the hour of balloting grew nearer.

But the excitement was not theirs alone.

Many of the 100 sixth-graders in the unit sported paper campaign buttons for their favorite team. Virtually all were involved in the election which marked the culmination of a three-week unit on the democratic political process.

Both sides of a hallway were lined with campaign posters. "Sackett and Myers Arn't (sic) Liers" — "Cotter Isn't Crummy" — "Dale Won't Fail" — "Happiness is Cotter and Gottsche."

But there were more than slogans and smiles involved in this election.

Each of the young voters followed the election process through by filling out pre-registration forms, formulating, party planks, volunteering to make posters for candidates and voting by secret ballot.

Before casting their own votes, the group had a chance to see some real voting in action at the polling station set up in the school for Tuesday's statewide elections.

Whig candidate for president Dale Sackett, lamented that the election was like Watergate — "with a lot of things covered up." He was specifically referring to some of his poster paper which he said got "ripped off."

Before the election, Dale couldn't pick out the highlight of the campaign. "The best part isn't here yet," the candidate said. "It's not until you win the election."

And win he did.

Henry Petersen Resigns; Relayed Reports To Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry E. Petersen, who directed the early Watergate investigation and relayed reports of grand jury progress to former President Richard M. Nixon, is resigning as assistant attorney general, a White House spokesman announced Tuesday.

Petersen will leave the Justice Department Dec. 31 after 27 years. His most recent assignment has been directing the criminal division.

President Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Petersen "decided to resign on his own" and had not been asked to leave.

No replacement has been chosen, Nessen said. Petersen, 53, has not indicated his plans for the future.

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe praised his record and regretted Petersen's decision.

"We feel a profound gratitude and admiration for his 27 years of dedicated, conscientious service," Saxbe said.

Henry B. Petersen

"His decision to retire is completely his own, and I believe he can look back on many notable achievements."

"He is more than any other man the architect of the federal government's highly effective enforcement program against organized crime — an effort that will benefit the nation for years to come," Saxbe said.

Petersen's resignation letter to Ford was dated Friday and was accepted Monday by Ford.

The President lauded Petersen for "a record of unique achievement."

Petersen was in charge of the Watergate investigation before the first special prosecutor was appointed in May, 1973. The White House Watergate transcripts released last spring showed that Petersen regularly informed Nixon about the grand jury proceedings.

While announcing Petersen's resignation, Nessen was asked whether Ford would replace Arthur Sampson as head of the General Services Administration.

"There's been no decision made to replace Mr. Sampson," Nessen said.

A reporter suggested that the reply implied that the matter was under active consideration and Nessen said: "You will have to infer what you want."

59 Democrats And 1 Republican In House Sure To Be Re-Elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-nine Democrats and one Republican in the House were virtually assured of re-election Tuesday even before the polls opened. They had no major party opposition.

In addition, three Democratic members of the Senate had only token opposition.

A check of voting records showed that a score of the House members have been staunch ideological foes of President Ford and at least seven were consistent supporters of the President.

The senators with only token opposition were Russell B. Long of Louisiana, James B. Allen of Alabama and Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii. All three voted to confirm Ford as vice president. Allen and Inouye voted to cut off U.S. military aid to Turkey, defying a Ford veto threat. Long supported Ford on that vote.

In the House, the one Republican without Democratic opposition was Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr. of Ohio.

Unopposed Democrats included House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon of Texas, who have criticized Ford's economic proposals but often agreed with him on other issues.

Among the Democratic group also was House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., of Massachusetts, who had opposition from Communist and U. S. Labor party candidates. O'Neill opposed Ford on Turkish aid and has made frequent speeches against Ford's economic proposals.

Thirty-eight of the Democrats with no major party opposition were from the South, including eight from Texas, six from Florida, five from Louisiana and four from Alabama. Among the others, six were from Massachusetts, five from New York and five from California.

Dreary Weather Widespread Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Dreary weather conditions were widespread Tuesday as voters participated in off-year elections.

Rain, drizzle and some snow continued in some areas through much of the day.

Light snow sifted into parts of the upper Mississippi Valley. One inch of snow fell at Mason City, Iowa.

Showers and thunderstorms ranged from western Indiana through Alabama. Scattered rain systems lingered over the Northeast and in the central Great Lakes area.

There were scattered showers in Northern California and rain and drizzle in parts of Oregon and Washington.

Morning temperatures in the 30s reached as far south as central Texas and Arkansas. It was below freezing in the northern half of the plains and most of the Rockies.

The mid and lower Atlantic Coast states and the eastern Gulf Coast states were relatively warm with readings in the 60s.

Heist Suspect Nabbed

Las Vegas, Nev., (UPI)—Johnnie White, 28, was arrested by federal agents as a suspect in the holdup of a savings and loans office in Minnesota last month.

Where Was 'Happy Days'?

DENVER (AP) — When KLZ disc jockey Mike McKuen asked his Tuesday morning radio listeners to call in and request songs for election day, he had no idea the responses would be so appropriate.

Among the songs requested were "Yakety Yak," "It's Crying Time Again," "What Kind of Fool Am I," "You Are the Devil in Disguise," "Fame and Fortune," "Shaft," "If I Ruled the World" and "Get A Job."

LES Steam Heat Rate Increase Likely

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

It appears that downtown steam heat customers will get a New Year's present — higher bills to help defray the cost of heating downtown businesses.

A proposal to hike the rates received the unofficial endorsement of City Council members Tuesday as they discussed the future of the K St. power plant with Lincoln Electric System (LES) Administrative Board members.

The rate hike appears imminent after the first of the year. LES Board Chairman John Haessler said the board probably would discuss raising the rates at the December meeting.

The issue of increasing steam rates to help cover LES's cost to provide the steam to 111 customers arose because of council action two weeks ago extending steam service to 1977.

Extension Opposed

The LES board had set a 1976 phase-out date. The board strenously objected to extending the deadline on the grounds that the K St. power plant, which supplies the steam, is antiquated, in violation of air pollution laws and is losing money.

LES Administrator Walt Canney estimated other Lincoln LES ratepayers would subsidize steam service by $102,000 this year. In the next two years, LES figures show that LES will lose an estimated $1.3 million more if the same rates are charged.

Steam users pay an average of $4.50 per 1,000 pounds of steam. The actual cost of providing that steam, LES figures show, is $6.68.

In 1976 Canney said the cost will be $11.20 and in 1977 the cost will be $15.70.

At the council's hearing two weeks ago, attorney J. Taylor Greer, representing a number of downtown businesses, said the firms would be willing to pay a "reasonable" price for steam. However, Greer objected to the present rate structure.

$11.20 May Be Figure

Although board members did not discuss how much they will recommend hiking steam rates, it appears the board will recommend the $11.20 figure to the council.

Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis said that in extending steam service one year the council was under "no kind of obligation" to hold rates at the present level.

Board members again argued that the council's decision to extend steam heat will cause the city a number of problems because of environmental control laws and the condition of the plant.

However, Haessler told the council, "While we think you are wrong, we will do everything to continue the operation of K St."

And in line with the board's acceptance of the council's action extending the deadline, the board instructed Haessler to ask that the council not take action on an ordinance which officially will extend that deadline. The council is scheduled to take action approving that ordinance Monday.

When the council made its decision two weeks ago, it also directed that LES join the Public Works and Public Utilities Departments in a study to determine the desirability of building a central heating plant and of burning garbage in such a plant.

Early Start Urged

Haessler urged that the study get under way immediately so that a recommendation can be made in time for downtowners to decide to hook into such a plant or to go it alone.

Canney reported he has met with the mayor and city department heads on the study, but that there is some confusion over what the study should cover.

Board member Betty McClendon disputed rumors charging that all LES wants to do is sell more electricity to the businessmen.

"There are other alternatives," she charged, and noted that all but 34 of the 111 steam customers could switch to uninterruptible natural gas service.

Soviets May Be Hiding Weaponry

©The New York Times

Washington — Defense Department officials say they believe that recent Soviet actions raise questions whether Moscow is camouflaging some of its strategic weapons programs in violation of the 1972 agreement with the United States on offensive nuclear arms.

They are not prepared to charge that the Soviet Union is violating the "open sky" provision of the agreement, which placed a five-year limitation on the number of offensive weapons the two nations may deploy.

But the officials contend that certain "ambiguities" in reconnaissance information have resulted in questions about whether the Soviet Union is deliberately concealing some of its deployments of strategic weapons.

The 1972 agreement specifies in its "open-sky" provision that neither side will "use deliberate concealment measures which impede verification" of compliance. The purpose of the provision was to permit verification by reconnaissance satellites.

Suspicions 'Crystalized'

Officials indicated that the concealment issue would be raised in the standing consultative commission, which was created to monitor the carrying out of the agreement, just as the United States already has raised the question whether the Soviet Union was building additional missile silos in contravention of the agreement. Officials said, however, that there had not been sufficient time to raise the concealment issue since the suspicions "crystalized" only in the last month or so.

The first official suggestion that the Soviet Union might be violating the "open sky" provision of the 1972 agreement came in a speech last Thursday by Sen. James L. Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York. Addressing the Overseas Press Club in New York City, the senator said he had been advised by "knowledgeable individuals in and out of government" that U.S. "intelligence agencies are acquiring mounting evidence that will support the charge that the Soviets are using new means of concealment to make it more difficult for U.S. national technological means of verification to monitor Soviet compliance" with the accords on strategic arms.

According to Buckley associates, the senator discussed his speech by telephone with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger after he had delivered it and was told that everything he said was true and that the secretary would "back him up on it." According to the Defense Department, however, the secretary had been "noncommittal."

One Charge Denied

Earlier that same day, before Buckley addressed the Over-Seas Press Club, the Defense Department denied one charge contained in his speech. The charge, which had been circulating in aviation trade magazines, was that the Soviet Union was constructing additional silos for intercontinental missiles in violation of the agreement with the United States.

The Defense Department spokesman, William Beecher, said there were "some indications" that the Soviet Union was building underground command and control centers in its ballistic missile fields, not silos for launching missiles. He also repeated a statement made on Oct. 10 by Gen. George S. Brown, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that he "can state categorically that we have no information that the Soviet Union is failing to abide by those agreements."

The Defense Department, however, has repeatedly declined to comment on questions as to whether the Soviet Union was concealing or camouflaging any of its weapons programs. The effect of the Defense Department's position, as officials privately acknowledged, was to give support to Buckley's charge.

'No Evidence'

Maj. Gen. Winant L. Sidle, a Pentagon spokesman, moved slightly off the "no comment" position by stating "we have no evidence that the Soviet Union has been violating" the agreement. But officials said this statement was not meant to rule out suspicions that the Soviet Union might be concealing some of its weapons programs.

One apparent act of concealment described by both Pentagon officials and Buckley aides was a recent placement of canvas covers over construction ways at a shipyard near Murmansk where nuclear-powered missile-carrying submarines are constructed. As a result, according to a Buckley aide, the United States has been unable to determine for about six months how many Yankee and Delta Class submarines are under construction by the Soviet Union.

In addition, according to Buckley aides, there are indications that the Soviet Union, through various countermeasures, is attempting to frustrate electronic methods used by the United States. Electronic intelligence surveillance is of particular importance in monitoring Soviet missile programs during the development phase, while photographic intelligence through reconnaissance satellites is used to keep track of the missiles once deployed.

Canada Jobless Dips

Ottawa (AP) — Canada's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate dropped to 5.4% in October after bouncing up to a high for the year of 5.8% in September, Statistics Canada reported.

Education Planning Night Set By Lincoln Schools

The Lincoln Public Schools will sponsor the annual educational planning night for all high school students at 7 p.m. Nov. 19 at Lincoln East High School, 1000 S. 70th.

Students from other high schools in Lancaster County are also invited to attend.

The purpose of the program is to provide students and parents information from 53 public and private colleges, business, beauty and nursing schools, including 25 out-of-state institutions and the major military academies.

An orientation session is scheduled from 7-7:15 p.m. Open visitation with representatives of the schools is set from 7:20-8:20 p.m., and a formal presentation will follow from 8:30-9:15 p.m.

The open visitation session will allow students and parents opportunities to visit with college representatives on an informal basis. The formal presentation will enable them to visit the representatives from the college of their choice.

Science Impact To Be Discussed

Acapulco — In the golden year of 1519, Hernan Cortez sailed into the harbor at Vera Cruz. He had 600 men, 16 horses and the eye of a pawnbroker for gold.

Cavalier Puertocarrero standing on the sunstruck deck cried: "Behold the rich lands!" Actually the beach was so full of sand fleas the Spaniards had to move inland.

Even so, Cortez named the port La Villa Rica de la Vera Cruz. The Rich City of the True Cross. There was a lot of press agent in Cortez. It sounded good in his letter to the King of Spain.

Unknown (and unbelievable then) the true Rich City was a muddy village on the other coast. Acapulco today is where the treasure lies.

And here I sit on a breezy balcony over the blue bay. Barefoot. A can of XXX beer in hand. Not rich, man. But I'm no complaining.

On the sandy beach the hustling salesmen are beginning the day's work. A man selling lacy sunhats stacks them inside each other. A dozen of them. He wears them on his head.

An Indian woman — she wears the village blouse and her hair is braided with red yarn — has an armload of factory wedding shirts.

"All hand made, Senor."

(A long time ago in Acapulco I saw Indian women marveling at a tourist girl's dress. "Made totally by machine!" they said. A miracle.)

We are at the Paraiso Marriott, one of a dozen rich and glamorous hotels that line the great curve of Acapulco Bay.

Rich lands for the salesmen.

"Antique, Senor. Made by the ancient people."

It's a small clay idol. Three inches. It could be real. When the rains come, they uncover more and more of an antique city on the edge of this antique port.

These ancient Acapulcenos had a do-it-yourself religion and spent most of their time making little idols. They did not see the tourist demand to come. Didn't make enough to satisfy the rush.

So the Acapulco people today make them in the backyard. A cottage industry. No doubt making them in the same image, by the same methods as their ancestors. (So why complain? Same thing only it's not secondhand.)

The seller of serapes holds one up for inspection. "Only $30, Senor." On the beach, business is done in U.S. dollars instead of pesos.

This serape is in colors that hurt the eye. I wouldn't buy one if he put a pistol in my ribs.

"No? All right, Senor. For you, $25. I will make no profit but you have a kind face."

He rolls up the serape. "Here, Senor. Just hold this and feel it. Pure wool." (Probably mixed with burro hair.)

He leaves the end in my hand. Walks away unrolling it expertly. Shows it open in all it's frightful colors. He rolls it up again walking toward me. Leaves it in my hand.

"Now I give it to you for $20. It cost me more than that in the village — I swear it on my father's grave. But I must recover some of my money or my children will starve."

"Never! I don't want a serape." I am hard as a coconut shell. The beach hustlers can't sell me.

Well, yes. I did buy it. In the afternoon. After a few more beers. But he didn't sell it to me, understand? I bought it. To give to somebody I don't like. The Rich City.

Five Arrested In Coins Theft

Boston (UPI) — Five persons were arrested Tuesday in connection with the theft of several million dollars worth of ancient coins from a Harvard museum last December. Federal authorities said two more persons were being sought.

The three men and two women were arraigned before federal magistrates here and in Rhode Island. Four were arrested in Massachusetts and one was being held at the Adult Correctional Institution in Cranston, R.I., on a separate robbery charge.

Authorities said they had recovered in a wooded area outside Lincoln, R.I., about 40% of some 5,650 Greek and Roman coins stolen Dec. 2 from Harvard University's Fogg Museum. No precise dollar value could be placed on the coins, although some academic sources estimated their research worth at "several million dollars.

"Made of silver and bronze as well as gold, some of them rank as miniature masterpieces of classical art. Taken as a whole, they provide a vivid and coherent picture of the development of classical civilization throughout a thousand years," said David Gordon Mitten, curator of anicent art at the museum.

Being held in lieu of $100,000 bail was Louis Mathis, 43, of Cambridge, Mass., released on bail pending a Nov. 15 hearing were Maria Magna, 21, of Medford, Mass., and David J. Doughty, 34, and his wife Gladys, 25, of Abington, Mass.

Anthony Vaglica, 50, formerly of Waltham, Mass., was being held by Rhode Island officials on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid confinement following his guilty plea to a Feb. 1973 Rhode Island robbery. FBI agents have lodged a warrant in connection with the coin theft against him.

All were charged with federal violations of conspiring to transport stolen property in interstate commerce and transporting stolen property in interstate commerce.

James O. Newpher, special agent in charge of the Boston FBI office, said he expected two more arrests in connection with the burglary.

Testimony By Nixon Canceled

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon will not have to give testimony about security arrangements for his "Billy Graham Day" visit to Charlotte in 1971.

Charlotte attorney George S. Daly filed papers in U.S. District Court canceling an earlier notice that he would take a deposition from Nixon Nov. 26 in Santa Ana, Calif., court records showed Tuesday.

Daly refused to comment Tuesday on why the deposition was canceled.

Daly represents 21 plaintiffs who have filed a $1.2 million civil suit against former presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and Ronald H. Walker, former advance man William Henkel Jr., the Charlotte Police Department, the U.S. Secret Service and members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who policed the "Billy Graham Day" rally.

The plaintiffs contend their rights were violated when they were denied entry to the rally Oct. 15, 1971. Most of the plaintiffs said they were excluded from the Charlotte Coliseum because of their long hair or their dress.

Conferees Not Hit By 'Food Crisis'

ROME (AP)— World Food Conference delegates trying to find a way to avert mass starvation in developing countries aren't stinting on their own stomachs while in Rome.

Even before the U.N.-sponsored conference officially opened on Tuesday, delegates and observers from the more than 100 nations represented could be spotted in posh Rome restaurants, debating advance reports in between bites of dishes like Scotch smoked salmon, fettucine with truffles and steak in wine sauce.

Three American businessmen in Rome for the conference argued heatedly Monday night over a preconference statement by French agricultural expert Rene Dumont that "the rich white are practically indirect cannibals." Their discussion occurred over a dinner of prosciutto with melon and Chateaubriand at a table in George's, a restaurant across the street from the hotel where most of the American representatives are staying.

There were other signs that the phrase "world food crisis" hasn't really hit home.

—One of the first questions at a briefing for journalists covering the conference was: "Where do we eat?" The questioner was referred to a press kit that explained there was a restaurant and snack bar in the Palazzo dei Congressi where the conference is being held.

—The busiest spot in the hour before the opening session on Tuesday was the bar where harried waiters dispensed 15-cent-a-cup coffee to delegates who wanted to know why there wasn't any milk or Danish pastry. (The supplies hadn't arrived.)

—Two African delegates complained bitterly when they were served only half a cup of coffee. In Italy, most restaurants fill the cup of espresso only half full, leaving it up to the customer to add sugar or milk or simply settle for only a few sips. Many foreigners, apparently unaware of the custom, are upset by the scanty ration.

—The fixed menu posted at the conference center for the first day's lunch offered a sumptuous list of goodies: for 4,000 lire or about $6 — a high price by Italian standards — the diners had a choice of four kinds of pasta, four kinds of meat, two vegetables, desert and wine, beer, mineral water or the ever-present cola drink.

—The rush to the dining room at lunch was so great that within an hour after the morning session ended, the cashier was turning people away. It seems the restaurant had run out of plates and silverware.

Murder Charge Said Monstrous Mistake

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Law enforcement officers said "a monstrous mistake" resulted in a young Air Force sergeant being wrongfully charged with murdering one girl and wounding another.

"We have made a monumental and monstrous mistake, but Stedman Allen Scott is innocent of the murder of a 19-year-old girl and the attempted murder of a 15-year-old girl," Okaloosa County Sheriff Ray Wilson told a news conference Tuesday.

Wilson said "a human error in a ballistics test" had erroneously identified a .38-caliber pistol owned by Scott as the weapon that killed Theresa Dusevitch in November 1973 and wounded an unidentified teen-age girl in May 1974.

Scott is an air policeman stationed at nearby Eglin Air Force Base. The sheriff said Scott had been informed of the error, but he could not be reached for comment immediately.

Miss Dusevitch's body was found on an Okaloosa County golf course. Six months later, another girl from nearby Shalimar told police she was shot in the hip as she escaped from a would-be rapist.

Scott was arrested Oct. 10 and charged with first-degree murder in the Dusevitch slaying and attempted murder in the other shooting after a ballistics report said his pistol was used in both crimes.

He was released Oct. 17 when a grand jury failed to indict him for the crimes after the girl who survived the attack and other witnesses could not identify him in a police lineup.

The sheriff said Tuesday that re-examination of the ballistics test by a senior technician showed that while the same gun was used in both crimes, it was not the pistol owned by Scott.

Wilson said that even though the admission of the error gave his department "a black eye, it was inflicted out of honesty."

Firewater's Fire Detected In Space

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — There's booze in outer space. No fooling. Scientists probing areas of the Milky Way with a powerful radiotelescope have detected ethanol in a vast cloud of gas and dust called Sagittarius B2.

Ethanol, for those who don't know, is ethyl alcohol — chemical formula C2H50H — the stuff that puts fire in firewater.

The discovery was made by a team of 13 scientists working at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Kitt Peak, near Tucson, Ariz. They were able to detect a substance 30,000 light years away by picking up faint radio signals characteristic of the chemical.

The work is part of a very sober inquiry into the formation of stars. Present theory says stars are formed as swirling interstellar clouds grow denser and denser and finally collapse to form a star.

Until recently, scientists thought the most complex substance in the clouds was molecular hydrogen. Recently they have found more complex molecules. Ethanol, with nine atoms, is the most complex found so far.

According to Dr. Barry Turner of the observatory, the chances of finding a single molecule of ethanol — which wouldn't go far in making a cocktail — are about 1 in 1,000 at any given place.

LES Steam Heat Rate Increase Likely

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

It appears that downtown steam heat customers will get a New Year's present — higher bills to help defray the cost of heating downtown businesses.

A proposal to hike the rates received the unofficial endorsement of City Council members Tuesday as they discussed the future of the K St. power plant with Lincoln Electric System (LES) Administrative Board members.

The rate hike appears imminent after the first of the year. LES Board Chairman John Haessler said the board probably would discuss raising the rates at the December meeting.

The issue of increasing steam rates to help cover LES's cost to provide the steam to 111 customers arose because of council action two weeks ago extending steam service to 1977.

Extension Opposed

The LES board had set a 1976 phase-out date. The board strenously objected to extending the deadline on the grounds that the K St. power plant, which supplies the steam, is antiquated, in violation of air pollution laws and is losing money.

LES Administrator Walt Canney estimated other Lincoln LES ratepayers would subsidize steam service by $102,000 this year. In the next two years, LES figures show that LES will lose an estimated $1.3 million more if the same rates are charged.

Steam users pay an average of $4.50 per 1,000 pounds of steam. The actual cost of providing that steam, LES figures show, is $6.60.

In 1976 Canney said the cost will be $11.20 and in 1977 the cost will be $15.70.

At the council's hearing two weeks ago, attorney J. Taylor Greer, representing a number of downtown businesses, said the firms would be willing to pay a "reasonable" price for steam. However, Greer objected to the present rate structure.

$11.20 May Be Figure

Although board members did not discuss how much they will recommend hiking steam rates, it appears the board will recommend the $11.20 figure to the council.

Council Chairwoman Helen Boosalis said that in extending steam service one year the council was under "no kind of obligation" to hold rates at the present level.

Board members again argued that the council's decision to extend steam heat will cause the city a number of problems because of environmental control laws and the condition of the plant.

However, Haessler told the council, "While we think you are wrong, we will do everything to continue the operation of K St."

And in line with the board's acceptance of the council's action extending the deadline, the board instructed Haessler to ask that the council not take action on an ordinance which officially will extend that deadline. The council is scheduled to take action approving that ordinance Monday.

When the council made its decision two weeks ago, it also directed that LES join the Public Works and Public Utilities Departments in a study to determine the desirability of building a central heating plant and of burning garbage in such a plant.

Early Start Urged

Haessler urged that the study get under way immediately so that a recommendation can be made in time for downtowners to decide to hook into such a plant or to go it alone.

Canney reported he has met with the mayor and city department heads on the study, but that there is some confusion over what the study should cover

Board member Betty McClendon disputed rumors charging that all LES wants to do is sell more electricity to the businessmen.

"There are other alternatives," she charged, and noted that all but 34 of the 111 steam customers could switch to uninterruptible natural gas service.

Education Planning Night Set By Lincoln Schools

The Lincoln Public Schools will sponsor the annual educational planning night for all high school students at 7 p.m. Nov. 19 at Lincoln East High School, 1000 S. 70th.

Students from other high schools in Lancaster County are also invited to attend.

The purpose of the program is to provide students and parents information from 53 public and private colleges, business, beauty and nursing schools, including 25 out-of-state institutions and the major military academies.

An orientation session is scheduled from 7-7:15 p.m. Open visitation with representatives of the schools is set from 7:20-8:20 p.m., and a formal presentation will follow from 8:30-9:15 p.m.

The open visitation session will allow students and parents opportunities to visit with college representatives on an informal basis. The formal presentation will enable them to visit the representatives from the college of their choice.

Science Impact To Be Discussed

Scientists and the social and political impact of their work is the topic to be discussed by Raymond J. Seeger 4 p.m. Thursday at a Sigma Xi meeting at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Student Union.

Sigma Xi is a national science honorary.

Seeger recently retired from the National Science Foundation and is now adjunct professor of applied science at George Washington University, Washington, D.C.

Soviets May Be Hiding Weaponry

©The New York Times

Washington — Defense Department officials say they believe that recent Soviet actions raise questions whether Moscow is camouflaging some of its strategic weapons programs in violation of the 1972 agreement with the United States on offensive nuclear arms.

They are not prepared to charge that the Soviet Union is violating the "open sky" provision of the agreement, which placed a five-year limitation on the number of offensive weapons the two nations may deploy.

But the officials contend that certain "ambiguities" in reconnaissance information have resulted in questions about whether the Soviet Union is deliberately concealing some of its deployments of strategic weapons.

The 1972 agreement specifies in its "open-sky" provision that neither side will "use deliberate concealment measures which impede verification" of compliance. The purpose of the provision was to permit verification by reconnaissance satellites.

Suspicions 'Crystalized'

Officials indicated that the concealment issue would be raised in the standing consultative commission, which was created to monitor the carrying out of the agreement, just as the United States already has raised the question whether the Soviet Union was building additional missile silos in contravention of the agreement. Officials said, however, that there had not been sufficient time to raise the concealment issue since the suspicions "crystalized" only in the last month or so.

The first official suggestion that the Soviet Union might be violating the "open sky" provision of the 1972 agreement came in a speech last Thursday by Sen. James L. Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York. Addressing the Overseas Press Club in New York City, the senator said he had been advised by "knowledgeable individuals in and out of government" that U.S. "intelligence agencies are acquiring mounting evidence that will support the charge that the Soviets are using new means of concealment to make it more difficult for U.S. national technological means of verification to monitor Soviet compliance" with the accords on strategic arms.

According to Buckley associates, the senator discussed his speech by telephone with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger after he had delivered it and was told that everything he said was true and that the secretary would "back him up on it." According to the Defense Department, however, the secretary had been "noncommittal."

One Charge Denied

Earlier that same day, before Buckley addressed the Over-Seas Press Club, the Defense Department denied one charge contained in his speech. The charge, which had been circulating in aviation trade magazines, was that the Soviet Union was constructing additional silos for intercontinental missiles in violation of the agreement with the United States.

The Defense Department spokesman, William Beecher, said there were "some indications" that the Soviet Union was building underground command and control centers in its ballistic missile fields, not silos for launching missiles. He also repeated a statement made on Oct. 10 by Gen George S. Brown, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that he "can state categorically that we have no information that the Soviet Union is failing to abide by those agreements."

The Defense Department, however, has repeatedly declined to comment on questions as to whether the Soviet Union was concealing or camouflaging any of its weapons programs. The effect of the Defense Department's position, as officials privately acknowledged, was to give support to Buckley's charge.

'No Evidence'

Maj. Gen. Winant L. Sidle, a Pentagon spokesman, moved slightly off the "no comment" position by stating "we have no evidence that the Soviet Union has been violating" the agreement. But officials said this statement was not meant to rule out suspicions that the Soviet Union might be concealing some of its weapons programs.

One apparent act of concealment described by both Pentagon officials and Buckley aides was a recent placement of canvas covers over construction ways at a shipyard near Murmansk where nuclear-powered missile-carrying submarines are constructed. As a result, according to a Buckley aide, the United States has been unable to determine for about six months how many Yankee and Delta Class submarines are under construction by the Soviet Union.

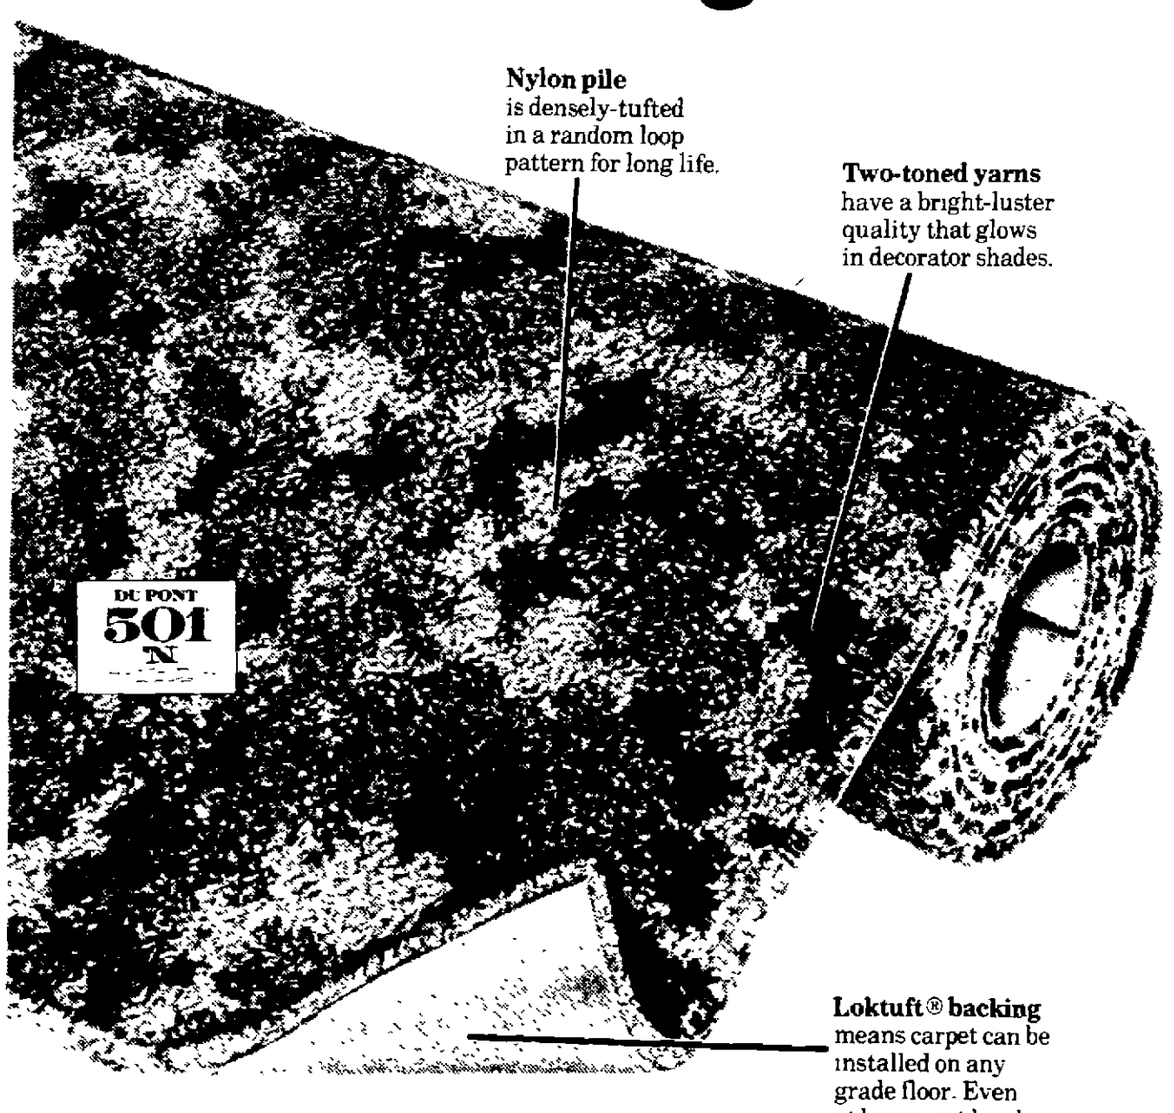

In addition, according to Buckley aides, there are indications that the Soviet Union, through various countermeasures, is attempting to frustrate electronic methods used by the United States. Electronic intelligence surveillance is of particular importance in monitoring Soviet missile programs during the development phase, while photographic intelligence through reconnaissance satellites is used to keep track of the missiles once deployed.

Highly-Structured Education For Children Supported

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Siegfried E. Engelmann believes children in the early years of their education should reach specific academic goals through use of highly-structured programs directed by the teacher.

His rationale, the national authority on child development said, is that "the more academic skills they (children) have, the greater the potential for creativity."

Engelmann, supporting schools as centers for early academic learning, was one of three experts presenting divergent views at a Lincoln Early Childhood Education Symposium involving about 250 parents, educators and lay people.

Other alternatives, including use of schools as centers for natural unfolding of children's development or use of parents' skills in a comprehensive education effort, are being considered for future use in Lincoln programs.

Engelmann, University of Oregon special education professor, said Tuesday in an interview his early childhood education model calls for "carefully sequenced" teaching techniques that anticipate student mistakes.

'Strict Interpretation'

It also conforms to a "strict interpretation" of facts; for example, teaching a student to distinguish readily between the letters b and d through heavy reinforcement techniques.

And, Engelmann said, his model requires training of teachers to execute carefully all the principles involved. "If you provide an adequate teaching demonstration, he said, then "all kids, regardless of intellectual capacity or aptitude" will learn.

An author of books, articles, instructional programs and tests, he said children "have to have that minimal information to know what the concept is," and explained that different techniques can be used to get across essential facts.

Children as young as 2½ years old can learn from his method, tried across the U.S. Engelmann said. Because the model is so highly structured, "the chances are overwhelming kids will do it (learn and respond) the right way."

The model is also "a good vehicle for building self-confidence and self-image," Engelmann said. He stressed that children learning under his program are not treated as robots ingesting facts, because response is built in.

'Biggest Limiter'

He said his premise is that a child must know certain basic facts and attain specific academic skills; otherwise, that is "the biggest limiter of potential of real creativity."

It would be "presumptuous to assume" that children will use all the facts learned throughout life, he said. But his model allows children to learn to discriminate in using facts in a functional way. It also allows diversity, acknowledges that "tasks have more than one answer," he said.

Insuring that children attain certain academic skills, Engelmann said, allows them to look ahead with the ability to "do sophisticated reasoning" and apply it to meet their needs.

Developer of the U.S. Office of Education-sponsored Bereiter-Engelmann program for accelerating young children's intellectual development, Engelmann said his approach does not ignore non-academic aspects of education, such as cognitive and social development.

'No Evidence'

"I know of no evidence to support" anyone who maintains that concentrating on academic skills will limit children's growth in other areas, he said.

Robert Egbert, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Teachers College dean, told symposium participants the most important issue in adopting any of the models discussed is "whether the values of the community are met through the model" chosen.

"One of the things Lincoln needs to think about," Egbert said, is "what you consider school," and whether education programs should serve children aged 5 to 8, 3 to 4, zero to 3, in the home as well, or in combinations.

He said educators must decide whether to focus on academic skills, cognitive development, social development, or learning efficiency in any early childhood education reform, and guard against low-quality models.

Choosing any instructional models and setting goals must take into account "honest differences in judgment and perspectives" of the community, Egbert said.

140 Cemetery Brass Vases Stolen

About 140 brass vases have been stolen from gravesides at Wyuka Cemetery at 36th and O St. in the past several days, according to police reports.

The vases, about 13 inches high, and weighing between four to eight pounds, are sunk into the earth at gravesides and hold flowers. A cemetery spokesman told police the vases are valued at $35 to $75 apiece.

Police said a pile of 20 to 25 vases was found near a tree in the cemetery. Police theorize the thieves were frightened away before they could take them from the cemetery.

Similar thefts have occurred in cemeteries across the country recently, according to the cemetery spokesman.

Police said 183 pounds of sunken vases were sold to Northwestern Metal last Thursday for the value of the scrap metal. Police have not determined from where those vases were stolen. The thefts at Wyuka apparently occurred since that time since a gate at Wyuka was found broken Saturday, police said.

Police have no suspects in the case.

Five Arrested In Coins Theft

Boston (UPI) — Five persons were arrested Tuesday in connection with the theft of several million dollars worth of ancient coins from a Harvard museum last December. Federal authorities said two more persons were being sought.

The three men and two women were arraigned before federal magistrates here and in Rhode Island. Four were arrested in Massachusetts and one was being held at the Adult Correctional Institution in Cranston, R.I., on a separate robbery charge.

Authorities said they had recovered in a wooded area outside Lincoln, R.I., about 40% of some 5,650 Greek and Roman coins stolen Dec. 2 from Harvard University's Fogg Museum. No precise dollar value could be placed on the coins, although some academic sources estimated their research worth at "several million dollars.

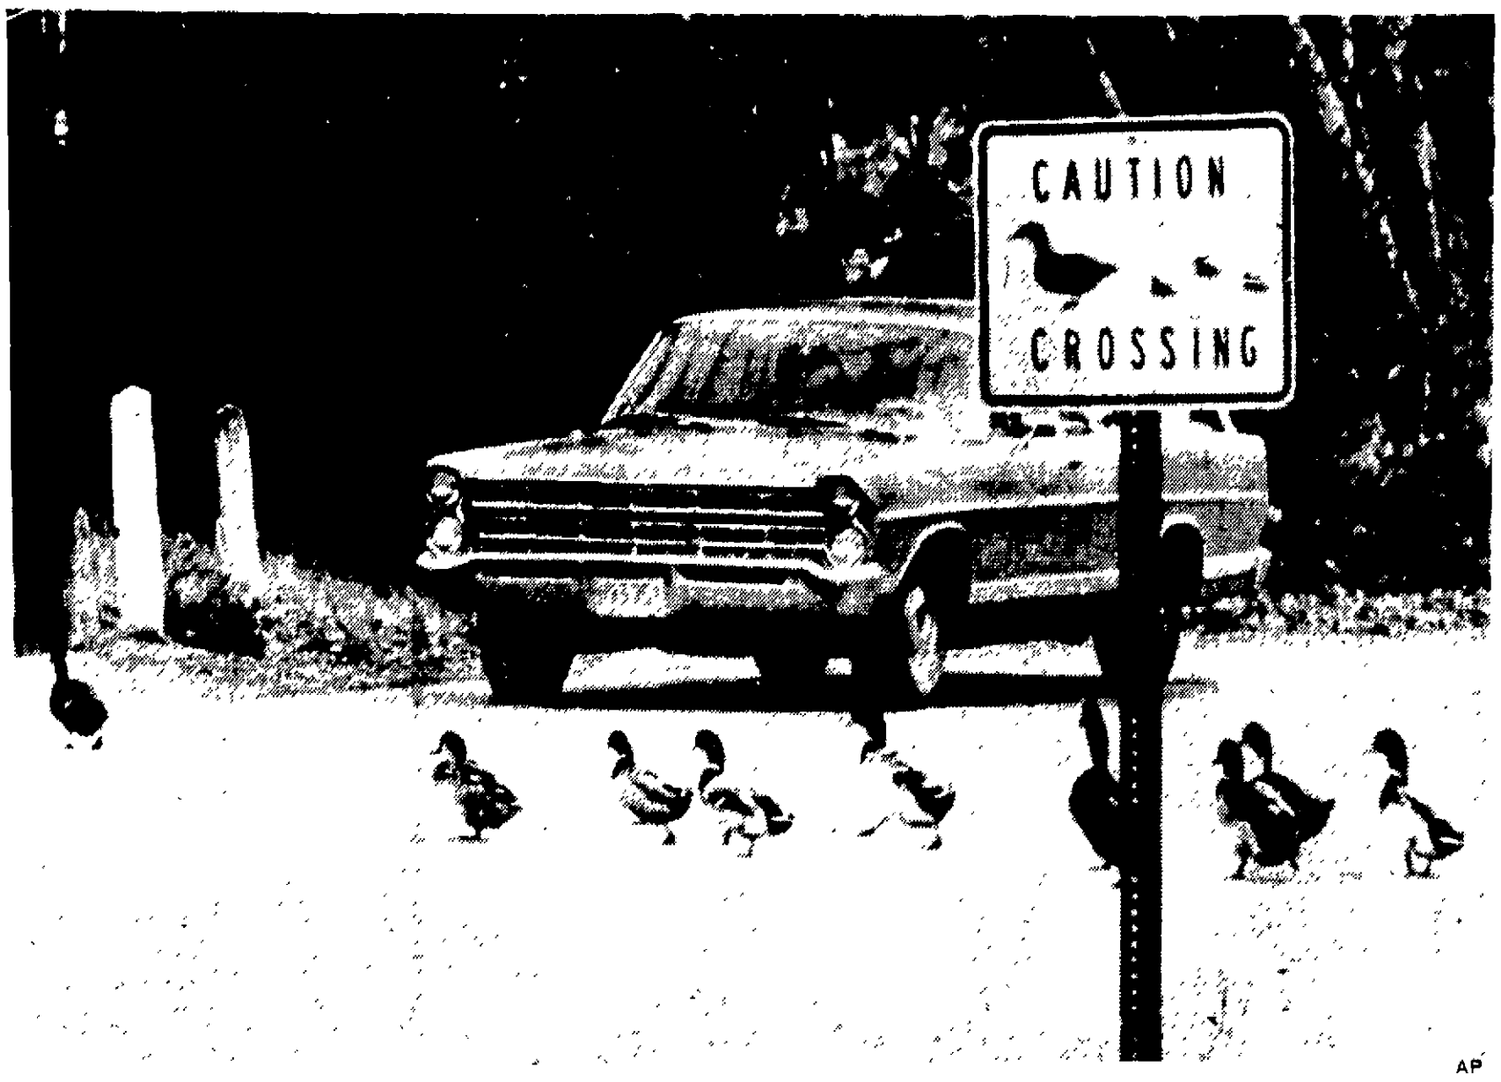

"Made of silver and bronze as well as gold, some of them rank as miniature masterpieces of classical art. Taken as a whole, they provide a vivid and coherent picture of the development of classical civilization throughout a thousand years," said David Gordon Mitten, curator of anicent art at the museum.

Being held in lieu of $100,000 bail was Louis Mathis, 43, of Cambridge, Mass., released on bail pending a Nov. 15 hearing were Maria Magna, 21, of Medford, Mass., and David J. Doughty, 34, and his wife Gladys, 25, of Abington, Mass.

Anthony Vaglica, 50, formerly of Waltham, Mass., was being held by Rhode Island officials on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid confinement following his guilty plea to a Feb. 1973 Rhode Island robbery. FBI agents have lodged a warrant in connection with the coin theft against him.

All were charged with federal violations of conspiring to transport stolen property in interstate commerce and transporting stolen property in interstate commerce.

James O. Newpher, special agent in charge of the Boston FBI office, said he expected two more arrests in connection with the burglary.

Wild Waddlers Know How To Get Across Road Safely

These wild ducks know how to get across the road safely in Kingston, Mass., because the Highway Department erected the sign to warn motorists in the wooded area near a pond used by the migrating birds. A motorist patiently waits for the ducks to make their way across. The ducks had no comment.

Testimony By Nixon Canceled

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon will not have to give testimony about security arrangements for his "Billy Graham Day" visit to Charlotte in 1971.

Charlotte attorney George S. Daly filed papers in U.S. District Court canceling an earlier notice that he would take a deposition from Nixon Nov. 26 in Santa Ana, Calif., court records showed Tuesday.

Daly refused to comment Tuesday on why the deposition was canceled.

Daly represents 21 plaintiffs who have filed a $1.2 million civil suit against former presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and Ronald H. Walker, former advance man William Henkel Jr., the Charlotte Police Department, the U.S. Secret Service and members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who policed the "Billy Graham Day" rally.

The plaintiffs contend their rights were violated when they were denied entry to the rally Oct. 15, 1971. Most of the plaintiffs said they were excluded from the Charlotte Coliseum because of their long hair or their dress.

Conferees Not Hit By 'Food Crisis'

ROME (AP)— World Food Conference delegates trying to find a way to avert mass starvation in developing countries aren't stinting on their own stomachs while in Rome.

Even before the U.N.-sponsored conference officially opened on Tuesday, delegates and observers from the more than 100 nations represented could be spotted in posh Rome restaurants, debating advance reports in between bites of dishes like Scotch smoked salmon, fettucine with truffles and steak in wine sauce.

Three American businessmen in Rome for the conference argued heatedly Monday night over a preconference statement by French agricultural expert Rene Dumont that "the rich white are practically indirect cannibals." Their discussion occurred over a dinner of prosciutto with melon and Chateaubriand at a table in George's, a restaurant across the street from the hotel where most of the American representatives are staying.

There were other signs that the phrase "world food crisis" hasn't really hit home.

—One of the first questions at a briefing for journalists covering the conference was: "Where do we eat?" The questioner was referred to a press kit that explained there was a restaurant and snack bar in the Palazzo dei Congressi where the conference is being held.

—The busiest spot in the hour before the opening session on Tuesday was the bar where harried waiters dispensed 15-cent-a-cup coffee to delegates who wanted to know why there wasn't any milk or Danish pastry. (The supplies hadn't arrived.)

—Two African delegates complained bitterly when they were served only half a cup of coffee. In Italy, most restaurants fill the cup of espresso only half full, leaving it up to the customer to add sugar or milk or simply settle for only a few sips. Many foreigners, apparently unaware of the custom, are upset by the scanty ration.

—The fixed menu posted at the conference center for the first day's lunch offered a sumptuous list of goodies: for 4,000 lire or about $6 — a high price by Italian standards — the diners had a choice of four kinds of pasta, four kinds of meat, two vegetables, desert and wine, beer, mineral water or the ever-present cola drink.

—The rush to the dining room at lunch was so great that within an hour after the morning session ended, the cashier was turning people away. It seems the restaurant had run out of plates and silverware.

Murder Charge Said Monstrous Mistake

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Law enforcement officers said "a monstrous mistake" resulted in a young Air Force sergeant being wrongfully charged with murdering one girl and wounding another.

"We have made a monumental and monstrous mistake, but Stedman Allen Scott is innocent of the murder of a 19-year-old girl and the attempted murder of a 15-year-old girl," Okaloosa County Sheriff Ray Wilson told a news conference Tuesday.

Wilson said "a human error in a ballistics test" had erroneously identified a .38-caliber pistol owned by Scott as the weapon that killed Theresa Dusevitch in November 1973 and wounded an unidentified teen-age girl in May 1974.

Scott is an air policeman stationed at nearby Eglin Air Force Base. The sheriff said Scott had been informed of the error, but he could not be reached for comment immediately.

Miss Dusevitch's body was found on an Okaloosa County golf course. Six months later, another girl from nearby Shalimar told police she was shot in the hip as she escaped from a would-be rapist.

Scott was arrested Oct. 10 and charged with first-degree murder in the Dusevitch slaying and attempted murder in the other shooting after a ballistics report said his pistol was used in both crimes.

He was released Oct. 17 when a grand jury failed to indict him for the crimes after the girl who survived the attack and other witnesses could not identify him in a police lineup.

The sheriff said Tuesday that re-examination of the ballistics test by a senior technician showed that while the same gun was used in both crimes, it was not the pistol owned by Scott.

Wilson said that even though the admission of the error gave his department "a black eye, it was inflicted out of honesty."

Firewater's Fire Detected In Space

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — There's booze in outer space. No fooling. Scientists probing areas of the Milky Way with a powerful radiotelescope have detected ethanol in a vast cloud of gas and dust called Sagittarius B2.

Ethanol, for those who don't know, is ethyl alcohol — chemical formula C_2H_5OH — the stuff that puts fire in firewater.

The discovery was made by a team of 13 scientists working at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Kitt Peak, near Tucson, Ariz. They were able to detect a substance 30,000 light years away by picking up faint radio signals characteristic of the chemical.

The work is part of a very sober inquiry into the formation of stars. Present theory says stars are formed as swirling interstellar clouds grow denser and denser and finally collapse to form a star.

Until recently, scientists thought the most complex substance in the clouds was molecular hydrogen. Recently they have found more complex molecules. Ethanol, with nine atoms, is the most complex found so far.

According to Dr. Barry Turner of the observatory, the chances of finding a single molecule of ethanol — which wouldn't go far in making a cocktail — are about 1 in 1,000 at any given place.

The Aim Of The Test

This fall 640 persons have voluntarily taken a breathalyzer test — the aim of the test is to assess the drinking and driving patterns of Lincoln motorists and help educate citizens.

Volunteers Flagged Down

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Jackie Noel was out for a drive early one evening.

Suddenly, from out of no where jumped a police officer, signalling her to turn into a well-lighted lane.

It's hard to tell what was going through Ms. Noel's mind for that split-second it took to get her car off the thoroughfare.

"What did I do? Did I just pass through a radar trap?" She may have been asking herself those or similar questions.

While the uniformed officer stood by, another man approached her car and handed her a letter from Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf explaining why she had been stopped, seeking her cooperation.

Ms. Noel was one of 640 persons who participated in a roadside survey conducted this fall by the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Project (LASAP).

She was asked to take a Breathalyzer test to determine if she had any alcohol in her system and to answer questions concerning her drinking and driving habits.

She could have refused to be a voluntary participant; about one of 10 do.

The uniformed officer, working on an overtime basis, assists in the survey "because we deal with traffic on the street" and therefore must have a qualified, official person to recruit motorists, said Rich Jochem, LASAP law enforcement coordinator.

"When they tell me to get one, I take the first in line," the officer said. "I don't look for one who looks like he is drunk."

Once an individual has consented to submit to the survey, he/she first is asked to blow into the Breathalyzer for seven seconds. By the time the interview has been completed, the results of the breath test have been processed.

The Breathalyzer test is designed to measure a person's blood alcohol content (BAC). By state law, if the BAC is .10% or higher, a person cannot legally drive.

On the average, about one person per evening is determined legally intoxicated, said Barbara Schoenrock, research associate for Edutek, which was contracted to conduct this year's roadside survey.

When that happens, "we explain to him that he is over the legal limit," Mrs. Schoenrock said. "They say they're glad we're not the police." Very few are belligerent, she added.

If a participant is determined legally intoxicated, persons associated with the survey search for alternative means of transportation for him, she said. If the person insists on getting behind the wheel of a car, the police officer is authorized to make an arrest. "That hasn't happened, to my knowledge, in the four years of the survey," Mrs. Schoenrock said.

The police officer charged with flagging down motorists also may arrest any driver who refuses to consent to the survey — if he or she is judged to be intoxicated, according to the survey's procedural outline.

During the interview, the participants are asked such questions as how they would rate themselves as drinkers, if they had had a drink in the last two hours, how many times they consumed alcohol in the past seven days, if they had ever mixed alcohol and drugs, how much alcohol they thought they could consume in an hour and still legally drive and other questions, both specific and general.

The roadside survey, the fourth in as many years, was conducted during a four-week period, four nights (Wednesday through Saturday) a week, eight hours a night (7 p.m. to 3 a.m.) and at 64 well-traveled locations.

The aim of the test, funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation, is to assess the drinking and driving patterns of Lincoln motorists and help educate citizens, said Dr. Ann Ruesch, LASAP assistant director of public education and information.

The results of the 1974 survey, completed this weekend, will not be known for some time. Preliminary results of the 1973 installment show that participants having a BAC of .05%.or higher increased from 9% in 1971 and 1972, to 10% in 1973. Three percent of those surveyed in 1973 had a BAC of .10% or more, the same as 1971, but up 1% from 1972, according to Melodie Mayberry, LASAP project evaluator.

In 1971, 21% of all participants tested showed traces of alcohol. That figure increased to 25% in 1972 and 1973, she said.

The number of persons who knew the legal limit of BAC more than doubled from 1971, when 21% could pinpoint the legal percentage, to 1973, when 44% were able to respond correctly to the question, Ms. Mayberry said.

The number of driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrests, however, seems to be on the rise. As of the end of October, 1,632 such arrests were made — the same number of DWI arrests made during the entire calendar year 1973, Jochem said.

Nine of the 16 traffic fatalities recorded in Lincoln through the first 10 months of the year were alcohol-related, he added.

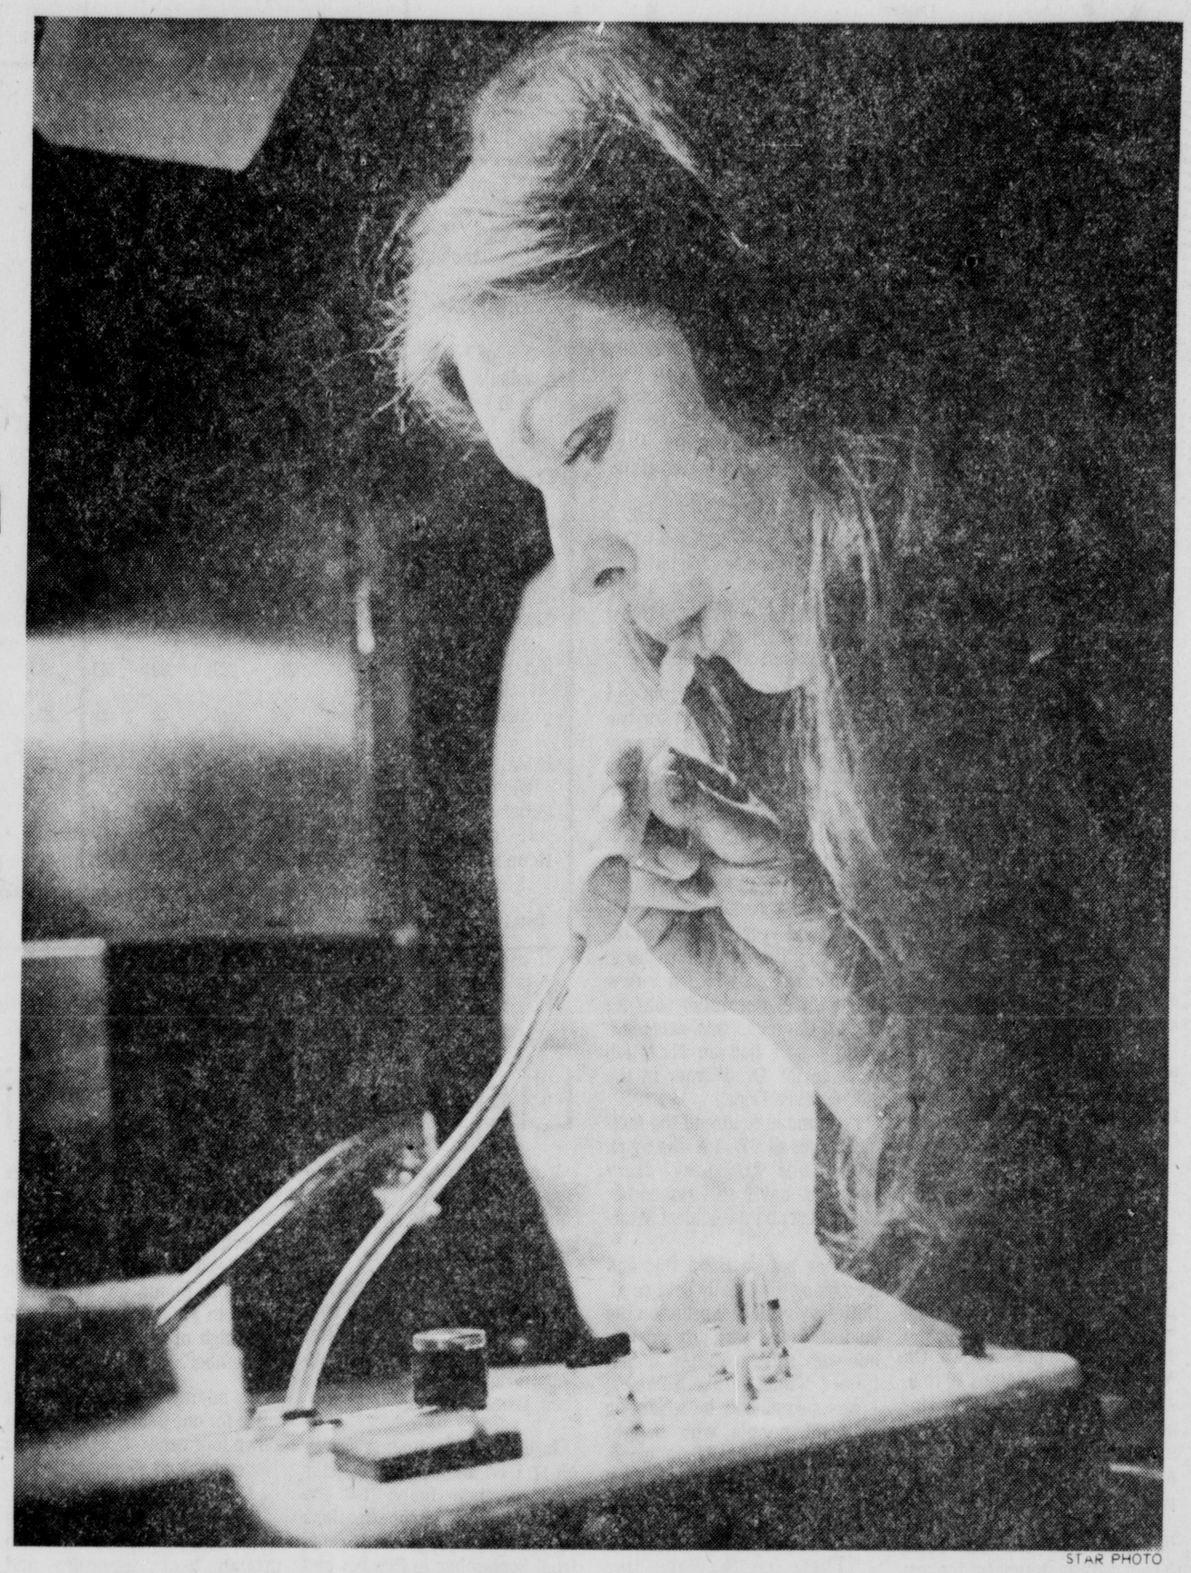

Less than 10% of all accidents taking place within the city limits are alcohol-related, Dr. Rruesch said.

LASAP, which is devoted to reducing the frequency and severity of alcohol-related automobile accidents in Lincoln, also has purchased equipment, and pays the salaries of the seven Lincoln police officers who make up the "LASAP Squad." Jochem said.

Those officers are specially-trained to give chemical tests, process and apprehend intoxicated persons driving on the city's streets, he said.

"There are more drunk (drivers) than we can come close to apprehending," Jochem said, refuting oft-heard accusations that the police and LASAP were involved in persecution and entrapment through the use of special devices.

"Once a person gets in the car and is impaired, it's like putting a red light on the car," he said. "Any sober person can tell."

Pants Are Still In

New York — For those of you who are beginning to wonder about the status of pants, relax. Sure, skirts are enjoying a renaissance. But pants aren't being tossed into the dustbin of fashion. Monday, two prestigious designers endorsed them as spring openings on seventh avenue went into their second week.

Pajamas, really, as Bill Blass sees them. He offers two interpretations to wear at night. One, in Emerald green crpe de chine, is sleek and sophisticated. The other, in a pale background wallpaper print, is demure and feminine.

Geoffrey Beene takes an even stronger stand. For day and playtime, he shows pants in khaki-colored cotton as well as blue denim in his inexpensive Beene Bag division.

He switches over to linen or raw silk for more formal daytime occasions, and for evening, he goes all out: The pants are printed in delicate designs on delicate silks, they're cut loose and flowing, and they're paired with easy tops.

Clinic Offers Breast Exam

Planned Parenthood of Lincoln is sponsoring a free breast exam clinic for women on November 8. The purpose of the clinic is to both provide the examination and to teach women how to examine their own breasts.

Dr. Kenneth McGinnis, a Lincoln gynecologist is volunteering his services for the clinic. An Intern from Bryan Hospital will also be at the clinic.

The clinic is limited in size. Women desiring this examination should call the center at 466-2387 to make an appointment.

Right Cloth Is Important For Dusting

The right cloth is important when you dust and polish furniture.

Old diapers, terry toweling, cotton knitwear, or flannel clothes are good choices.

Cheesecloth usually contains a starch sizing material and is not recommended unless it has been laundered several times and the sizing has been removed.

Oiled or treated dust clothes should never be used on a waxed surface because oil softens the wax and the surface can become sticky or smeary.

Other types of clothes to avoid are coarse material, fabrics that may be sized or linty, old clothing that may have buttons, snaps or trimming to scratch the finish, and synthetic fabrics that will not absorb moisture.

Flower Had Uses

The "Clove gillyflower" used for many medicinal purposes by women in colonial times is today's carnation.

The Aim Of The Test

This fall 640 persons have voluntarily taken a breathalyzer test — the aim of the test is to assess the drinking and driving patterns of Lincoln motorists and help educate citizens.

Volunteers Flagged Down

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Jackie Noel was out for a drive early one evening.

Suddenly, from out of no where jumped a police officer, signalling her to turn into a well-lighted lane.

It's hard to tell what was going through Ms. Noel's mind for that split-second it took to get her car off the thoroughfare.

"What did I do? Did I just pass through a radar trap?" She may have been asking herself those or similar questions.

While the uniformed officer stood by, another man approached her car and handed her a letter from Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf explaining why she had been stopped, seeking her cooperation.

Ms. Noel was one of 640 persons who participated in a roadside survey conducted this fall by the Lincoln Alcohol Safety Action Project (LASAP).

She was asked to take a Breathalyzer test to determine if she had any alcohol in her system and to answer questions concerning her drinking and driving habits.

She could have refused to be a voluntary participant; about one of 10 do.

The uniformed officer, working on an overtime basis, assists in the survey "because we deal with traffic on the street" and therefore must have a qualified, official person to recruit motorists, said Ruch Jochem, LASAP law enforcement coordinator.

"When they tell me to get one, I take the first in line," the officer said. "I don't look for one who looks like he is drunk."

Once an individual has consented to submit to the survey, he/she first is asked to blow into the Breathalyzer for seven seconds. By the time the interview has been completed, the results of the breath test have been processed.

The Breathalyzer test is designed to measure a person's blood alcohol content (BAC). By state law, if the BAC is .10% or higher, a person cannot legally drive.

On the average, about one person per evening is determined legally intoxicated, said Barbara Schoenrock, research associate for Edutek, which was contracted to conduct this year's roadside survey.

When that happens, "we explain to him that he is over the legal limit," Mrs. Schoenrock said. "They say they're glad we're not the police." Very few are belligerent, she added.

If a participant is determined legally intoxicated, persons associated with the survey search for alternative means of transportation for him, she said. If the person insists on getting behind the wheel of a car, the police officer is authorized to make an arrest. "That hasn't happened, to my knowledge, in the four years of the survey," Mrs. Schoenrock said.

The police officer charged with flagging down motorists also may arrest any driver who refuses to consent to the survey — if he or she is judged to be intoxicated, according to the survey's procedural outline.

During the interview, the participants are asked such questions as how they would rate themselves as drinkers, if they had had a drink in the last two hours, how many times they consumed alcohol in the past seven days, if they had ever mixed alcohol and drugs, how much alcohol they thought they could consume in an hour and still legally drive and other questions, both specific and general.

The roadside survey, the fourth in as many years, was conducted during a four-week period, four nights (Wednesday through Saturday) a week, eight hours a night (7 p.m. to 3 a.m.) and at 64 well-traveled locations.

The aim of the test, funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation, is to assess the drinking and driving patterns of Lincoln motorists and help educate citizens, said Dr. Ann Ruesch, LASAP assistant director of public education and information.

The results of the 1974 survey, completed this weekend, will not be known for some time. Preliminary results of the 1973 installment show that participants having a BAC of .05% or higher increased from 9% in 1971 and 1972, to 10% in 1973. Three percent of those surveyed in 1973 had a BAC of .10% or more, the same as 1971, but up 1% from 1972, according to Melodie Mayberry, LASAP project evaluator.

In 1971, 21% of all participants tested showed traces of alcohol. That figure increased to 25% in 1972 and 1973, she said.

The number of persons who knew the legal limit of BAC more than doubled from 1971, when 21% could pinpoint the legal percentage, to 1973, when 44% were able to respond correctly to the question, Ms. Mayberry said.

The number of driving while intoxicated (DWI) arrests, however, seems to be on the rise. As of the end of October, 1,632 such arrests were made — the same number of DWI arrests made during the entire calendar year 1973, Jochem said.

Nine of the 16 traffic fatalities recorded in Lincoln through the first 10 months of the year were alcohol-related, he added.

Less than 10% of all accidents taking place within the city limits are alcohol-related, Dr. Rruesch said.

LASAP, which is devoted to reducing the frequency and severity of alcohol-related automobile accidents in Lincoln, also has purchased equipment, and pays the salaries of the seven Lincoln police officers who make up the "LASAP Squad," Jochem said.

Those officers are specially-trained to give chemical tests, process and apprehend intoxicated persons driving on the city's streets, he said.

"There are more drunk (drivers) than we can come close to apprehending," Jochem said, refuting oft-heard accusations that the police and LASAP were involved in persecution and entrapment through the use of special devices.

"Once a person gets in the car and is impaired, it's like putting a red light on the car," he said. "Any sober person can tell."

Editor's Note — The following Write-On column was submitted by Louise Ahlschwede of Barneston. Mrs. Ahlschwede is married to a dairy farmer and has lived in the Wymore-Barneston area for about 18 years. She is the mother of a 24-year-old son and currently her job at the Campbell Soup Co. in Tecumseh occupies much of her time.

By LOUISE AHLSCHWEDE

What makes an Autumn Saturday afternoon in Nebraska so special? Football of course. The Big Red. Our Cornhuskers. The game. The players. The spectators.

Through the years, personnel has changed. Facilities have been modernized. Spirit and enthusiasm abound. Countless fans give rapt attention and the weeks toils and tribulations are temporarily forgotten for one blessed hour.

The term, Big Red, is a fairly recent innovation; but the color was important as many as 34 years ago. My diary confirms this. As a University of Nebraska freshman in 1940, I became a W.A.A. (Women's Athletic Association) sales girl distributing refreshments during the home games. We wore red sweaters and beanies. Selling kept us too busy to follow the game closely. But, it did make it possible for me to be there.

According to my diary, I sold $8.50 worth at the game Oct. 12. On Oct. 26, we played Missouri and won 20 to 7. I made 58¢ at the game.

It rained Nov. 9, though not much during the game.

I had the south bleachers in my territory, and my feet really got wet. I made 70¢ selling $6.00 worth of candy and $1.00 worth of hotdogs. We played Iowa. On Nov. 30, we beat Kansas 20 to 0. Although this is a very inadequate sports report, the scores indicate our teams winnings which enabled them to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

On Dec. 19, I was among the throng that gathered at the Rock Island railway station for the pep rally as we saw the Huskers off for the New Year's Day game.

We did not lead in scoring that time — it was 21 to 13 in favor of Stanford — but classes were dismissed the morning of Jan. 6 so we could welcome our team as they returned to Lincoln. Everyone was happy that Nebraska had participated at the Rose Bowl.

In order to attend school, I worked for my board and room and a dollar a week for bus fare in the household of a lovely family in south Lincoln. Twelve hours of classwork was the most I was allowed to schedule.

Worried about the $47, which I estimated it would cost for the second semester, I wrote my parents soon after Christmas that it was still not too late to reconsider staying in school. They were not easily discouraged. I stayed and attended the next year as well.

My work schedule was altered the second year as my application for residence in Love Memorial Hall, a new cooperative dormitory on Ag (East) Campus, was accepted. That year I had an NYA job working for Dr. Werner in the Horticulture Dept.

I continued to attend the football games as a W.A.A. sales girl. I did not keep my diary anymore, but I still remember the hottest and the coldest Saturdays.

It was hot on Band Day and ice cream bars really sold good. Coffee was the best seller on the coldest day. I was just starting out with a fresh supply at half time. I did not get far. Suddenly I was surrounded by a surging mass of people who bought every cup I had. Then, worse luck, I could not get back to get any more to sell because of the crowd. Anyway it was fun.

"There is no place like Nebraska."

Lincoln Food Prices Edged Downward This Fall

It may only amount to a few cents, but grocery prices in Lincoln have gone down during the last two months.

And however small a good sign it may be, that is what consumers today are looking for, because most have given up hope for any drastic decrease in their grocery budgets.

In a recent continuing survey of 17 food items, Lincoln Star staff members found that the prices of four local supermarkets declined an average of six cents from September to October and another one cent from October to the first of November.

The average total of the four stores surveyed were $13.00 in October, compared to $13.06 for September. November's average total was $12.99.

According to figures on round steak prices, the average price per pound is lower than it was one year ago, due partly to advertised specials at two of the stores last weekend. The average price this month was $1.40 compared to $1.50 one year ago and to a high of $1.88 per pound in September.

In addition, last weekend's price for one pound of bacon was down four cents ($1.61) from last November's $1.65 per pound.

However, those who have been limiting their diets to ground beef casseroles and dishes have not been so lucky — the price per pound this month was 96¢. October's average price was 88¢ per pound and one year ago ground beef was selling for 91¢ per pound.

Uncut chicken has risen from last November's average price of 40¢ per pound to 42¢ at the beginning of this month. However, last weekend's figure was down two cents from October's 44¢.

Likewise, the price for tuna is up (59¢ this month) 10¢ from last November's price of 49¢ for a 6½-ounce can.

As you may have already noticed, flour, spaghetti and bread aren't as inexpensive as they once were.

Flour is now selling for about $1.07 for a five-pound bag, as compared to 99¢ for five pounds of flour last year at this time.

And the price of spaghetti has held at 51¢ per pound, for the last two months, which is up only two cents from one year ago. However, taking a look at the prices in July, 1973, a one pound bag of spaghetti was selling at an average price of 33¢.

Bread was selling at 35¢ per 16-ounce loaf in July, 1973. Now, consumers are paying an average of 47¢.

Other items that have cost more to buy during the last year include frozen peas, which cost 11¢ more than they did a year ago, peanut butter and pork and beans, both of which cost 10¢ more than they did a year ago.

Green beans cost three cents more per 16-ounce can than they did last November and if the prediction of increased vegetable prices becomes a reality, consumers can expect to pay even more during the next year.

Although ketchup prices have risen from 35¢ per 14-ounce bottle last year to 44¢, these, as well as other tomato-based items should stabilize because of this year's plentiful tomato supply.

The price of milk has held at approximately 75¢ per half gallon for the last three months, and eggs seem to have settled around the mid-70¢ mark during September, October and November.

Consumers got a bit of a break at the supermarket during October, an Associated Press survey shows. Grocery prices increased again, but at a slower rate than before.

Sales on meat and eggs helped cut the bill and there were indications that the price of sugar — which has soared 300 per cent in the past year — may be leveling off.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the prices of March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities, and has rechecked at the beginning of succeeding months.

The latest check showed that on the average, the bill for the marketbasket at the start of November was .7% higher than it was at the beginning of October and 13% more than at the start of the year.

The biggest savings in the latest AP survey came at the meat counter.

Mail Shopping Takes 6 Weeks

Too early to talk about Christmas shopping? Not if you are planning to shop by mail.

According to Janet Wilson, Extension consumer education specialist, mail order shopping should begin right now, especially if you will be ordering gifts to be sent to you for re-mailing.

It's best to allow four to six weeks for delivery, Miss Wilson said.

King George Began Pant Cuff Craze

King George V of England may have been responsible for the cuffed pants fashions. To avoid stepping into a puddle one day, the King turned up his pant legs. But once over the puddle, he forgot to turn them down, and when he made his appearance at a speaking engagement—with his pant legs turned up — he immediately created a fashion rage.

Lincolnites Defend No Fault Divorce

By NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

Nebraska's no fault divorce legislation makes it possible for couples to maintain their dignity during the divorce period.

They don't have to "spill their guts," dredge up the bad times of a marriage gone sour or pin a rap on the other partner, according to nine Lincolnites, who gathered last week.

The three men and six women, most middle-aged and most divorced under Nebraska's two-year-old no fault law, asked for the opportunity to describe the benefits of no fault.

Their own divorces point out some of the good aspects of the no fault law, where the only grounds for divorce are that a marriage is irretrievably broken.

— One man and his ex-wife waited six months so they could file for divorce under the newly-enacted no fault legislation. Thus neither person had to be branded as a criminal. The couple, now divorced, still has an amicable relationship.

— The fault concept — digging up past misdeeds and cruelties, looking for instances of cruelty and then finding someone to testify to them — destroyed the possibility of any kind of good divorce relationship, according to one women, who was divorced under the fault law. She and her former husband still do not speak to each other.

— Another woman, who did not want a divorce and might have been able to fight it under the old fault system, has found life much more satisfying as a divorcee. "I would probably not have gotten divorced . . . I would have lived unhappily ever after," she said.

'We've made our mistakes and we feel pretty fortunate that the law allows us not to hang ourselves.'

The Lincoln group asked for a chance to support the no fault concept after recent publicity received by anti-no fault forces.

An attack on Nebraska's unilateral no fault law (one person can get a divorce, even if the spouse wants to stay married) is being led by Ellen Sim Dewey, chairperson for the Marriage, family relations and divorce committee of the Omaha and Bellevue National Organization for Women (NOW).

She has drafted proposed legislation which introduces fault into divorces where one partner does not want the divorce and where the marriage has lasted more than five years or there are children involved.

Her proposed legislation also widens the community property definition to include such things as pension and retirement plans, insurance programs and income capabilities.

The proposal is aimed at giving more protection to the middle-aged or older woman who has remained at home during her married years.

And two women in the Lincoln group, the two who had been married the longest, acknowledged that the no fault law might be unfair to those women who have been married many years. It does not spell out that pension and retirement plans should be divided in these long-term marriages.

One woman, who stayed at home and raised the children during most of her almost 30-year marriage, said she felt her husband's pension programs were also a part of her assets.

While admitting that some inequities may exist under the current law, the group felt that allowing the courts to look into and decide the pension situation would be better than actual changes in the law.

Revisions, reintroducing any fault, could lead the state back into the era of extortion and retribution, where one person would say, "OK, you can have your divorce but you're going to have to sign all your rights away."

The major reforms needed are not within the law itself, but within court operations. The courts need more money and power for investigative work, particularly for child custody problems, the group agreed.

While Ms. Dewey's proposed legislation seems to view marriage as an economic unit, the individuals in this discussion felt that the relationship is the overriding factor of a marriage. And no fault simply makes it simpler legally to disolve a relationship which no longer exists, they said.

Marriage laws are simply adjusting to the times, said Pat James, who organized the discussion.

The problem now is that legislators are hearing from both camps — the women who want the protection afforded under fault and the women who want the liberation to get out of a bad marriage, said Bob LaGow.

Harlan Heald seemed to sum up the feelings of the rest of the group when he said:

"We've made our mistakes and we feel pretty fortunate that the law allows us not to hang ourselves."

Lifesize 'Dolls' Host Shower

The baby shower for Mrs. Glena Knippel was not your ordinary, run-of-the-mill type affair. Instead of dresses or pants outfits, the hostesses painted their faces, donned mops and came as Raggedy Anns and Andys.

Mrs. Jerri Butler spent more than two months gathering the five costumes together for the shower held Sunday at the Union Loan and Savings.

She Doesn't Love Stepson

DEAR ABBY: I married a man who was married before. Phil has a problem son who is now twelve. I have a daughter and son (9 and 11) by a previous marriage. I'm not saying mine are angels, but they respect me and have never been a discipline problem. Phil adores them, and they love him, too.

Phil and I have had this son of his every weekend and every holiday. He is a difficult child. He lies and steals and I'm afraid he will be a bad influence on my children.

Now Phil wants legal custody of his son so the boy can live here with us. Phil's ex will agree gladly because she can't handle him.

Abby, if that boy lives here he will ruin my marriage. Try as I do, I can't even like him, much less love him. When Phil married me he didn't tell me I'd have to take his son.

Phil is pleading with me. He says he'll have the boy counseled. I am torn. I love Phil, but I don't want that boy living here. Can you help me?

TORN

DEAR TORN: Don't battle it out with Phil. Get some counseling to resolve all those hostile feelings about an unfortunate, emotionally insecure (and possibly damaged) 12-year-old boy.

The only thing the lad doesn't need is to be placed in a home where another "mother" doesn't want him. He needs a lot of love. Please open up your heart to this boy and give him the same break your children have: TWO parents who love him. It could do wonders for him.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married at one of the loveliest weddings this town has even seen. We had everything planned down to the last detail, and nothing was left to chance. Needless to say, it cost us a lot of money, but it was worth it.

The morning of the wedding, the minister who was to officiate phoned to say he had FOURTEEN houseguests—his three daughters and their husbands, his mother and dad, and six grandchildren—and could he bring them to the wedding, the reception and dinner as well? We had planned a sitdown dinner after the reception.

I couldn't very well tell him he couldn't, so I said yes. Abby, have you ever heard of such nerve? I am still upset about it, and wonder if there was any way to have turned him down politely without making an enemy of him for life. I later learned that two of his daughters were not "visiting" as he said they were. They had recently moved to town.

FUMING IN FLORIDA

DEAR FUMING: I can't say whether a negative response would have made an enemy of him for life, but you could have told him that you couldn't accommodate 14 extra.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bridge lends itself to the use of numerous bidding conventions. In general, it is best for a partnership to adopt as few artificial bids as possible, for too many conventions lead to too many misunderstandings. Nevertheless the fact remains that in a well-oiled partnership it is possible to effectively employ a liberal handful of worthwhile conventions.

Take this deal which occurred in the Playoff for the right to represent North America in the 1971 world championship. Pitted against each other were a Los Angeles team and a New York team. Oddly enough, this was Board No. 1 of the 160-board match.

When the Westerners held the hands shown, they bid as follows:

West	East
1 ♣	1 ♠
2 ♠	3 ♥
4 ♠	4 NT
5 ♥	6 ♠

Declarer went down one when he lost two trump tricks.

When the New York team held the East-West hands, their bidding went:

West	East
1 ♣	1 ♠
2 ♠	3 ♥
4 ♠	4 NT
5 ♥	5 ♠

The bidding was the same as at the first table except that East, on his last turn, bid five spades instead of six.

However, there was much more meaning to the East-West bidding than meets the eye.

This pair were using a convention called Key-Card Blackwood, according to which the responder to four notrump treats the king of trumps as an ace. In effect, this means there are five aces in the deck!

So when West bid five hearts in response to four notrump, East knew his partner had either two aces without the king of trumps, or one ace with the king of trumps.

This in turn meant that a slam would either automatically go down or at best depend on a finesse. So East closed the bidding with five spades, which was made, and the New York team got off to a flying start with a 500-point gain on the deal.

The Los Angeles team won the match, but Key-Card Blackwood registered a clear-cut victory on the first hand.

Editor's Note — The following Write-On column was submitted by Louise Ahlschwede of Barneston. Mrs. Ahlschwede is married to a dairy farmer and has lived in the Wymore-Barneston area for about 18 years. She is the mother of a 24-year-old son and currently her job at the Campbell Soup Co. in Tecumseh occupies much of her time.

By LOUISE AHLSCHWEDE

What makes an Autumn Saturday afternoon in Nebraska so special? Football of course. The Big Red. Our Cornhuskers. The game. The players. The spectators.

Through the years, personnel has changed. Facilities have been modernized. Spirit and enthusiasm abound. Countless fans give rapt attention and the weeks toils and tribulations are temporarily forgotten for one blessed hour.

The term, Big Red, is a fairly recent innovation; but the color was important as many as 34 years ago. My diary confirms this As a University of Nebraska freshman in 1940, I became a W.A.A (Women's Athletic Association) sales girl distributing refreshments during the home games. We wore red sweaters and beanies. Selling kept us too busy to follow the game closely. But, it did make it possible for me to be there.

According to my diary, I sold $8.50 worth at the game Oct. 12. On Oct 26, we played Missouri and won 20 to 7. I made 58¢ at the game.

It rained Nov. 9, though not much during the game.

I had the south bleachers in my territory, and my feet really got wet. I made 70¢ selling $6.00 worth of candy and $1.00 worth of hotdogs. We played Iowa. On Nov. 30, we beat Kansas 20 to 0. Although this is a very inadequate sports report, the scores indicate our teams winnings which enabled them to play Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

On Dec. 19, I was among the throng that gathered at the Rock Island railway station for the pep rally as we saw the Huskers off for the New Year's Day game.

We did not lead in scoring that time — it was 21 to 13 in favor of Stanford — but classes were dismissed the morning of Jan. 6 so we could welcome our team as they returned to Lincoln. Everyone was happy that Nebraska had participated at the Rose Bowl.

In order to attend school, I worked for my board and room and a dollar a week for bus fare in the household of a lovely family in south Lincoln. Twelve hours of classwork was the most I was allowed to schedule.

Worried about the $47, which I estimated it would cost for the second semester, I wrote my parents soon after Christmas that it was still not too late to reconsider staying in school. They were not easily discouraged. I stayed and attended the next year as well.

My work schedule was altered the second year as my application for residence in Love Memorial Hall, a new cooperative dormitory on Ag (East) Campus, was accepted. That year I had an NYA job working for Dr. Werner in the Horticulture Dept.

I continued to attend the football games as a W.A.A. sales girl. I did not keep my diary anymore, but I still remember the hottest and the coldest Saturdays.

It was hot on Band Day and ice cream bars really sold good. Coffee was the best seller on the coldest day. I was just starting out with a fresh supply at half time. I did not get far. Suddenly I was surrounded by a surging mass of people who bought every cup I had. Then, worse luck, I could not get back to get any more to sell because of the crowd. Anyway it was fun.

"There is no place like Nebraska."

Lincoln Food Prices Edged Downward This Fall

It may only amount to a few cents, but grocery prices in Lincoln have gone down during the last two months.

And however small a good sign it may be, that is what consumers today are looking for, because most have given up hope for any drastic decrease in their grocery budgets.

In a recent continuing survey of 17 food items, Lincoln Star staff members found that the prices of four local supermarkets declined an average of six cents from September to October and another one cent from October to the first of November.

The average total of the four stores surveyed were $13.00 in October, compared to $13.06 for September November's average total was $12.99.

According to figures on round steak prices, the average price per pound is lower than it was one year ago, due partly to advertised specials at two of the stores last weekend. The average price this month was $1.40 compared to $1.50 one year ago and to a high of $1.88 per pound in September.

In addition, last weekend's price for one pound of bacon was down four cents ($1.61) from last November's $1.65 per pound.

However, those who have been limiting their diets to ground beef casseroles and dishes have not been so lucky — the price per pound this month was 96¢. October's average price was 88¢ per pound and one year ago ground beef was selling for 91¢ per pound.

Uncut chicken has risen from last November's average price of 40¢ per pound to 42¢ at the beginning of this month. However, last weekend's figure was down two cents from October's 44¢.

Likewise, the price for tuna is up (59¢ this month) 10¢ from last November's price of 49¢ for a 6½-ounce can.

As you may have already noticed, flour, spaghetti and bread aren't as inexpensive as they once were.

Flour is now selling for about $1.07 for a five-pound bag, as compared to 99¢ for five pounds of flour last year at this time.

And the price of spaghetti has held at 51¢ per pound, for the last two months, which is up only two cents from one year ago. However, taking a look at the prices in July, 1973, a one pound bag of spaghetti was selling at an average price of 33¢.

Bread was selling at 35¢ per 16-ounce loaf in July, 1973. Now, consumers are paying an average of 47¢.

Other items that have cost more to buy during the last year include frozen peas, which cost 11¢ more than they did a year ago, peanut butter and pork and beans, both of which cost 10¢ more than they did a year ago.

Green beans cost three cents more per 16-ounce can than they did last November and if the prediction of increased vegetable prices becomes a reality, consumers can expect to pay even more during the next year.

Although ketchup prices have risen from 35¢ per 14-ounce bottle last year to 44¢, these, as well as other tomato-based items should stabilize because of this year's plentiful tomato supply.

The price of milk has held at approximately 75¢ per half gallon for the last three months, and eggs seem to have settled around the mid-70¢ mark during September, October and November.

Consumers got a bit of a break at the supermarket during October, an Associated Press survey shows. Grocery prices increased again, but at a slower rate than before.

Sales on meat and eggs helped cut the bill and there were indications that the price of sugar — which has soared 300 per cent in the past year — may be leveling off.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the prices of March 1, 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities, and has rechecked at the beginning of succeeding months.

The latest check showed that on the average, the bill for the marketbasket at the start of November was 7% higher than it was at the beginning of October and 13% more than at the start of the year.

The biggest savings in the latest AP survey came at the meat counter.

Mail Shopping Takes 6 Weeks

Too early to talk about Christmas shopping? Not if you are planning to shop by mail.

According to Janet Wilson, Extension consumer education specialist, mail order shopping should begin right now, especially if you will be ordering gifts to be sent to you for re-mailing.

It's best to allow four to six weeks for delivery, Miss Wilson said.

King George Began Pant Cuff Craze

King George V of England may have been responsible for the cuffed pants fashions. To avoid stepping into a puddle one day, the King turned up his pant legs. But once over the puddle, he forgot to turn them down, and when he made his appearance at a speaking engagement—with his pant legs turned up — he immediately created a fashion rage.

Sugar And Oil—Stories Of Profits And Pain

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar and oil are both stories of prices profits and pocketbook pain in 1974.

Prices, because worldwide shortages of both energy sources have caused crude oil and raw sugar prices to rise by more than 400 per cent in a year, pulling retail prices up with them.

Profits, because producers and some refiners of both commodities have reaped tremendous windfalls.

And pain, because the consumer has had to pay the price. Try as he can, the public hasn't been able to cut demand or find alternatives fast enough.

Nor is the prospect brighter for the consumer in 1975. Experts doubt the producing nations' oil cartel can be broken soon, or that sugar supplies will soon creep up to meet demand.

"It's fairly gloomy for supplies and prices," notes John Casstevens, sugar analyst for Reynolds Securities in New York. "If sugar prices were going to decline, they'd be declining right now."

Last Friday the spot price for raw sugar on domestic markets was around 45 cents a pound, over four times the 9.55 cents recorded a year ago. On the retail level sugar has increased from around 75 cents a five-pound bag to as much as $2.50 a bag today.

Likewise free world crude oil prices have skyrocketed, from around $3.50 a barrel last fall to as high as $12 a barrel last summer. Gasoline prices, as drivers well know, have nearly doubled in some areas.

At first many analysts attributed the sharp rise in oil prices to supply and demand factors, but with consumption down and prices still high, most are now placing the blame at the feet of the producing nations, whose organization of petroleum exporting countries serves as a classic marketers' cartel.

In sugar, despite similar reliance on supplies from many developing nations, like Brazil and Cuba, most experts point rather to a classic supply-demand scenario.

For four years, because of unfavorable prices and inclement weather, says Casstevens, world consumption has exceeded world production, forcing companies to dip into inventories and placing upward pressure on prices.

Curiously, though, analysts say the oil producers have also contributed to higher sugar prices. "The Arabs have been buying very, very heavily, more than ever before," says Marvin Gelles, assistant to the director of the Sugar Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The oil nations have the money to spend, Gelles explains, and they want to improve the living conditions of their own people." The amount of Arab purchasing is difficult to ascertain, though some say it's up 25 per cent from a year ago.

Higher prices have brought big profits to both sugar and crude oil producers.

Oil profits have been well publicized. During the past year most companies who drill their own crude have registered big gains over year-earlier periods, because the oil they produce has been worth a lot more. In the past 12 months, for example, Exxon Corp. has earned approximately $3 billion after taxes, up about 50 per cent from the previous 12-month period.

As in oil, sugar price increases have flowed to producers predominantly. The higher prices have quickly covered the growers' costs, and what's left has gone toward earnings. That's why big producers like Holly Sugar Inc., Great Western Sugar, and the Spreckles division of Amstar Corp. have seen profits rise by as much as 860 per cent over similar periods a year ago.

Like the oil companies, the sugar companies say the earnings come on top of poor results in previous years.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Psychologist Carl Jung, a Leo, did understand astrology. He knew its principles and wrote about it and practiced it. And his research caused him to conclude that, "Whatever is born or done at this moment of time has the qualities of this moment of time."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emotional responses are intensified. Gemini and Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Accent is on money and neighbors, money and relatives. You get to heart of matters and you learn who it is you must contact. Red tape begins to unravel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your qualities of determination, loyalty will be called upon. You will be dealing with persons who want their own way — almost at any cost. Check details, read between the lines. Be aware of fine print. Take nothing for granted. Get appraisal of art, property.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Steer clear of crowds — traffic and otherwise. You need time alone to collect thoughts. Be analytical — form creative questions. Realize that only neophytes claim to know all answers. Another Gemini and a Virgo come into focus. You're going to get quick service from aggressive individual.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Come to grips with reality of money situation. There will be quick changes and you should be aware of who owns what — and what you have coming to you. Don't be rushed into decision. Protect assets. You have right to fair deal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel a need to know. Cycle is such that you can be entertained—but you will also assert your right to know. Message will be clarified. Pisces, Virgo and Aquarius figure prominently. Television, radio appearance is indicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your sense of responsibility is highlighted. You find what is hidden and make it work. You visit those confined to home or hospital. You face shadows and make others know difference between the real and the fantasy. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You learn to close a deal. You finish. You are stronger at the end than at the outset. You reach beyond apparent limitations. You advertise, publicize and get meanings across to more people. Aries, Libra are likely to be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New, creative touch, approach is featured. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. You get plenty of action. You find who is on your side and who is wishing you would fail. You could also fall madly in love!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Trust hunch. Learn and teach. Deal gingerly with older family member. You learn secrets. You get "in touch" with one at a distance. You open lines of communication. You feel more alive than in recent past. Aquarian figures in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend is apt to be aggressive. You socialize. You get into lively discussion which could deteriorate into argument. Know it and maintain balance. Stick to principles but don't deny others the right to their own beliefs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Legal matters, involving relatives, tend to dominate. You do some tearing down in the hope of rebuilding. Accent is on time, waiting, the fulfillment of promise by those close to you. Let others reveal their plans. Keep some options open. Refuse to be painted into corner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Basic services are highlighted. Persons who care for you let you know it. You gain greater feeling of security. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Quick changes occur. Travel and communications push aside less important issues.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, are loyal, artistic and tend to break rules when you feel like it. Diet is important but you have a "sweet tooth." Taurus, Libra individuals play key roles in your life. You travel in 1975 and you socialize — and May will be your most important month. You are an intense, romantic individual and you tend to love some who are not worthy.

Newsy Organ, Chatty Furnace Found Near Chicago

Chicago (AP) — A woman in suburban Westmont says she has gotten used to a popular Chicago disc-jockey speaking from her furnace.

But an east-suburban Schaumburg church decided it had to do something about the church organ that flashed news bulletins during Sunday services.

The furnace with the resonant voice and the news-minded electric organ are sometimes joined in Chicago's far suburbs by singing house siding, talking rain gutters and electric blankets that dispense news and weather along with warmth.

The Federal Communications Commission in Chicago says its all due to the transmission towers for the city's six 50,000-watt AM-radio giants.

The towers, built when the far suburbs were mostly pastures, project enormous amounts of radio-frequency energy.

George Sklom, an assistant FCC engineer, said corrosion between metal joints can act as a radio detector, much like the simple crystal sets or "cat's whisker" radios of years ago.

"What complaints we get are usually in homes built long enough ago so that some corrosion has occurred in their heating ducts, metal siding or gutters," he said.

Station engineers said poorly shielded or grounded electronic equipment sometimes also develops speech.

The church organ that was relaying the broadcasts of all news WBBM was cured of worldly concerns when a station engineer installed an electronic filter. Authorities said other chatty home furnishings may be silenced with grounding strips or filters.

But James Loupas, director of engineering for WCFL, said he recently talked the Westmont zoning board out of letting a hospital be built a little more than a mile from WCFL's 500-foot towers.

Loupas said he told the board that "if you allow a hospital that close, you'll kill people." He said that the transmission tower would interfere with medical equipment and create dangerous static charges.

Loupas also discourages high-rise construction near giant transmitters. "Anything of steel construction above three stories acts like a giant receiving antenna," he said. "The building would be so 'hot' you'd have music and news coming out of the light switches."

Movies Stolen After X-Rated Theater Closed

Detroit (UPI) — Police are looking for thieves who made off with a very hot haul — 120 blue movies.

Police say they believe the thieves stayed behind when an X-rated cinema closed, then packed the films into two garbage cans and carried them away.

The films were valued at $24,000 by the theater owners.

Also taken, police said, was an office safe containing about $1,100 in bills and change and three 16mm movie projectors.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

How many people do you knwo who cannot resist trying a friend or relative's leftover medicine? The Nebraska Medical Association reports that the ancient Babylonians had a quaint custom of placing a sick person on his bed in the street, so that everyone passing by could offer advice as to the most likely cure.

People still get poisoned that way every day. Other people's medicine and self-diagnosis can be deadly.

Reactions to drugs differ a great deal with different people. Even in the same person drugs differ if taken at different times and under different conditions. The wrong medicine not only gives no permanent relief, but cnn cover up symptoms of real illness, postpone proper treatment, and often, allow serious disease to progress unchecked.

The Nebraska Medical Association says you should never borrow someone else's medicine. A prescription is for one patient, one purpose, and one period of illness.

Chek-A-Date! Guarantees Freshness

Chek A Date is on the label of every package of meat sold at Hinky Dinky. It tells you the date when the package will be removed from sale.

It's your guarantee of absolute freshness.

While the meat we remove from sale is still fresh enough to be sold at most stores, it's no longer up to Hinky Dinky's high standards of quality.

Clawson Resigns

Washington (UPI)—President Ford accepted the resignation of Ken W. Clawson, a White House press aide under former President Richard M. Nixon.

Newspaper Carrier Killed By Bomb Linked To Gang

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Anstett, 15, got up before daybreak Tuesday to deliver newspapers on his route on the city's Northwest Side, just as he had six days a week for the last three years.

After delivering his papers, he planned to go home and have breakfast with his family, including a brother and sister who also had newspaper routes.

Then he would go to school, the ninth grade. Perhaps he would play a little sandlot basketball after school, as was his habit.

Shortly after 6 a.m., he turned onto 83rd Street, on schedule. He saw a plain cardboard box about a foot square on the top of a late model car parked at the curb.

Larry, naturally curious, picked up the box.

An explosion killed him instantly.

Authorities said the bomb was apparently the latest violence in a feud between two rival motorcycle gangs and may have been meant for the owner of the car, Michael Vermilyea, 23. Vermilyea was inside his parents' home getting ready to go to work at a Milwaukee factory when the explosion went off.

Vermilyea, a member of a motorcycle club called Heaven's Devils, testified earlier this year at the robbery trial of two members of a rival gang, the Outlaws. The two were sentenced to seven years in prison for stealing $3 and a club shoulder patch from a Heaven's Devils member at gunpoint last spring.

"I think the bomb was meant for my son," said R.K. Vermilyea, whose home was sprayed by gunfire from a passing car last summer.

"We heard the explosion and my son went out to look while I called the police," said the elder Vermilyea. "He came running back in and said there was a body next to the car.

"Just because my son was honest enough to testify, this is what happens. These people have got to be stopped."

"We've never had anything like this happen before," said Leroy Priefer, The Milwaukee Sentinel's circulation manager. "It's vicious, inhuman. It happened only a block and a half from Wright Junior High, where Larry went to school. A little later and a lot of kids would have been walking by there. Any one of them could have picked it up."

Police gave no description of the type of explosive used in the bomb.

BOXED BOMB . . . was placed on roof of club member's car.

Indonesia Hikes Price Of Sugar

Jakarta (AP) — Indonesia has raised its sugar prices by 20% because of soaring prices of the commodity on the world market.

A cabinet meeting decided to raise sugar prices at factories from 26 cents to 32 cents a kilogram.

A presidental spokesman said the move was aimed at reducing government subsidies for importing sugar, now $1,200 a ton, or six times the domestic prices.

Newsy Organ, Chatty Furnace Found Near Chicago

Chicago (AP) — A woman in suburban Westmont says she has gotten used to a popular Chicago disc-jockey speaking from her furnace.

But an east-suburban Schaumburg church decided it had to do something about the church organ that flashed news bulletins during Sunday services.

The furnace with the resonant voice and the news-minded electric organ are sometimes joined in Chicago's far suburbs by singing house siding, talking rain gutters and electric blankets that dispense news and weather along with warmth.

The Federal Communications Commission in Chicago says its all due to the transmission towers for the city's six 50,000-watt AM-radio giants.

The towers, built when the far suburbs were mostly pastures, project enormous amounts of radio-frequency energy.

George Sklom, an assistant FCC engineer, said corrosion between metal joints can act as a radio detector, much like the simple crystal sets or "cat's whisker" radios of years ago.

"What complaints we get are usually in homes built long enough ago so that some corrosion has occurred in their heating ducts, metal siding or gutters," he said.

Station engineers said poorly shielded or grounded electronic equipment sometimes also develops speech.

The church organ that was relaying the broadcasts of all news WBBM was cured of worldly concerns when a station engineer installed an electronic filter. Authorities said other chatty home furnishings may be silenced with grounding strips or filters.

But James Loupas, director of engineering for WCFL, said he recently talked the Westmont zoning board out of letting a hospital be built a little more than a mile from WCFL's 500-foot towers.

Loupas said he told the board that "if you allow a hospital that close, you'll kill people." He said that the transmission tower would interfere with medical equipment and create dangerous static charges.

Loupas also discourages high-rise construction near giant transmitters. "Anything of steel construction above three stories acts like a giant receiving antenna," he said. "The building would be so 'hot' you'd have music and news coming out of the light switches."

Movies Stolen After X-Rated Theater Closed

Detroit (UPI) — Police are looking for thieves who made off with a very hot haul — 120 blue movies.

Police say they believe the thieves stayed behind when an X-rated cinema closed, then packed the films into two garbage cans and carried them away.

The films were valued at $24,000 by the theater owners.

Also taken, police said, was an office safe containing about $1,100 in bills and change and three 16mm movie projectors.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

How many people do you knwo who cannot resist trying a friend or relative's leftover medicine? The Nebraska Medical Association reports that the ancient Babylonians had a quaint custom of placing a sick person on his bed in the street, so that everyone passing by could offer advice as to the most likely cure

People still get poisoned that way every day. Other people's medicine and self-diagnosis can be deadly.

Reactions to drugs differ a great deal with different people. Even in the same person drugs differ if taken at different times and under different conditions. The wrong medicine not only gives no permanent relief, but can cover up symptoms of real illness, postpone proper treatment, and often, allow serious disease to progress unchecked.

The Nebraska Medical Association says you should never borrow someone else's medicine. A prescription is for one patient, one purpose, and one period of illness.

Confusion, Bad Luck, Bungling Result From Parents' Calls For Aid

HELP!

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The 20-month-old toddler scooted across the living room carpet, one hand firmly clutching his bottle of milk, the other reaching out for the control knob on the color television.

Jerry Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Hughes, 1144 S. 11th, appears to be a normal, happy, healthy baby, with a fair-sized dose of curiosity thrown in for good measure.

He's a little fussier now, but otherwise he seems to be OK," his mother said. "We're just glad he's still alive."

Last week the Hugheses had a "very close call" with little Jerry. It's an experience they aren't likely to forget or forgive for some time.

Late last Tuesday the family was visiting friends in Wabash, a community about 35 miles east of Lincoln. About 11:30 that night, the baby started coughing and gagging for air.

Fuel Oil In Lungs

Apparently he had swallowed some fuel oil and it had settled in his lungs, Mrs. Hughes said.

The next two hours were a combination of confusion, rotten luck and just plain bungling, according to the baby's father.

Hughes said he has heard explanations from the State Patrol, Bryan Memorial Hospital Poison Control Center and the Lincoln Police Dept. Still, he said, he's not satisfied.

"I'd just like to know why it is so difficult to get help in a life and death emergency situation," he said.

For one thing, a doctor and a nurse told them that night that the baby should be given raw egg to induce vomiting, then milk, Mrs. Hughes said. Later she learned that baby should have been given only milk.

Call Disconnected

Adding to the immediate confusion, a long-distance call to the poison Control Center at Bryan Memorial Hospital was accidentally disconnected.

Hughes said he decided time was wasting so the family scrambled into the pickup-camper and hightailed it to Lincoln. En route he stopped in Elmwood to summon help on the 911 emergency line.

"I tried 911," Hughes said, "and it wouldn't ring. Then I tried 112-911. Still nothing. So I dailed 0-911 and that didn't work either.

"We've been brainwashed to rely on 911," he continued. "I've been to people's houses and they have it tacked up on the wall. They don't realize it's not good everywhere."

Hughes said he finally dialed a long-distance operator, who promised to relay the message to the State Patrol.

"Even if they drove only 55, with red lights flashing they'd have clear sailing," he said. "They could certainly make better time than I could with that camper."

But no help came. At 1:30 a.m. the family pulled up to the emergency entrance of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center. The baby was hospitalized there until Saturday.

"The entire ride was terrifying," Mrs. Hughes said. "I kept shaking Jerry and screaming at him to keep him from falling asleep."

"I begged for help and where was everybody?" Hughes said, shaking his head in disgust.

He said he has only a handful of people to thank that his son is still alive — fellow Citizens Band (CB) operators and the long-distance operator at Elmwood.

Some Offered Help

"I did get 100% cooperation from CB operators," he said. "Several people offered to meet us outside town and help us on in, even if they got a speeding ticket."

The State Patrol said no one could come to Hughes' aid because the only car in the area was en route to Nebraska City with a prisoner.

Between midnight and 2 a.m. on week nights only five troopers normally patrol roads leading out of Lincoln, said Sgt. David Wolbert. Therefore, the plea for help was relayed to the Lincoln Police Dept.

At Hughes' urging, William R. Hoppner, one of Gov. J. James Exon's assistants, said he requested and received a report of the incident from Col. Cletus P. Karthauser of the State Patrol.

After reviewing the content of the "verbal report," Hoppner said, "I think they did everything they could under the circumstances."

Inspector Dean Leitner of the Lincoln Police Dept. also maintains that his department followed regulations and "did what it could to help."

Policemen routinely meet ambulances at the city limits to help negotiate congested traffic and help find the nearest hospital, Leitner said.

Outside the city limits, the Police Department has no jurisdication, he said. But in emergencies "we'll assist state and sheriff's officers on request," he said.

"In this case, the State Patrol only asked us to meet Hughes at the city limits."

Misunderstanding

Leitner said one of twelve police units on duty that night was sent to escort the Hughes family. But due to a misunderstanding, the policeman was waiting on West O street rather than East O Street.

The desk sargeant apparently understood the Patrol to say the vehicle was two miles west of Lincoln "coming east on O Street," instead of "coming from the east on O Street," Leitner said.

Hughes claims he was also told by Leitner that police vehicles can't exceed the speed limit, even in such an emergency.

When questioned on the issue by The Star, Leitner admitted he didn't know if law enforcement vehicles can or cannot exceed the speed limits in emergency situations.

"It's my opinion they can," he said finally. "As far as I know there is no restriction on speed of police vehicles. But for the safety of others, we have a policy here where we won't in the city."

No Ambulance

Hughes also questions why an ambulance wasn't dispatched to meet the pickup outside of town.

"They told us they were afraid we might miss each other," Hughes said. "I'm sure at 1 o'clock in the morning we were the only red '65 Dodge with a camper on the road going 50 miles an hour.

Hughes said he'd like to know why the malfunction in the switchboard at Bryan Hospital wasn't corrected before "since apparently they were aware of it . . .

"What were they waiting for? A death?"

In all, Hughes is not about to let up until some cogs in the communication system are corrected.

"They want to whitewash it and smooth it over," he said. "I'm not pointing the finger of guilt, but I'm not about to accept it, either.

"We depend on these people. They're public servants. They're paid to do these things . . . That's their jobs, isn't it?"

Much Of State Outside 911 Area

When Jerry Hughes needed emergency help for his infant son, he did what most of us have been conditioned to do.

He dialed 911.

The number has been designated as the Common Emergency Telephone code and is designed to make emergency services faster and more available to persons needing it.

Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. has made the number operational in Lincoln and throughout most of Lancaster County. Lincoln firemen answer calls coming on the emergency line.

Unfortunately, Hughes was calling from Elmwood, which is currently about five miles outside the 911 area served by LT&T.

55% Of Population

Statistics from the State Civil Defense (CD) Office indicate that as of December 1973, 821,596 persons, or about 55.5% of the state's population live within the areas served by the 911 system. In the past 11 months, the Valentine area's 911 system has also been made operational, CD officials said.

The area covered by 911 is spotty and and somewhat unpredictable. Less than half of the more than 50 telephone companies in the state participate. Some of the others are planning to join the system; others apparently find the service too costly.

A traveler on the interstate has about a 50-50 chance of summoning help on the 911 emergency line, one CD official pointed out.

4,300 A Year

A 911 operator in Lincoln, Bob Penner, said local firemen answered 4,380 calls on the emergency line last year.

Supposedly, the 911 system breaks at the Lancaster County line, he said. But once in a while Lincoln operators receive calls from other countries "and we don't always know who to send."

One night a call came in from four miles inside Gage County, he recalled. The 911 operator on duty alerted the Gage County sheriff, who in turn called in an emergency unit from Sterling, which is in Johnson County.

"It can get to be a headache after awhile," Penner said.

The 911 service now serves the following towns and their surrounding areas: O'Neill, Chadron/Crawford, Alliance, Ainsworth, Kimball, Sidney, Gordon, Ogallala, North Platte, Lexington, Holdrege, Gothenburg, Minden, Grand Island, Hamilton County, Norfolk, Schuyler, Hebron, Fremont, Lancaster, Beatrice, and Douglas-Sarpy Counties.

911 AREAS SMALL . . . black areas have 911 service, and it is planned for gray areas.

Father Accused Of Poisoning Son

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan was charged Tuesday with murdering his 8-year-old son by placing cyanide in his Halloween treats. A source in the investigation said O'Bryan had recently taken out a $38,000 life insurance policy on the boy.

Bond was set at $100,000 for O'Bryan, 30, an optician, after he was charged with poisoning his son, Timothy. The boy died Thursday night after eating Halloween trick-or-treat candy.

A source in the investigation said the charge was filed against O'Bryan after he took a lie detector test Monday and officers discovered he had recently taken out the life insurance policy.

Capt. R. E. Rhodes, who heads the Pasadena detective division, said he could not give further details on the case.

"At this time, we cannot comment as to any other aspect of this case or any statements made by any of the parties involved due to the legal aspects involved," he said.

"Obviously, we and the district attorney felt there is sufficient evidence for a charge to be filed. We are wrapping up some loose ends of the investigation."

Pasadena police had found five of the powdered candy containers containing cyanide. They had been collected by the dead youth, his sister Elizabeth and other children who accompanied them trick-or-treating.

The incident had set off calls by mayors in the area to end the practice of giving treats to children at Halloween. Residents in the area had started a reward fund and had raised over $1,800 when the arrest was announced.

Neighbors said the O'Bryan family was active in their church and that O'Bryan closely supervised his son's activities.

O'Bryan, talking with reporters Friday after his son's death, said he took the children trick-or-treating on two streets in a Pasadena subdivision not far from their home in Dee Park, another Houston Ship Channel industrial city.

O'Bryan, holding back tears, told how he held his son in his arms after the boy became ill. He said then he did not realize his son had been poisoned until he was told by police.

The O'Bryan family was active in the Second Baptist church in Pasadena. The Rev. Jimmie Jones, pastor, said they had been members for several years and attended regularly.

The Rev. Mr. Jones said he had visited Tuesday with Mrs. O'Bryan and she was "holding up well. She has a lot of faith."

Sailor Enters U.S.; Taken Off American Ship

NEW YORK (AP) — A Lithuanian sailor entered the United States Tuesday, four years after he was dragged off a U.S. Coast Guard ship and returned to a Soviet prison.

Simas Kudirka, accompanied by his mother, wife and two children, arived at John F. Kennedy airport after leaving Moscow Tuesday morning.

AP

Simas Kudirka

Kudirka, wearing a heavy cloth coat and a scarf, walked slowly out of U.S. Customs and broke into a smile as a small group of Lithuanian Americans began to applaud. He has been declared an American citizen by the State Department.

The Kudirkas were surrounded by the waiting group and were hugged and congratulated for a trip that ended a nightmare for Kudirka of his imprisonment in Russia; his mother's repeated arrests by three Soviet secret police, and the eviction of his wife and family from their home by Lithuanian Communists.

A spokesman for the Lithuanians who greeted him said the Kudirkas would temporarily stay with one of the families which worked for his and his family's release.

They said the Kudirkas were tired after the trip from Lithuania to Moscow by train and then the flight from Moscow to New York.

Born in Lithuania, Kudirka was a seaman aboard the Soviet ship Sovietskaya Litva when he made his daring try to defect to the United States on Nov. 23, 1971.

The ship was tied to the Vigilant, a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, off the New England coast, and the ships' officers were discussing fishing rights.

Kudirka jumped onto the American ship and said he wanted asylum. After consultation with higher officers, the ship's captain allowed the Russians to send aboard a party, whose members beat Kudirka and dragged him back to his ship.

Repercussions of the episode reached the White House, and Richard M. Nixon, then the president, was said to have been incensed. After an investigation, the two American officers primarily involved cut short their careers and retired.

The sailor was sentenced on treason charges to 10 years in a Soviet prison. The Supreme Soviet, the Soviet parliament, ordered him released last Aug. 20, however, reportedly after a wave of protests from American citizens and officials. He was freed three days later.

Less than a month before Kudirka's release, the U.S. State Department declared him an American citizen due to an investigation that found his mother was a natural-born citizen, born in Brooklyn.

The Seamen's Education Federation in the United States contacted Kudirka by telephone shortly after his release.

"I am now as though in a dream," Kudirka said. "Although I live in so-called freedom, I am still under a curtain. I am waiting for the hour when that curtain will be finally completely opened, and we can leave."

19-Year-Old To Face Charge In Judge's Death

WANAQUE, N.J. (AP) — A young Wanaque man was jailed on a murder charge Tuesday in the death of a 71-year-old judge who was shot during a municipal court session here.

First Asst. Passaic County Prosecutor John T. Niccolai identified the suspect as David Vervaet, 19.

Two other Wanaque youths were arrested as material witnesses, Niccolai said. He identified them as Bobby Carrol and Mike Brady.

Niccolai said the three were arrested at their homes early Tuesday and police had confiscated a .22-caliber rifle in the investigation, but he declined to say if it was the murder weapon.

Judge Joseph Crescente was sitting in his second-floor courtroom Monday night when a shot pierced a window and venetian blind and struck him in the back. He died in surgery two hours later.

"He flinched in his chair and said, 'What was that?'," according to Capt. Joseph Cisco. The captain was in the courtroom when Crescente was shot while conducting a probable cause hearing.

Cisco said he went to the judge, loosened his robe and saw blood on his back. He said others in the courtroom sought cover.

Police said witnesses reported seeing a man aim a rifle at the window from the street.

"It had to be a case of premeditated murder the way it occurred," a police spokesman said.

Crescente, a father of six, was a retired stationmaster with the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad. He was one of the last municipal court judges in New Jersey who was not a member of the bar. A law adopted in the 1940s requires that only attorneys be appointed to judgeships.

Crescente ran an insurance agency here. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and was active in church.

The last homicide in Wanaque, a borough of 11,000, occurred in 1913, according to police. Wanaque is about 10 miles south of the New York State border and about 35 miles northwest of New York City.

Sugar And Oil—Stories Of Profits And Pain

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar and oil are both stories of prices profits and pocketbook pain in 1974.

Prices, because worldwide shortages of both energy sources have caused crude oil and raw sugar prices to rise by more than 400 per cent in a year, pulling retail prices up with them.

Profits, because producers and some refiners of both commodities have reaped tremendous windfalls.

And pain, because the consumer has had to pay the price. Try as he can, the public hasn't been able to cut demand or find alternatives fast enough.

Nor is the prospect brighter for the consumer in 1975. Experts doubt the producing nations' oil cartel can be broken soon, or that sugar supplies will soon creep up to meet demand.

"It's fairly gloomy for supplies and prices," notes John Casstevens, sugar analyst for Reynolds Securities in New York. "If sugar prices were going to decline, they'd be declining right now."

Last Friday the spot price for raw sugar on domestic markets was around 45 cents a pound, over four times the 9.55 cents recorded a year ago. On the retail level sugar has increased from around 75 cents a five-pound bag to as much as $2.50 a bag today.

Likewise free world crude oil prices have skyrocketed, from around $3.50 a barrel last fall to as high as $12 a barrel last summer. Gasoline prices, as drivers well know, have nearly doubled in some areas.

At first many analysts attributed the sharp rise in oil prices to supply and demand factors, but with consumption down and prices still high, most are now placing the blame at the feet of the producing nations, whose organization of petroleum exporting countries serves as a classic marketers' cartel.

In sugar, despite similar reliance on supplies from many developing nations, like Brazil and Cuba, most experts point rather to a classic supply-demand scenario.

For four years, because of unfavorable prices and inclement weather, says Casstevens, world consumption has exceeded world production, forcing companies to dip into inventories and placing upward pressure on prices.

Curiously, though, analysts say the oil producers have also contributed to higher sugar prices. "The Arabs have been buying very, very heavily, more than ever before," says Marvin Gelles, assistant to the director of the Sugar Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The oil nations have the money to spend, Gelles explains, and they want to improve the living conditions of their own people." The amount of Arab purchasing is difficult to ascertain, though some say it's up 25 per cent from a year ago.

Higher prices have brought big profits to both sugar and crude oil producers.

Oil profits have been well publicized. During the past year most companies who drill their own crude have registered big gains over year-earlier periods, because the oil they produce has been worth a lot more. In the past 12 months, for example, Exxon Corp. has earned approximately $3 billion after taxes, up about 50 per cent from the previous 12-month period.

As in oil, sugar price increases have flowed to producers predominantly. The higher prices have quickly covered the growers' costs, and what's left has gone toward earnings. That's why big producers like Holly Sugar Inc., Great Western Sugar, and the Spreckles division of Amstar Corp. have seen profits rise by as much as 860 per cent over similar periods a year ago.

Like the oil companies, the sugar companies say the earnings come on top of poor results in previous years.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Psychologist Carl Jung, a Leo, did understand astrology. He knew its principles and wrote about it and practiced it. And his research caused him to conclude that: "Whatever is born or done at this moment of time has the qualities of this moment of time."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emotional responses are intensified. Gemini and Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Accent is on money and neighbors, money and relatives. You get to heart of matters and you learn who it is you must contact. Red tape begins to unravel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your qualities of determination, loyalty will be called upon. You will be dealing with persons who want their own way — almost at any cost. Check details, read between the lines. Be aware of fine print. Take nothing for granted. Get appraisal of art, property.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Steer clear of crowds — traffic and otherwise. You need time alone to collect thoughts. Be analytical — form creative questions. Realize that only neophytes claim to know all answers. Another Gemini and a Virgo come into focus. You're going to get quick service from aggressive individual.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Come to grips with reality of money situation. There will be quick changes and you should be aware of who owns what — and what you have coming to you. Don't be rushed into decision. Protect assets. You have right to fair deal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel a need to know. Cycle is such that you can be entertained—but you will also assert your right to know. Message will be clarified. Pisces, Virgo and Aquarius figure prominently. Television, radio appearance is indicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your sense of responsibility is highlighted. You find what is hidden and make it work. You visit those confined to home or hospital. You face shadows and make others know difference between the real and the fantasy. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You learn to close a deal. You finish. You are stronger at the end than at the outset. You reach beyond apparent limitations. You advertise, publicize and get meanings across to more people. Aries, Libra are likely to be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New, creative touch, approach is featured. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment. You get plenty of action. You find who is on your side and who is wishing you would fail. You could also fall madly in love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Trust hunch. Learn and teach. Deal gingerly with older family member. You learn secrets. You get "in touch" with one at a distance. You open lines of communication. You feel more alive than in recent past. Aquarian figures in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend is apt to be aggressive. You socialize. You get into lively discussion which could deteriorate into argument. Know it and maintain balance. Stick to principles but don't deny others the right to their own beliefs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Legal matters, involving relatives, tend to dominate. You do some tearing down in the throe of rebuilding. Accent is on time, waiting, the fulfillment of promise by those close to you. Let others reveal their plans. Keep some options open. Refuse to be painted into corner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Basic services are highlighted. Persons who care for you let you know it. You gain greater feeling of security. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Quick changes occur. Travel and communications push aside less important issues.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, are loyal, artistic and tend to break rules when you feel like it. Diet is important but you have a "sweet tooth." Taurus, Libra individuals play key roles in your life. You travel in 1975 and you socialize — and May will be your most important month. You are an intense, romantic individual and you tend to love some who are not worthy.

Waverly School Board Accepts 11% Teacher Pay Increase Proposal

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Waverly — The District 145 Board of Education has agreed to accept a fact-finding team's recommendations for a salary schedule granting an 11% overall increase in teachers' 1974-75 contracts.

The base salary for a beginning teacher with a bachelors degree will be increased from $6,800 to $7,200 annually, if the Waverly Education Association (WEA) accepts the contract language on salaries and fringe benefit items.

Supt. Dale Siefkes said the WEA will meet in the next two weeks to consider the contract proposals approved by the board; further discussion will be required only if the WEA requests any changes.

The contract negotiations came to a stalemate last June, and the fact-finding team was appointed to recommend a compromise package.

The board had offered a 10.95% overall increase in salaries and fringe benefits, or an increase of $82,500 in total compensation. The WEA held out for a 12.4% increase of $94,000, and a base salary of $7,300, seeking competitiveness with the Lincoln School District.

The 11% overall salary increase represents a boost of about $83,000 in overall compensation, in a total budget for professional salaries staff of almost $900,000.

The board, in accepting the fact-finding team's salary schedule recommendations, stipulated that the format of the schedule be part of a three-year agreement. The board earlier accepted the team's recommendations on non-salary items.

The salary schedule allows a 5% increment or pay boost for experience in each step, and an additional 4% increment for additional graduate work.

In the new schedule, a teacher with a bachelors degree plus 18 credit hours of postgraduate study would receive $9,756 annually. At the top of the schedule, a teacher with a masters degree would receive $12,312.

Fringe benefits approved in the package include an increase in health coverage, with District 145 paying 100% of a single individual's policy cost, and up to 50% of the cost for a family policy. Income disability was improved from 60% to 66 2/3%, with the waiting period reduced from 60 to 50 days.

A two-day personal leave provision was granted, and the sick leave policy was improved from six to eight days a year, also allowing a cumulative increase from 30 to 35 days.

In other action, the board approved a proposal for an expanded athletic program, to begin in the 1975-76 school year. Planning of the program will begin immediately.

The district will offer girls' basketball, and restructure current use of facilities and scheduling of practices. Junior high boys will get intramural football and basketball, and the district will provide increased coaching time and equipment.

Railroad Ties New Line At Saline County Sawmill

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Wilber — During 10 years of logging, Dallas Hagemeier always took pride in cutting walnut and oak which ended up as fancy furniture. But he always lamented the waste logs.

Then he got on the track of railroad ties. They're the main output of his new sawmill, which began operation last summer at what was once the village of Shestak.

Midway between Wilber and Crete, Shestak now is nothing more than the sawmill on a siding of the Burlington. Even the long-abandoned grain elevator which stood for years has been razed.

Shooting for a production of 70 ties per day, the Hagemeier Logging Co. ships the ties to treating plants in several states. There they are cured for up to a year, coated with preservative and sold to railroad companies.

"Unlike the housing industry, the tie market looks to be stable enough for the next few years that it seemed worth a try," said the Wilber owner, 30. "And this is one of the few ways to utilize many of the logs which otherwise would just lay and rot."

Sawing oak primarily, the four-man operation also uses elm, oak and various other hardwoods. Much softer cottonwood is cut as well, but for pallet lumber or lowboy planking.

Once the general market improves, the sawmill probably will cut some grade lumber. Plans are to move the operation to Nebraska City in several weeks, then return later to the Saline County area.

Measuring 8½ feet in length, the ties weigh over 300 pounds and require heavy handling equipment. Working with Hagemeier are employes Frank Matejka of Crete and brothers Bob and Tom Smith of Nebraska City.

Does southeast Nebraska, ordinarily thought of as farm and pasture land, have enough timber to last a period of years?

"We don't expect the supply to become a problem," said Hagemeier. "In fact, logging seems to be a somewhat bigger thing in this area every year."

Groundwater To Be Topic Of Workshop

Groundwater management and recharge will be the topic of a Great Plains Council-sponsored workshop in Garden City, Kan., Thursday and Friday.

Deon Axthelm, Extension water resources specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will act as general director.

Axthelm said the workshop intends to meet the needs expressed by local districts responsible for water management in respective states.

Axthelm indicated that management of groundwater takes on more significance with the current food and population situation.

"Water is one of the key factors in food production and sound management can help produce more of the urgently needed food supplies for a long period of time," he said.

Topics will center on groundwater management through regulation and recharge to benefit local directors and managers of districts. Special discussions will be held on current management and regulation practices.

The workshop is aimed to transfer between states ideas that do and do not work. New Mexico, a state which has had experience in regulation including water metering, will be discussed by Fred Henninghousen of the New Mexico State Engineers Office.

Development of a regional operation to meet needs of its members may arise from the workshop, Axthewm predicted.

Glaucoma Clinic Slated For Blair

Blair — A glaucoma clinic for the public will be held Sunday at the Blair Hospital from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Blair doctors and nurses are donating their time for the free eye tests. The project is being sponsored by the Blair Lions Club.

Dorm Residents Escape Blaze Unhurt

Omaha (AP) — About 40 residents of a dormitory of the C and E Business School escaped unharmed Tuesday when a fire broke out in one of the rooms, sending smoke through much of the building. Fire officials said the apparent cause was a cigarette in a mattress. The blaze in the three-story building was quickly controlled by firemen and the girls were allowed to return to their rooms when smoke was cleared from the building.

Columbus — "Love Needs of the Aged" will be the topic for a series of workshops to be held this month and next, sponsored by the Community Health Education Association of Northeast Nebraska. Dates for the workshops are Nov. 12 in Columbus, Nov. 13 in Norfolk and Dec. 4 in Fremont. The workshops are designed to aid health care personnel and others in dealing with possible problems in understanding the emotional, social and physical love needs of the aged.

Man Killed In Accident

Crete — Jimmy R. Tupa, 38, of Wilber was killed Tuesday in an accident at the Crete Alpo plant.

According to the Saline County sheriff's office, Tupa was crushed by a lift device loaded with cases of dog food. He was dead on arrival at a Crete hospital.

Tupa apparently moved under the device as it was descending, the sheriff's office said. The office said no malfunction of the machine was reported.

Tupa's survivors include his wife, Esther; son, Eugene of Wilber; daughters, Catherine, Cindy and Dianna, all of Wilber; and his mother, Mrs. Fred Chaloupka of Swanton.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Zajicek Funeral Home in Wilber with burial at the Bohemian Cemetery at Wilber.

Omaha Tavern Gutted By Fire; Arson Probed

Omaha (AP) — Sam's Place, a bar which was the scene of an "immature" arson attempt about two weeks ago, was gutted Tuesday by what Chief Arson Investigator Horton Dahlquist called a "very suspicious fire."

The blaze, preceded or accompanied by a powerful explosion, gutted the first-floor bar, and severely damaged four upstairs apartments. No one was hurt.

Dahlquist said initial investigation showed the fire "started somewhere in the rear of the building, either in the basement or first floor."

Dahlquist said the bar had been closed since the incident Oct. 19 because of smoke damage.

Confusion, Bad Luck, Bungling Result From Parents' Calls For Aid

HELP!

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The 20-month-old toddler scooted across the living room carpet, one hand firmly clutching his bottle of milk, the other reaching out for the control knob on the color television.

Jerry Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Hughes, 1144 S. 11th, appears to be a normal, happy, healthy baby, with a fair-sized dose of curiosity thrown in for good measure.

He's a little fussier now, but otherwise he seems to be OK," his mother said. "We're just glad he's still alive."

Last week the Hugheses had a "very close call" with little Jerry. It's an experience they aren't likely to forget or forgive for some time

Late last Tuesday the family was visiting friends in Wabash, a community about 35 miles east of Lincoln. About 11:30 that night, the baby started coughing and gagging for air.

Fuel Oil In Lungs

Apparently he had swallowed some fuel oil and it had settled in his lungs, Mrs. Hughes said.

The next two hours were a combination of confusion, rotten luck and just plain bungling, according to the baby's father.

Hughes said he has heard explanations from the State Patrol, Bryan Memorial Hospital Poison Control Center and the Lincoln Police Dept. Still, he said, he's not satisfied.

"I'd just like to know why it is so difficult to get help in a life and death emergency situation," he said.

For one thing, a doctor and a nurse told them that night that the baby should be given raw egg to induce vomiting, then milk, Mrs. Hughes said. Later she learned that baby should have been given only milk.

Call Disconnected

Adding to the immediate confusion, a long-distance call to the poison Control Center at Bryan Memorial Hospital was accidentally disconnected.

Hughes said he decided time was wasting so the family scrambled into the pickup-camper and hightailed it to Lincoln. En route he stopped in Elmwood to summon help on the 911 emergency line.

"I tried 911," Hughes said, "and it wouldn't ring. Then I tried 112-911. Still nothing. So I dailed 0-911 and that didn't work either.

"We've been brainwashed to rely on 911," he continued. "I've been to people's houses and they have it tacked up on the wall. They don't realize it's not good everywhere."

Hughes said he finally dialed a long-distance operator, who promised to relay the message to the State Patrol.

"Even if they drove only 55, with red lights flashing they'd have clear sailing," he said. "They could certainly make better time than I could with that camper."

But no help came. At 1:30 a.m. the family pulled up to the emergency entrance of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center. The baby was hospitalized there until Saturday.

"The entire ride was terrifying," Mrs. Hughes said. "I kept shaking Jerry and screaming at him to keep him from falling asleep."

"I begged for help and where was everybody?" Hughes said, shaking his head in disgust.

He said he has only a handful of people to thank that his son is still alive — fellow Citizens Band (CB) operators and the long-distance operator at Elmwood.

Some Offered Help

"I did get 100% cooperation from CB operators," he said. "Several people offered to meet us outside town and help us on in, even if they got a speeding ticket."

The State Patrol said no one could come to Hughes' aid because the only car in the area was en route to Nebraska City with a prisoner.

Between midnight and 2 a.m. on week nights only five troopers normally patrol roads leading out of Lincoln, said Sgt. David Wolbert. Therefore, the plea for help was relayed to the Lincoln Police Dept.

At Hughes' urging, William R. Hoppner, one of Gov. J. James Exon's assistants, said he requested and received a report of the incident from Col. Cletus P. Karthauser of the State Patrol.

After reviewing the content of the "verbal report," Hoppner said, "I think they did everything they could under the circumstances."

Inspector Dean Leitner of the Lincoln Police Dept. also maintains that his department followed regulations and "did what it could to help."

Policemen routinely meet ambulances at the city limits to help negotiate congested traffic and help find the nearest hospital, Leitner said.

Outside the city limits, the Police Department has no jurisdication, he said. But in emergencies "we'll assist state and sheriff's officers on request," he said.

"In this case, the State Patrol only asked us to meet Hughes at the city limits."

Misunderstanding

Leitner said one of twelve police units on duty that night was sent to escort the Hughes family. But due to a misunderstanding, the policeman was waiting on West O street rather than East O Street.

The desk sargeant apparently understood the Patrol to say the vehicle was two miles west of Lincoln "coming east on O Street," instead of "coming from the east on O Street," Leitner said.

Hughes claims he was also told by Leitner that police vehicles can't exceed the speed limit, even in such an emergency.

When questioned on the issue by The Star, Leitner admitted he didn't know if law enforcement vehicles can or cannot exceed the speed limits in emergency situations.

"It's my opinion they can," he said finally. "As far as I know there is no restriction on speed of police vehicles. But for the safety of others, we have a policy here where we won't in the city."

No Ambulance

Hughes also questions why an ambulance wasn't dispatched to meet the pickup outside of town.

"They told us they were afraid we might miss each other," Hughes said. "I'm sure at 1 o'clock in the morning we were the only red '65 Dodge with a camper on the road going 50 miles an hour

Hughes said he'd like to know why the malfunction in the switchboard at Bryan Hospital wasn't corrected before "since apparently they were aware of it . . .

"What were they waiting for? A death?"

In all, Hughes is not about to let up until some cogs in the communication system are corrected.

"They want to whitewash it and smooth it over," he said. "I'm not pointing the finger of guilt, but I'm not about to accept it, either

"We depend on these people. They're public servants. They're paid to do these things . . . That's their jobs, isn't it?"

Much Of State Outside 911 Area

When Jerry Hughes needed emergency help for his infant son, he did what most of us have been conditioned to do.

He dialed 911.

The number has been designated as the Common Emergency Telephone code and is designed to make emergency services faster and more available to persons needing it.

Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. has made the number operational in Lincoln and throughout most of Lancaster County. Lincoln firemen answer calls coming on the emergency line.

Unfortunately, Hughes was calling from Elmwood, which is currently about five miles outside the 911 area served by LT&T.

55% Of Population

Statistics from the State Civil Defense (CD) Office indicate that as of December 1973, 821,596 persons, or about 55.5% of the state's population live within the areas served by the 911 system. In the past 11 months, the Valentine area's 911 system has also been made operational, CD officials said.

The area covered by 911 is spotty and and somewhat unpredictable. Less than half of the more than 50 telephone companies in the state participate. Some of the others are planning to join the system; others apparently find the service too costly.

A traveler on the interstate has about a 50-50 chance of summoning help on the 911 emergency line, one CD official pointed out.

4,300 A Year

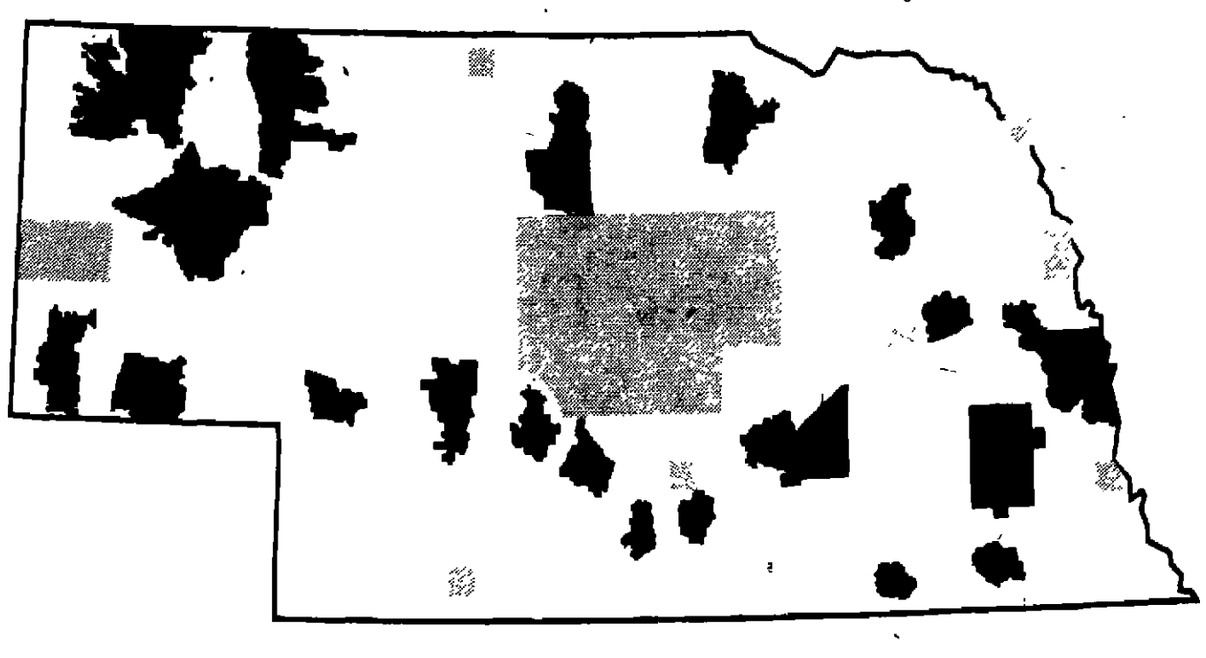

A 911 operator in Lincoln, Bob Penner, said local firemen answered 4,380 calls on the emergency line last year.

Supposedly, the 911 system breaks at the Lancaster County line, he said. But once in a while Lincoln operators receive calls from other countries "and we don't always know who to send."

One night a call came in from four miles inside Gage County, he recalled. The 911 operator on duty alerted the Gage County sheriff, who in turn called in an emergency unit from Sterling, which is in Johnson County.

"It can get to be a headache after awhile," Penner said.

The 911 service now serves the following towns and their surrounding areas: O'Neill, Chadron/Crawford, Alliance, Ainsworth, Kimball, Sidney, Gordon, Ogallala, North Platte, Lexington, Holdrege, Gothenburg, Minden, Grand Island, Hamilton County, Norfolk, Schuyler, Hebron, Fremont, Lancaster, Beatrice, and Douglas-Sarpy Counties.

911 AREAS SMALL . . . black areas have 911 service, and it is planned for gray areas.

Father Accused Of Poisoning Son

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan was charged Tuesday with murdering his 8-year-old son by placing cyanide in his Halloween treats. A source in the investigation said O'Bryan had recently taken out a $38,000 life insurance policy on the boy.

Bond was set at $100,000 for O'Bryan, 30, an optician, after he was charged with poisoning his son, Timothy. The boy died Thursday night after eating Halloween trick-or-treat candy.

A source in the investigation said the charge was filed against O'Bryan after he took a lie detector test Monday and officers discovered he had recently taken out the life insurance policy.

Capt. R. E. Rhodes, who heads the Pasadena detective division, said he could not give further details on the case.

"At this time, we cannot comment as to any other aspect of this case or any statements made by any of the parties involved due to the legal aspects involved," he said.

"Obviously, we and the district attorney felt there is sufficient evidence for a charge to be filed. We are wrapping up some loose ends of the investigation."

Pasadena police had found five of the powdered candy containers containing cyanide. They had been collected by the dead youth, his sister Elizabeth and other children who accompanied them trick-or-treating.

The incident had set off calls by mayors in the area to end the practice of giving treats to children at Halloween. Residents in the area had started a reward fund and had raised over $1,800 when the arrest was announced.

Neighbors said the O'Bryan family was active in their church and that O'Bryan closely supervised his son's activities.

O'Bryan, talking with reporters Friday after his son's death, said he took the children trick-or-treating on two streets in a Pasadena subdivision not far from their home in Dee Park, another Houston Ship Channel industrial city.

O'Bryan, holding back tears, told how he held his son in his arms after the boy became ill. He said then he did not realize his son had been poisoned until he was told by police.

The O'Bryan family was active in the Second Baptist church in Pasadena. The Rev. Jimmie Jones, pastor, said they had been members for several years and attended regularly.

The Rev. Mr. Jones said he had visited Tuesday with Mrs. O'Bryan and she was "holding up well. She has a lot of faith."

Sailor Enters U.S.; Taken Off American Ship

NEW YORK (AP) — A Lithuanian sailor entered the United States Tuesday, four years after he was dragged off a U.S. Coast Guard ship and returned to a Soviet prison.

Simas Kudirka, accompanied by his mother, wife and two children, arived at John F. Kennedy airport after leaving Moscow Tuesday morning.

Simas Kudirka

Kudirka, wearing a heavy cloth coat and a scarf, walked slowly out of U.S. Customs and broke into a smile as a small group of Lithuanian Americans began to applaud. He has been declared an American citizen by the State Department.

The Kudirkas were surrounded by the waiting group and were hugged and congratulated for a trip that ended a nightmare for Kudirka of his imprisonment in Russia; his mother's repeated arrests by three Soviet secret police, and the eviction of his wife and family from their home by Lithuanian Communists.

A spokesman for the Lithuanians who greeted him said the Kudirkas would temporarily stay with one of the families which worked for his and his family's release.

They said the Kudirkas were tired after the trip from Lithuania to Moscow by train and then the flight from Moscow to New York.

Born in Lithuania, Kudirka was a seaman aboard the Soviet ship Sovietskaya Litva when he made his daring try to defect to the United States on Nov. 23, 1971.

The ship was tied to the Vigilant, a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, off the New England coast, and the ships' officers were discussing fishing rights.

Kudirka jumped onto the American ship and said he wanted asylum. After consultation with higher officers, the ship's captain allowed the Russians to send aboard a party, whose members beat Kudirka and dragged him back to his ship.

Repercussions of the episode reached the White House, and Richard M. Nixon, then the president, was said to have been incensed. After an investigation, the two American officers primarily involved cut short their careers and retired.

The sailor was sentenced on treason charges to 10 years in a Soviet prison. The Supreme Soviet, the Soviet parliament, ordered him released last Aug. 20, however, reportedly after a wave of protests from American citizens and officials. He was freed three days later.

Less than a month before Kudirka's release, the U.S. State Department declared him an American citizen due to an investigation that found his mother was a natural-born citizen, born in Brooklyn.

The Seamen's Education Federation in the United States contacted Kudirka by telephone shortly after his release.

"I am now as though in a dream," Kudirka said. "Although I live in so-called freedom, I am still under a curtain. I am waiting for the hour when that curtain will be finally completely opened, and we can leave."

19-Year-Old To Face Charge In Judge's Death

WANAQUE, N.J. (AP) — A young Wanaque man was jailed on a murder charge Tuesday in the death of a 71-year-old judge who was shot during a municipal court session here.

First Asst. Passaic County Prosecutor John T. Niccolai identified the suspect as David Vervaet, 19.

Two other Wanaque youths were arrested as material witnesses, Niccolai said. He identified them as Bobby Carrol and Mike Brady.

Niccolai said the three were arrested at their homes early Tuesday and police had confiscated a .22-caliber rifle in the investigation, but he declined to say if it was the murder weapon.

Judge Joseph Crescente was sitting in his second-floor courtroom Monday night when a shot pierced a window and venetian blind and struck him in the back. He died in surgery two hours later.

"He flinched in his chair and said, 'What was that?'," according to Capt. Joseph Cisco. The captain was in the courtroom when Crescente was shot while conducting a probable cause hearing.

Cisco said he went to the judge, loosened his robe and saw blood on his back. He said others in the courtroom sought cover.

Police said witnesses reported seeing a man aim a rifle at the window from the street.

"It had to be a case of premeditated murder the way it occurred," a police spokesman said.

Crescente, a father of six, was a retired stationmaster with the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad. He was one of the last municipal court judges in New Jersey who was not a member of the bar. A law adopted in the 1940s requires that only attorneys be appointed to judgeships.

Crescente ran an insurance agency here. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and was active in church.

The last homicide in Wanaque, a borough of 11,000, occurred in 1913, according to police. Wanaque is about 10 miles south of the New York State border and about 35 miles northwest of New York City.

Coffeeware Collection Real Attention Getter

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Making good coffee is one thing, but serving it in style is another.

And after seeing the Folger's Silver Collection exhibit, which opened Monday at Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery, one can't help but think that Mrs. Olson never had it so good.

The familiar woman in the TV commercial with the can of coffee would probably receive even more neighborly compliments if she served her java from one of the coffee pots included in the 175-piece collection.

Scheduled to be at Sheldon for four weeks, the collection — which is owned by the Folger's Coffee Company — is comprised of coffee servers, coffee makers, and coffee-drinking paraphernalia (creamers, sugar bowls, serving trays) of many sizes and descriptions.

All Made Of Silver

And they're all made of silver (or silver plate) — hand-crafted by meticulous silversmiths in the 18th and early 19th centuries, according to T. L. Paulsen of Kansas City, personnel and public relations manager for Folger's.

In Lincoln for the opening of the exhibit, Paulsen said that the silver collection is usually placed on exhibit twice a year, "primarily in the West and Midwest.

"We started collecting in 1953," Paulsen said, adding that "it is a collection of art appropriate to our product."

Many of the pieces were brought directly from England and Ireland. Others were purchased through silver dealers in London and New York, he said.

Elaborate Patterns

For the most part, they are carefully rendered with elaborate swirls, floral patterns and an occasional dragon's head embellishing their surfaces. The pieces are fashioned of sterling silver, Sheffield (silver) Plate, or Britannia Silver (a very pure grade of silver in use during the early 18th century), Paulsen said.

The painstaking craftsmanship apparent in the pieces is exquisite.

Working in an age that had not yet heard of the assembly line, the silversmiths whose creations are contained in the collection, shaped each item from a flat piece of silver, explained Jon Nelson, Sheldon Art Gallery assistant director.

The surface design was then hammered out from the inside of the piece.

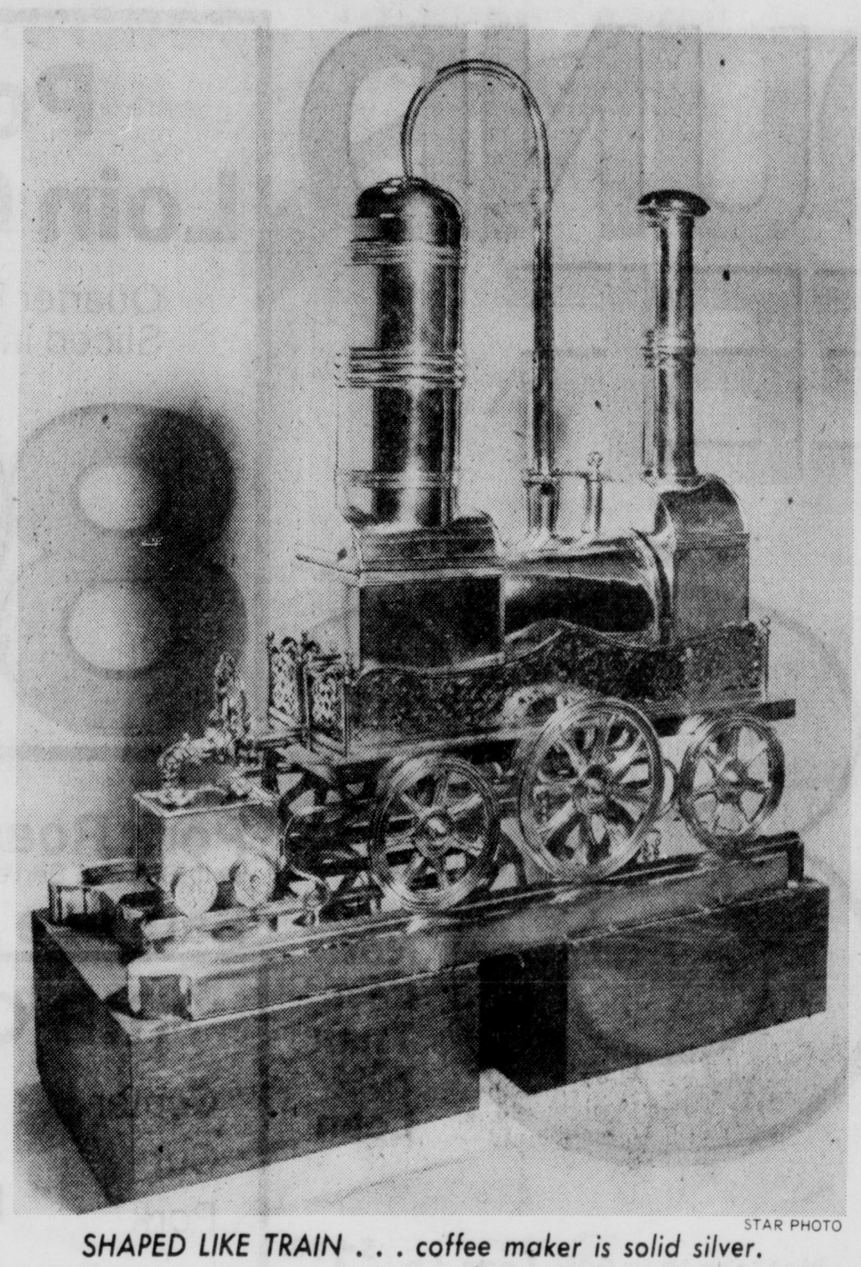

Shaped Like Train

Although the majority of the pieces in the collection are coffee servers, there are also a number of novelty pieces — such as a silver coffee maker fashioned in the shape of a train. The George IV Sheffield Plate coffee maker was made in about 1828.

Perhaps the most elaborate piece is a large epergne designed to hold nuts and fruits. Completed in 1761, it is designed to resemble a pagoda, with miniature bells at the tips of the roof and a delicate lattice-work central bowl and side dishes.

Because the collection is so large and so ornate, it is easy, after a while, to begin overlooking the craftsmanship that went into each individual piece. The viewer must continually remind himself to look at each piece closely, and not be overwhelmed by the immensity of the collection.

If you have the interest and that kind of time to spend, the Folger's Silver Collection is really something to see.

Wounded Officer Urges Understanding Of Police

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha police officer who was wounded during the June 5-6 shootout with gunman Elza Carr says it's just as important for citizens to understand police problems as for police to understand citizens.

Sgt. Guy Goodrich, 32, hasn't been back to work since he was wounded during the incident. He has 48 shotgun pellets in his body.

Goodrich is a member of the police community relations task force and says he hopes the group will have some benefit.

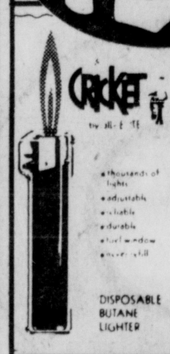

"I've heard people say they've been on 30 of these boards and none of them ever did a bit of good," said Goodrich.

"Well, I've never been on one before and I'd hate to think I've spent all this time to have nothing come of it."

Complaints against police, Goodrich says, must be put in perspective. From thousands of contacts with citizens, only 21 complaints filed during the first six months of the year were found valid, he says.

Goodrich believes most people "have no idea what pressures a policeman is subject to."

Contractors Submit Neihardt Center Bids

The proposed construction of the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft moved one step closer to realization Tuesday when bids were submitted by general, mechanical and electrical contractors.

Based on bids received at the Nebraska State Historical Society, it appears the basic work on the center, which will honor the late Nebraska poet laureate, will total $170,884.

Earlier this year, the Nebraska Legislature overrode Gov. J. James Exon's veto of a bill (LB855) to finance the center.

The bill, as passed, will provide funding totaling $200,000.

The general contractor submitting the apparent low bid was Larson and Jip Construction Co. of Blair. The company's base bid was $111,866. However with cost adjustments made for alternate work not included in the base bid, the final total was $121,341.

Company officials estimated that it would take 240 calendar days to complete the project.

The apparent low bid for mechanical work was $26,060, submitted by Olson Plumbing and Heating of Lyons. And the Quality First Electric Corp. of Lincoln submitted the apparent low bid of $23,483 for electrical work.

Plans for the center were done by Lincoln architect, Larry Enersen, who discussed the project with Neihardt before the poet's death in 1973.

"We had hoped" that construction would begin this fall, Enersen said. And there is a possibility that that may still happen, pending finalization of arrangements and favorable weather, he continued.

By the time the finishing touches are added to the center, "we will have come very close" to utilizing all of the funds allocated for the center by the Legislature. Enersen said.

Farmers Union Members Plan Door-To-Door Drive

While most of Nebraska is recovering from the post-election after effects, a group of 40 Utah and Idaho farmers will be out beating on doors seeking new voters for their farm organization.

Farmers Union families in 18 eastern Nebraska and western Iowa counties will act as hosts for the visitors who will be in the area for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Heading the visitor group will be Roy Holman, president of the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union, while Nebraska's state FU president, Louis Wiebe, will act as host.

"We will be selling three-year and lifetime memberships in the organization in as many farm homes as we can contact during the three-day period," Wiebe said.

Indonesia Hikes Price Of Sugar

Jakarta (AP) — Indonesia has raised its sugar prices by 20% because of soaring prices of the commodity on the world market.

A cabinet meeting decided to raise sugar prices at factories from 26 cents to 32 cents a kilogram.

A presidential spokesman said the move was aimed at reducing government subsidies for importing sugar, now $1,200 a ton, or six times the domestic prices.

Newspaper Carrier Killed By Bomb Linked To Gang

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Anstett, 15, got up before daybreak Tuesday to deliver newspapers on his route on the city's Northwest Side, just as he had six days a week for the last three years.

After delivering his papers, he planned to go home and have breakfast with his family, including a brother and sister who also had newspaper routes.

Then he would go to school, the ninth grade. Perhaps he would play a little sandlot basketball after school, as was his habit.

Shortly after 6 a.m., he turned onto 83rd Street, on schedule. He saw a plain cardboard box about a foot square on the top of a late model car parked at the curb.

Larry, naturally curious, picked up the box.

An explosion killed him instantly.

Authorities said the bomb was apparently the latest violence in a feud between two rival motorcycle gangs and may have been meant for the owner of the car, Michael Vermilyea, 23. Vermilyea was inside his parents' home getting ready to go to work at a Milwaukee factory when the explosion went off.

Vermilyea, a member of a motorcycle club called Heaven's Devils, testified earlier this year at the robbery trial of two members of a rival gang, the Outlaws. The two were sentenced to seven years in prison for stealing $3 and a club shoulder patch from a Heaven's Devils member at gunpoint last spring.

"I think the bomb was meant for my son," said R.K. Vermilyea, whose home was sprayed by gunfire from a passing car last summer.

"We heard the explosion and my son went out to look while I called the police," said the elder Vermilyea. "He came running back in and said there was a body next to the car.

"Just because my son was honest enough to testify, this is what happens. These people have got to be stopped."

"We've never had anything like this happen before," said Leroy Priefer, The Milwaukee Sentinel's circulation manager. "It's vicious, inhuman. It happened only a block and a half from Wright Junior High, where Larry went to school. A little later and a lot of kids would have been walking by there. Any one of them could have picked it up."

Police gave no description of the type of explosive used in the bomb.

BOXED BOMB . . . was placed on roof of club member's car. AP

Coffeeware Collection Real Attention Getter

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Making good coffee is one thing, but serving it in style is another

And after seeing the Folger's Silver Collection exhibit, which opened Monday at Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery, one can't help but think that Mrs. Olson never had it so good.

The familiar woman in the TV commercial with the can of coffee would probably receive even more neighborly compliments if she served her java from one of the coffee pots included in the 175-piece collection.

Scheduled to be at Sheldon for four weeks, the collection — which is owned by the Folger's Coffee Company — is comprised of coffee servers, coffee makers, and coffee-drinking paraphernalia (creamers, sugar bowls, serving trays) of many sizes and descriptions.

All Made Of Silver

And they're all made of silver (or silver plate) — hand-crafted by meticulous silversmuths in the 18th and early 19th centuries, according to T. L Paulsen of Kansas City, personnel and public relations manager for Folger's.

In Lincoln for the opening of the exhibit, Paulsen said that the silver collection is usually placed on exhibit twice a year, "primarily in the West and Midwest

"We started collecting in 1953," Paulsen said, adding that "it is a collection of art appropriate to our product."

Many of the pieces were brought directly from England and Ireland Others were purchased through silver dealers in London and New York, he said.

Elaborate Patterns

For the most part, they are carefully rendered with elaborate swirls, floral patterns and an occasional dragon's head embellishing their surfaces. The pieces are fashioned of sterling silver, Sheffield (silver) Plate, or Britannia Silver (a very pure grade of silver in use during the early 18th century), Paulsen said.

The painstaking craftsmanship apparent in the pieces is exquisite.

Working in an age that had not yet heard of the assembly line, the silversmuths whose creations are contained in the collection, shaped each item from a flat piece of silver, explained Jon Nelson, Sheldon Art Gallery assistant director.

The surface design was then hammered out from the inside of the piece.

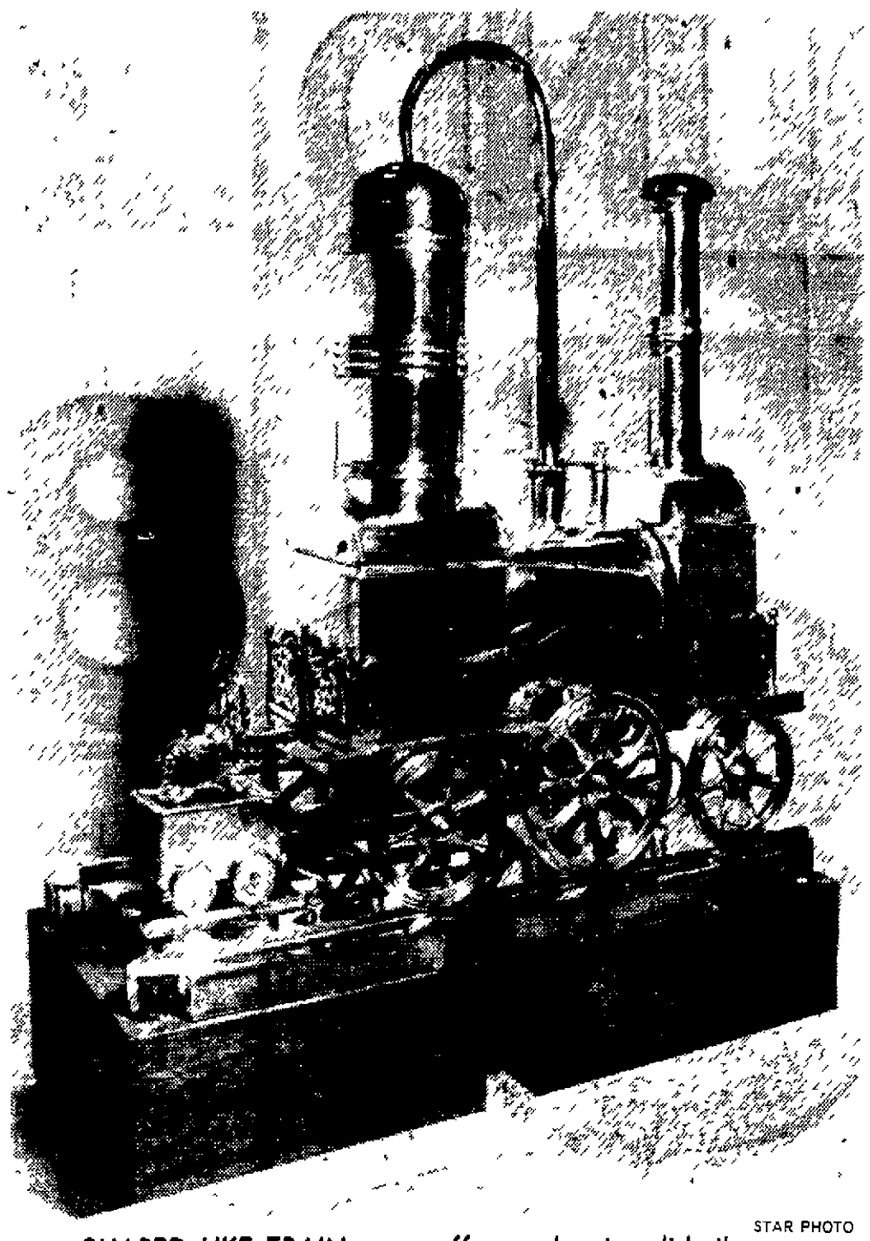

Shaped Like Train

Although the majority of the pieces in the collection are coffee servers, there are also a number of novelty pieces — such as a silver coffee maker fashioned in the shape of a train. The George IV Sheffield Plate coffee maker was made in about 1828.

Perhaps the most elaborate piece is a large epergne designed to hold nuts and fruits. Completed in 1761, it is designed to resemble a pagoda, with miniature bells at the tips of the roof and a delicate lattice-work central bowl and side dishes.

Because the collection is so large and so ornate, it is easy, after a while, to begin overlooking the craftsmanship that went into each individual piece. The viewer must continually remind himself to look at each piece closely, and not be overwhelmed by the immensity of the collection.

If you have the interest and that kind of time to spend, the Folger's Silver Collection is really something to see.

Wounded Officer Urges Understanding Of Police

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha police officer who was wounded during the June 5-6 shootout with gunman Elza Carr says it's just as important for citizens to understand police problems as for police to understand citizens.

Sgt. Guy Goodrich, 32, hasn't been back to work since he was wounded during the incident. He has 48 shotgun pellets in his body.

Goodrich is a member of the police community relations task force and says he hopes the group will have some benefit.

"I've heard people say they've been on 30 of these boards and none of them ever did a bit of good," said Goodrich.

"Well, I've never been on one before and I'd hate to think I've spent all this time to have nothing come of it"

Complaints against police, Goodrich says, must be put in perspective. From thousands of contacts with citizens, only 21 complaints filed during the first six months of the year were found valid, he says.

Goodrich believes most people "have no idea what pressures a policeman is subject to"

Contractors Submit Neihardt Center Bids

The proposed construction of the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft moved one step closer to realization Tuesday when bids were submitted by general, mechanical and electrical contractors

Based on bids received at the Nebraska State Historical Society, it appears the basic work on the center, which will honor the late Nebraska poet laureate, will total $170,884

Earlier this year, the Nebraska Legislature overrode Gov. J. James Exon's veto of a bill (LB855) to finance the center.

The bill, as passed, will provide funding totaling $200,000

The general contractor submitting the apparent low bid was Larson and Jip Construction Co. of Blair. The company's base bid was $111,866. However with cost adjustments made for alternate work not included in the base bid, the final total was $121,341

Company officials estimated that it would take 240 calendar days to complete the project.

The apparent low bid for mechanical work was $26,060, submitted by Olson Plumbing and Heating of Lyons. And the Quality First Electric Corp. of Lincoln submitted the apparent low bid of $23,483 for electrical work.

Plans for the center were done by Lincoln architect, Larry Enersen, who discussed the project with Neihardt before the poet's death in 1973

"We had hoped" that construction would begin this fall, Enersen said. And there is a possibility that that may still happen, pending finalization of arrangements and favorable weather, he continued.

By the time the finishing touches are added to the center, "we will have come very close" to utilizing all of the funds allocated for the center by the Legislature. Enersen said.

Farmers Union Members Plan Door-To-Door Drive

While most of Nebraska is recovering from the post-election after effects, a group of 40 Utah and Idaho farmers will be out beating on doors seeking new voters for their farm organization.

Farmers Union families in 18 eastern Nebraska and western Iowa counties will act as hosts for the visitors who will be in the area for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Heading the visitor group will be Roy Holman, president of the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union. while Nebraska's state FU president, Louis Wiebe, will act as host.

"We will be selling three-year and lifetime memberships in the organization in as many farm homes as we can contact during the three-day period," Wiebe said.

Gallo Beset By Labor Dispute Trying Step Toward Fine Wines

©The New York Times

Modesto, Calif. — Forty-one years ago, Ernest and Julio Gallo, the sons of an Italian immigrant, sank $5,900 of savings into the production of their first vat of wine.

Today, Ernest, 65 years old, is chairman of the E. & J. Gallo Winery Company, by far the nation's largest vintner and mass producer of wine. Julio, 64, is president of the family-owned business.

And the company is smack in the middle of a bitter dispute pitting Caeser Chavez against the Teamsters Union while at the same time it is trying to make a major step toward the rarer atmosphere of fine wines.

Sitting at an antique desk and surrounded by tapestries and paintings of grapes, the Gallo chairman, in a rare interview, says of Chavez's United Farm Workers of America: "We believe we have turned the other cheek too long." The union has been boycotting his products.

Ambitious Project

He also waxes enthusiastic about the company's ambitious current project — bringing out a line of premium varietal and generic wines. True to Gallo tradition, the new line is to be lower priced than those of many of its competitors.

The Gallo varietals, which sell for between $1.69 (for a fifth of Zinfandel) and $1.89 (for Sauvignon Blanc) are the culmination of more than 10 years of planning and experimentation. They are said to have received generally favorable notice from wine experts.

This hasn't always been the case. For years Gallo has produced mass-market, low-priced wines that sold well (almost one of every three bottles of wine sold in the United States is produced by Gallo) but seldom impressed the cognoscenti.

The company markets more than 50 brands, including Spanada, Madria-Sangria, Boone's Farm and Red Mountain, as well as Thunderbird and Ripple. They are sold in half-gallon and quart bottles and priced from 75¢ for a quart of Ripple to $2.49 for a half-gallon of pink chablis.

But for the new wines, Gallo has abandoned its traditional mundane labels and screw caps in favor of richly lettered labels, corks and lead foil caps.

Ernest Gallo, usually taciturn and publicity shy, spoke optimistically in the recent interview about the future of his company, whose headquarters here spreads over a 100-acre plot of neatly mowed lawns and low rambling buildings. Its two wineries in Fresno and Livingston have a production capacity of 150,000 cases a day.

"I have seen over the years how our sales have increased in direct proportion to our ability to improve the quality of our wine," he said.

However, Gallo apparently has not escaped the trend of slackening consumer demand for wine which began to take hold last year.

Drop In Sales

State sales figures show that Gallo's share of first-half production in California had actually dropped an average of 7% from the comparable 1973 period.

The lagging sales rate is attributed to the rising retail price of wine, the increasing budget-consciousness of consumers hit by inflation and a decline in the popularity of so-called pop wines.

Further, Gallo is bedeviled by the boycott efforts of Chavez' United Farm Workers of America. A.F.L.-C.I.O., which is trying to win back a labor contract covering the company's 600 farm workers.

Gallo signed a contract with the Teamsters Union last year after being one of the first growers in the state to sign with the U.F.W. in 1967. Chavez has called the Teamsters pact a "sweetheart" contract made against the wishes of its workers. But Gallo contends it was the workers who rejected U.F.W. practices.

No Laws

There are no state or federal laws governing union elections among farmworkers, which makes it virtually impossible to determine which union the workers do really favor.

What effect the nationwide boycott is having on Gallo sales is difficult to determine, given the turbulent condition of industry sales. But as one Gallo competitor said, "It certainly doesn't help them."

In the San Francisco Bay area, for example, the U.F.W. says 250 retail outlets have taken Gallo wine off their shelves.

And as evidence that the company is being hurt, the U.F.W. cites a report by Wheat First Securities, Inc., that Gallo's 1973 sales were only 98.5 million gallons, off 6.5% from 1972.

Ernest Gallo, however, says the boycott has not affected sales at all. "Our sales this year are up over last year," he said, giving no specific figures.

Mobil Shelves Refinery Plans In New Jersey

NEW YORK (AP) — Citing higher costs and reduced demand for oil, the Mobil Oil Corp. said Tuesday it has cancelled plans to expand a New Jersey refinery.

The expansion, announced in April 1973, was supposed to add 150,000 barrels a day capacity to Mobil's Paulsboro, N.J., plant, which now has a production capacity of 100,000 barrels a day.

Meanwhile, a securities analyst for the industry, Ed Ix of the Dreyfus Corp., said he expected other major oil companies to shelve previously planned refinery projects also.

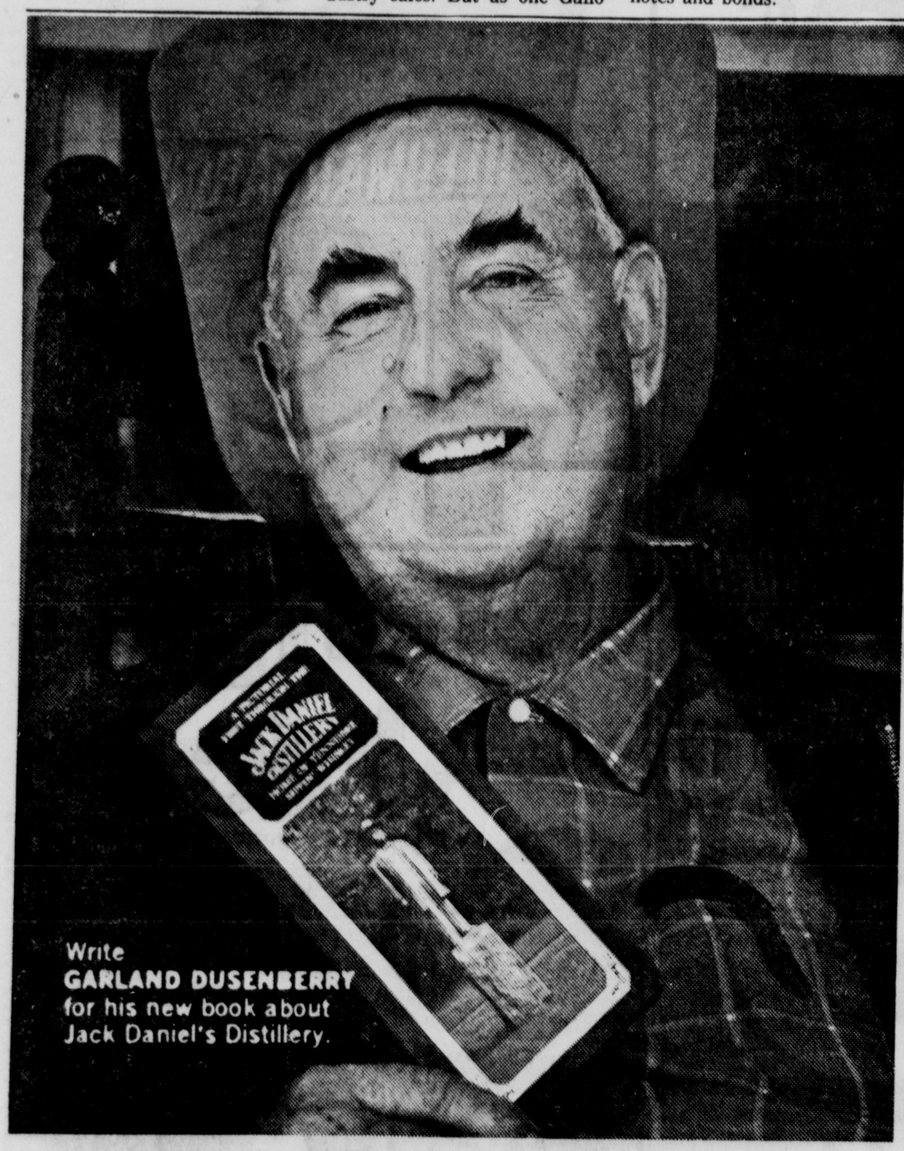

Mobil said two factors — "spiraling inflation and declining oil demand" — spurred the expansion cancellation. Since April, it said, the expansion's cost has risen from $300 million to $400 million.

"I would say that other refinery expansion plans are quietly being placed to rest," said Ix.

Record Interest Paid By N.Y.C.

New York (AP) — New York City paid a record 8.34% interest on part of its $615 million note offering Monday.

Dealers said the higher rate reflected the city's increasing reliance on borrowed funds to meet budget deficits. Within the past two months the city has borrowed $3 billion by issuing notes and bonds.

Market Close Is Highest Since Sept. 6

New York (AP) — The stock market jumped to its highest close in nearly two months Tuesday, rallying strongly with little visible encouragement from the economic news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 17.52 to 674.75, its highest finish since Sept. 6, when it closed at 677.88.

The over-all New York Stock Exchange scoreboard showed 991 advances and 394 declines among the 1,763 issues traded.

Big Board volume increased to 15.96 million shares in spite of the closing of major banks — major participants in the market — for election day.

No results were in from the elections by the time the market closed, and brokers said it did not appear the market was paying any particularly sharp attention to them anyway.

Indeed, they noted, it appeared investors were shrugging off much in the immediate news of the day — including the evidently heightened prospect of a coal strike.

The Dow slipped about 2 points at the outset in the wake of the news that talks between the coal industry and the United Mine Workers union had been broken off during the night, less than a week before the expiration of the current contract.

The modest extent of the decline, however, could well have been looked upon as a bullish sign by traders who had braced themselves for a more substantial selloff.

Late in the first hour some buying appeared, and the market seemed to gather upward momentum through the day.

Brokers noted that the Dow appeared headed for another effort to penetrate the 680 level — a point at which it has turned back several times in the past few weeks after mid-session attempts to surpass it.

Several issues which had been deeply depressed in the long slide of the late spring and summer posted notable gains. Ryder System, the most-active issue on the Big Board, rose 1¾ to 6½; MGIC Investment added 1½ to 8½; and National Semiconductor was up 1½ to 10⅜.

In the auto-equipment sector, Monroe Auto Equipment was up 1½ to 8⅞, and Maremont rose 1½ to 11¾. Analysts said the issues apparently were buoyed by the theory that lagging new-car sales would mean increased demand for such replacement parts as shock absorbers for cars now on the road.

King's Department Stores was up 1 at 6. The company said it expeted to offer $2 in cash and $6 principal amount of debentures for each of its common shares under a plan authorized by directors Monday.

Big-name growth and blue-chip issues also were strong, as demonstrated by the four "glamor" issues in the Dow. Du Pont rose 3⅛ to 110⅜, Eastman Kodak 3⅛ to 110⅜, Eastman Kodak 3⅛ to 74⅞, Sears, Roebuck 2½ to 53⅜, and Procter & Gamble 3 to 90¼.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was up 1.01 at 39.54.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .60 to 69.78.

Giant Yellowknife Mines, which reported lower quarterly earnings Monday, slipped 1 to 14⅛ at the top of the Amex most-active list.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 65.99, up 1.37.

Bowater Co. To Hike Price Of Newsprint

New York (AP) — Bowater Sales Co. said Tuesday it would increase its price of 30-pound newsprint by $35 a ton to $270 a ton, effective Jan. 1.

Other newsprint producers in the U.S. and Canada previously had announced increases to $260 a ton, also effective Jan. 1.

Bowater President B. R. Pryde said the company "deliberately delayed any announcement until the four Bowater North American mills had prepared their manufacturing cost estimates for next year."

Pryde said a "very dismal picture" showed that manufacturing costs would rise $15 per ton due to a 65% increase in fuel and electrical costs during 1975 at the firm's two Southern mills.

The company's capital budget programs are expected to exceed $65 million in 1975 to cover environmental control, good-order maintenance and limited modernization, Pryde said.

The 1974 capital budget was $44 million.

Siberia Pipeline Is Inaugurated By Soviet Union

©The New York Times

New York — The Soviet Union, in the annual rush to complete key construction projects in time for the anniversary of the revolution on Nov. 7, has inaugurated a 2,000-mile pipeline from the vast Siberian natural gas fields to Moscow.

The new 48-inch transmission main, with an annual capacity of 14.5 billion cubic meters, is the westernmost extension of a growing gas network based in the West Siberian fields.

The Siberian network will ultimately become a major supplier of natural gas to the industrial nations of western Europe. Present soviet gas deliveries to Austria, West Germany and Italy originate mostly in the Ukraine.

Oil Find Reported

Houston (AP) — Continental Oil Co. announced an oil and gas discovery 17 miles southeast of Cameron, La., in the Gulf of Mexico.

Cattle Prices Are Steady To 50¢ Lower

Omaha (AP) — Slaughter steers and heifers sold steady to 50 cents lower in uneven trading here Tuesday.

Demand was only fair as buyers remained highly selective in their purchases and very cautious.

Depressed beef prices and a lack of movement in the carcass trade were behind their hesitant stance.

Cows were weak to 50 lower and bulls steady.

Several loads choice and prime 1,075-1,125 lbs steers earned 39.50-40.00, bulk choice 38.25-39.50. Two loads choice yield 3-5 1,375-1,400 lbs offerings were weighed up at 37.00.

Heifers choice 850-1,025 lbs were cleared 37.25-38.50, several loads choice with end prime 975-1,050 lbs included at 38.50 and a load and part load 1,000-1,025 lbs 38.75.

Most cows stopped at 18.50, a few 19.00-19.25.

Butcher hog trading turned into a two-way affair. Early dealings were active and steady to 25 lower, but from mid-session on prices were termed steady to strong, possibly a bit higher.

Most 200-280 lbs butchers were ticketed 37.75-38.75, a short load 210-240 lbs 39.00-39.25.

Sows were mostly steady, 325-600 lbs returning 34.50-35.75.

Wooled lambs were fully 50 higher, choice-prime 90-105 lbs at 38.00-38.50.

Shorn were unchanged as a part deck choice with end prime 103 lbs No. 1 pelts cleared at 40.00.

Butcher ewes were steady, 5.50-7.00.

October-End Sales By GM Plunge 40%

Detroit (AP) — General Motors' car sales plunged nearly 40% in the last 11 days of October, as the nation's four domestic auto makers reported October sales down 26.8% compared to a year ago.

But import sales were up an estimated 4.3% in figures released Tuesday.

October was disastrous for GM, whose Oct. 21-31 sales of 126,558 were off 39.4% from last year. Monthly GM sales were barely better — down 32% from October, 1973, to 327,146.

Ford, with sales of 195,156, was off 17% from a year ago, while Chrysler was down 17% to 87,811. American Motors was off more than 52% to just over 17,408 sold.

Including imports, industry sales during the month totaled about 755,700, compared to some 980,000 in October, 1973. Deliveries last month by the four U.S. auto makers were 627,521, down from 857,073 a year earlier.

Waverly School Board Accepts 11% Teacher Pay Increase Proposal

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Waverly — The District 145 Board of Education has agreed to accept a fact-finding team's recommendations for a salary schedule granting an 11% overall increase in teachers' 1974-75 contracts.

The base salary for a beginning teacher with a bachelors degree will be increased from $6,800 to $7,200 annually, if the Waverly Education Association (WEA) accepts the contract language on salaries and fringe benefit items.

Supt. Dale Siefkes said the WEA will meet in the next two weeks to consider the contract proposals approved by the board; further discussion will be required only if the WEA requests any changes.

The contract negotiations came to a stalemate last June, and the fact-finding team was appointed to recommend a compromise package.

The board had offered a 10.95% overall increase in salaries and fringe benefits, or an increase of $82,500 in total compensation. The WEA held out for a 12.4% increase of $94,000, and a base salary of $7,300, seeking competitiveness with the Lincoln School District.

The 11% overall salary increase represents a boost of about $83,000 in overall compensation, in a total budget for professional salaries staff of almost $900,000.

The board, in accepting the fact-finding team's salary schedule recommendations, stipulated that the format of the schedule be part of a three-year agreement. The board earlier accepted the team's recommendations on non-salary items.

The salary schedule allows a 5% increment or pay boost for experience in each step, and an additional 4% increment for additional graduate work.

In the new schedule, a teacher with a bachelors degree plus 18 credit hours of postgraduate study would receive $9,756 annually. At the top of the schedule, a teacher with a masters degree would receive $12,312.

Fringe benefits approved in the package include an increase in health coverage, with District 145 paying 100% of a single individual's policy cost, and up to 50% of the cost for a family policy. Income disability was improved from 60% to 66 2/3%, with the waiting period reduced from 60 to 50 days.

A two-day personal leave provision was granted, and the sick leave policy was improved from six to eight days a year, also allowing a cumulative increase from 30 to 35 days.

In other action, the board approved a proposal for an expanded athletic program, to begin in the 1975-76 school year. Planning of the program will begin immediately.

The district will offer girls' basketball, and restructure current use of facilities and scheduling of practices. Junior high boys will get intramural football and basketball, and the district will provide increased coaching time and equipment.

Railroad Ties New Line At Saline County Sawmill

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Wilber — During 10 years of logging, Dallas Hagemeier always took pride in cutting walnut and oak which ended up as fancy furniture. But he always lamented the waste logs.

Then he got on the track of railroad ties. They're the main output of his new sawmill, which began operation last summer at what was once the village of Shestak.

Midway between Wilber and Crete, Shestak now is nothing more than the sawmill on a siding of the Burlington. Even the long-abandoned grain elevator which stood for years has been razed.

Shooting for a production of 70 ties per day, the Hagemeier Logging Co. ships the ties to treating plants in several states. There they are cured for up to a year, coated with preservative and sold to railroad companies.

"Unlike the housing industry, the tie market looks to be stable enough for the next few years that it seemed worth a try," said the Wilber owner, 30. "And this is one of the few ways to utilize many of the logs which otherwise would just lay and rot."

Sawing oak primarily, the four-man operation also uses elm, oak and various other hardwoods. Much softer cottonwood is cut as well, but for pallet lumber or lowboy planking.

Once the general market improves, the sawmill probably will cut some grade lumber. Plans are to move the operation to Nebraska City in several weeks, then return later to the Saline County area.

Measuring 8½ feet in length, the ties weigh over 300 pounds and require heavy handling equipment. Working with Hagemeier are employes Frank Matejka of Crete and brothers Bob and Tom Smith of Nebraska City.

Does southeast Nebraska, ordinarily thought of as farm and pasture land, have enough timber to last a period of years?

"We don't expect the supply to become a problem," said Hagemeier. "In fact, logging seems to be a somewhat bigger thing in this area every year."

Groundwater To Be Topic Of Workshop

Groundwater management and recharge will be the topic of a Great Plains Council-sponsored workshop in Garden City, Kan., Thursday and Friday.

Deon Axthelm, Extension water resources specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will act as general director.

Axthelm said the workshop intends to meet the needs expressed by local districts responsible for water management in respective states.

Axthelm indicated that management of groundwater takes on more significance with the current food and population situation.

"Water is one of the key factors in food production and sound management can help produce more of the urgently needed food supplies for a long period of time," he said.

Topics will center on groundwater management through regulation and recharge to benefit local directors and managers of districts. Special discussions will be held on current management and regulation practices.

The workshop is aimed to transfer between states ideas that do and do not work. New Mexico, a state which has had experience in regulation including water metering, will be discussed by Fred Henninghousen of the New Mexico State Engineers Office.

Development of a regional operation to meet needs of its members may arise from the workshop, Axthewm predicted.

Glaucoma Clinic Slated For Blair

Blair — A glaucoma clinic for the public will be held Sunday at the Blair Hospital from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Blair doctors and nurses are donating their time for the free eye tests. The project is being sponsored by the Blair Lions Club.

Dorm Residents Escape Blaze Unhurt

Omaha (AP) — About 40 residents of a dormitory of the C and E Business School escaped unharmed Tuesday when a fire broke out in one of the rooms, sending smoke through much of the building. Fire officials said the apparent cause was a cigarette in a mattress. The blaze in the three-story building was quickly controlled by firemen and the girls were allowed to return to their rooms when smoke was cleared from the building.

Born and raised on an Ohio farm, Grimm is a journalism graduate of Ohio State University and has spent most of his career in agricultural journalism and public relations.

Workshops Designed To Aid Aged

Columbus — "Love Needs of the Aged" will be the topic for a series of workshops to be held this month and next, sponsored by the Community Health Education Association of Northeast Nebraska. Dates for the workshops are Nov. 12 in Columbus, Nov. 13 in Norfolk and Dec. 4 in Fremont. The workshops are designed to aid health care personnel and others in dealing with possible problems in understanding the emotional, social and physical love needs of the aged.

Man Killed In Accident

Crete — Jimmy R. Tupa, 38, of Wilber was killed Tuesday in an accident at the Crete Alpo plant.

According to the Saline County sheriff's office, Tupa was crushed by a lift device loaded with cases of dog food. He was dead on arrival at a Crete hospital.

Tupa apparently moved under the device as it was descending, the sheriff's office said. The office said no malfunction of the machine was reported.

Tupa's survivors include his wife, Esther; son, Eugene of Wilber; daughters, Catherine, Cindy and Dianna, all of Wilber; and his mother, Mrs. Fred Chaloupka of Swanton.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Zajicek Funeral Home in Wilber with burial at the Bohemian Cemetery at Wilber.

Omaha Tavern Gutted By Fire; Arson Probed

Omaha (AP) — Sam's Place, a bar which was the scene of an "immature" arson attempt about two weeks ago, was gutted Tuesday by what Chief Arson Investigator Horton Dahlquist called a "very suspicious fire."

The blaze, preceded or accompanied by a powerful explosion, gutted the first-floor bar, and severely damaged four upstairs apartments. No one was hurt.

Dahlquist said initial investigation showed the fire "started somewhere in the rear of the building, either in the basement or first floor."

Dahlquist said the bar had been closed since the incident Oct. 19 because of smoke damage.

Part-Time Students Called 'New Majority' In Higher Education

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Part-time students must be allowed to share eligibility with full-time students for money available for postsecondary education programs, according to Harold Glen Clark of Brigham Young University.

The American Council on Education (ACE) 1974 report on Financing of Higher Education for Adult Students, Clark said, indicates "a growing concern in the U.S." for plans to support part-time students, "the new majority in postsecondary education."

But there is one catch, the dean emeritus of Brigham Young's Continuing Education Department said: Proposals and new plans allowing grants, veteran benefits or loans, for example, "are not directed in the main toward the great student body" of part-timers, "but to the full-time student."

Part-time students are no longer the "foreigners" in post-high school education, Clark told about 85 participants from eight states attending the Region V National University Extension Association Conference in Lincoln.

According to the ACE report, he said, part-time students taking credit and non-credit courses in the U.S. in 1972 accounted for 57% of all students. The rate of increase for part-time students "has been 2.3 times faster than for full-time students" since 1969.

Clark called on educators to study the part-time student "and give immediate attention to more equitable treatment in financing the education of this new majority," and institutions must "strengthen their delivery systems for their part-time clientele."

The ACE report "found that part-time students on the whole are massively discriminated against in federal and state institutional aid programs, Social Security survivors' benefits, tuition rates and financial aid programs and income tax requirements," Clark said.

To illustrate, he said "only one state provides equal funding for part-time and full-time students in institutional aid formulas." And "only 12 of 23 states" in one study provide funds for off-campus credit students.

"Half of our four-year institutions of higher education charged higher tuition fees for part-time students, and 34% of all institutions denied student aid to part-time students completely," he said.

Clark recommended that eligibility criteria for federal, state and institutional aid should include students in all credit programs; and tuition charges in credit programs be equalized for part-time and full-time students.

He recommended aid for part-time and non-credit students in both on-campus and off-campus programs, and for part-time students in certificate or diploma non-degree programs.

"In all publicly funded student aid programs, eligibility should be approved as a right of all qualified students" Clark said, "and not as an institutional discretionary power."

Clark also recommended an incentive tax credit of 20% of the amount wage earners spend in a year, against their federal tax liabilities, regardless of whether the education programs relate to employment.

He urged that private sources "foot the bill" for professional and occupational continuing education, and that organizations consider establishing "continuing education as a requirement for advancement."

Clark said extension services can serve "a very identifiable need" in such areas as drug abuse by forming "public problem-solving programs."

Following up Clark's report, Steven B. Sample, University of Nebraska system vice president for academic affairs, said "practically all student aid, except tuition, is based on family wealth.

"I think we'll see an end to the family income test as a basis for student aid, along with the death of out-of-state tuition," he said. "These are legally defensible positions.

"I realize this could spell the demise of many student aid programs" and hamper other higher education financing plans, Sample said.

"However, it may encourage low tuition and low-interest loans as politically acceptable alternatives.

"If the lowering of tuition indeed becomes fact, then the implications for the part-time student are good," he said. In part, it will "hasten the equity called for" in the ACE report and in broadening the status of students, it "will weaken discrimination against part-time adult students."

"No matter what happens," Sample said, "in the short run, any changes" in financing higher education "will cost the institutions. If we can't look at parental income, we'll either lose students or be forced to increase amounts for aid."

"Similarly, part-time students can cost more money" because of increased administrative loads. Sample said one solution is to establish a fixed fee per student, part-time or full-time, and add an amount of dollars per credit hour. "To me, this is equitable."

"Encouraging part-time students through fair and equitable treatment takes us even more quickly into uncharted political waters," Sample said, adding schools must serve that "exciting new market."

County Names Omahan As Fiscal Systems Analyst

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday named an Omaha man, Elmer Cheek, as their fiscal systems analyst.

The position is the second to be created recently by the commissioners. Cheek will join Wayne Hart, the county board's administrative assistant and personnel director. Yet to be filled is a third position, that of human services coordinator.

Cheek has had his own private accounting firm in Omaha for the past two years. He also has taught business courses at Nettleton Business College in Omaha.

Computerization

In his new position, which he will assume Nov. 18, Cheek will help computerize the county's budget and accounting procedures.

Cheek's annual salary will be $13,280.

In other action, the commissioners approved a contract with the City of Lincoln for purchasing services for the county.

The action came despite renewed opposition from County Surveyor Walter Hoppe, who told the commissioners that the contract is "not going to save a dime."

County Board Chairman Robert Colin, however, countered that the contract will result in savings because it will permit "volume buying. Commissioner Jan Gauger added that she feels the new contract will assure that private businesses have access to county business.

The contract does not bear a specific price tag, but county board members have indicated that the amount cannot exceed the $10,000 they have budgeted for the services for this year.

The commissioners had deferred action on the contract last week to make minor changes suggested by the county attorney's office.

The commissioners also accepted a bid from the Alexander and Alexander insurance brokerage firm to insure county property for the next three years with the Home Insurance Co.

The cost for three years of coverage is $49,212.

The next lowest bid was submitted by the Stuart brokerage firm with Aetna Life and Casualty Co. That bid was $49,396.

Boeing Has Strong Gains In Quarter

New York (AP)—Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., announced strong gains in sales and earnings during both the third quarter and the first nine months of 1974.

T.A. Wilson, Boeing's chairman, said the results reflected continued strong operating performance on major aircraft programs as well as lessened interest-rate expenses. He added, however, the company was saddled by inflationary pressures and material shortages.

Net income in the third quarter came to $17.2 million, or 81 cents a share on sales of $914.8 million. In the third quarter last year, net income totaled $12.2 million, or 57 cents a share on sales of $785.2 million.

In the first nine months of 1974 earnings totaled $53.2 million, or $2.51 a share, compared with $37.4 million or $1.73 a share a year ago. Sales amounted to $2.72 billion, compared with last year's $2.39 billion.

The company added that its unfilled order backlog as of Sept. 30 totaled $3.53 billion, up from $3.25 billion in the comparable period last year.

Board Paroles Three Women; One Refused

The State Parole Board Tuesday paroled three women, effective Nov. 8.

The three are:

— Shirley D. Bonwell, Lancaster County, sentenced to 2-3 years imprisonment for grand larceny. She has served 1 year and eight months.

— Sandra K. Jenkins, Lancaster County, sentenced to 1-2 years for forgery. She has served 9 months.

— Linda E. Fisher, Douglas County, sentenced to 1-3 years for uttering a forged instrument. She has served 1 year.

The board refused to parole Mary McIntosh of Lincoln County who is serving 1-3 years for forgery.

Poster Child For Retarded To Start Drive

Scott Wells, newly-named poster child for the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens, will be in Lincoln Saturday for a coffee to kick off the annual Honey Sunday drive to raise money for The Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens (NebARC).

Scott, 7, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wells of Holdrege.

Hosting the coffee will be Mrs. J. James Exon, wife of Nebraska's governor and honorary Honey Sunday chairperson.

Honey Sunday is an annual fund-raising event for NebARC when volunteers sell jars of honey for NebARC.

Bogus Money Found In Car; Two Men Held

Omaha (AP) — More than $3,000 in counterfeit bills have been found in a car in which two men were arrested, after Lincoln police requested they be picked up in Omaha.

They were identified by police as Donald H. Kimble, 38, of Minneapolis and Timothy Blackwell, 27, of Glendive, Mont.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Thomas Thalken said the bogus money — in 50, 20 and 100 dollar bills — was found in the car by Secret Service agents after a search warrant had been issued.

Huskers Accept Sugar Bowl Bid

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The Sugar Bowl won in a "landslide" in the University of Nebraska's "election day" voting Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the Cornhusker football team were "unanimous" in approving a bid to play the University of Florida in the 40th annual game in New Orleans New Year's Eve.

The vote was taken prior to Tuesday's practice in preparation for an important Big Eight Conference game Saturday in Ames, Ia.

Coach Tom Osborne said he was contacted late Monday by Sugar Bowl officials who offered the invitation. Although the vote was considered a formality, Osborne said it always has been Nebraska's practice to let the players decide whether to go to a bowl game.

"We're most pleased with the bid," Osborne said, "But in some ways sorry the invitation came before we play Iowa State. That puts some extra heat on us, but we can't do anything about that. It does make us an attractive target."

Both Florida, 7-1, and Nebraska, 6-2, will be making their second appearance in the Sugar Bowl. The Gators lost 20-18 to Missouri in 1966 and Nebraska lost to Alabama 34-7 in 1967.

Florida moved into the bowl picture last weekend with its upset of previously unbeaten Auburn. The only loss Coach Doug Dickey's Gators have this season is a 24-10 upset by Vanderbilt.

Osborne said it now is important that the players get the bowl talk out of their heads as soon as possible because of Saturday's game against worrisome Iowa State.

"Our main goal is to win the Big Eight championship and if we win the rest of our games at least we will tie for it," Osborne said.

He pointed out that Oklahoma used Nebraska's bid to the Cotton Bowl last year as an incentive against the Huskers because the Sooners had beaten Texas, the NU foe. "To them it was their bowl game since they couldn't play in one," Osborne said.

"Now, because the bid came so early, the three teams left on our schedule can do the same thing. We want to win so we can hold up our end of the bargain with the Sugar Bowl."

He said, though, that there were no strings attached to the bid, but the bowl people naturally would like to see NU win to make their game more attractive.

No decision has been made on such details as when the team will head to New Orleans and practice plans. It is expected athletic director Bob Devaney and ticket manager Jim Pittenger will go to New Orleans after Saturday's game to make arrangements for the game.

The Huskers practiced on their grass field behind the stadium getting ready for a similar field at Iowa State.

Osborne said only Ritch Bahe, wingback who has a pulled hamstring muscle, remains a question mark for the game. "He's still very questionable unless he shows improvement in a day or so," Osborne said.

Monsterman Wonder Monds, fullback Tony Davis, and tight end Larry Mushinskie missed the workout with minor ailments Tuesday, but all three are expected to practice Wednesday.

Just like Nebraska, Florida faces an old foe Saturday when the Gators play Georgia before a packed stadium in the 70,000-seat Gator Bowl in Jacksonville.

"Our players wanted to play in the Sugar Bowl and we wanted the best possible competition," Gator coach Doug Dickey said. "Nebraska certainly will be a tough opponent. This is not only a great opportunity but a challenge to our team and the University of Nebraska.

"After the game played in the Sugar Bowl last year, it will be an added challenge to give New Orleans the kind of game they are accustomed to having."

In the 1973 Sugar Bowl, Notre Dame edged Alabama 24-23 in a battle between the nation's top-rated teams.

Split end Lee McGriff, the Southeastern Conference's leading pass receiver, said the seniors on the team were contacted by telephone about the invitation.

"Coach Dickey called me last night and said to have all the seniors in his office to officially announce it," McGriff said. "The seniors voted unanimously to go and then started running around the dormitory screaming. We're awfully excited about it and extremely happy to be playing a team as powerful as Nebraska. History shows they're a great team with high-powered offense and defense and I'm sure this team is no exception."

The invitation makes the 1974 Nebraskans the sixth consecutive team to play in a bowl and 11th since 1962. The Huskers have won their last five appearances in post-season competition.

Huskers Set Ticket Policy

As in the past, a priority system will be used to fill orders for the Sugar Bowl tickets, said Nebraska, ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

Those who placed their orders before the Sugar Bowl bid was accepted need not now reorder. Pittenger said they will be handled as though received on Nov. 7 and in accordance with the presently announced policies. These individuals will be billed — do not send check until requested.

Checks should be made payable to the University of Nebraska and the price is $9.00 per ticket. Those now placing orders should enclose their checks and include $.50 per order to cover mailing and handling charges.

The prime aim of the priority system, he said, is to give first consideration to those who have demonstrated a sustained interest in backing the Cornhuskers.

On that basis, Pittenger said, priority consideration is being extended to:

1. University of Nebraska Students and Faculty
2. Major Athletic Contributing Organizations
3. Season Ticket Holders of Record
4. Former N Men
5. Travel Agencies, public and private, which normally have provided tour service for fans to Cornhusker games.

"In handling orders which involve none of the above priorities" Pittenger said, "we are going to lean in favor of members of the University of Nebraska Alumni Association and particularly Alumni Clubs."

Individuals ordering tickets who feel they are entitled to one of the above priorities should so stipulate at the time his order is placed.

Above-noted priorities will be observed on all orders received in the office by Nov. 17. After that date, all orders will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Pittenger said his office reserves the right to adjust any ticket orders for two reasons; first, to make scalping and resale difficult, and second, to stretch the supply of tickets to as many bona fide Cornhusker fans as possible.

University students expecting to have a priority will have an opportunity to place their orders at a special sale Nov. 18, 19 & 20.

To give Nebraskans outside the Lincoln area an even break with those close to the University, date of postmark rather than the date of receipt will be used, Pittenger said. However, orders must be postmarked Nov. 17 or in the ticket office by noon, Nov. 16 to receive priority.

He explained that the Ticket Office operates under State and University regulations which require prompt deposit of checks. Therefore, all checks received with orders will be deposited even though eventual inability to fill the order will require a refund.

'Secret Bowl Agreements' Not Secret

Compiled from News Wires

An agreement by the representatives of several major bowl associations not to announce the participants in their various post-season classics until Nov. 16 was broken Tuesday when it became known that Florida and Nebraska had already accepted bids to play in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans on New Year's Eve.

Two more of the nation's top-ranked clubs — Alabama and Notre Dame — also let it be known that they had been offered "strong feelers" by the Orange Bowl while another of the nation's major college grid powers, Penn State, admitted publicly its team members had voted to accept a Cotton Bowl bid, if and when it was offered.

The early announcements of the expected bowl pairings was in violation of a "gentlemen's agreement" established by the representatives of 10 major bowl associations at a meeting in St. Simon's Island, Ga., last May. At that time the representatives agreed not to announce any pairings until Nov. 16. Those agreeing to the deal were the Astro-Bluebonnet, Cotton, Gator, Fiesta, Liberty, Orange, Peach, Sugar, Sun and Tangerine Bowl representatives.

Prior to this year the NCAA had a regulation in its by-laws which prohibited the contact of prospective bowl participants by bowl associations until the third Saturday in November or the Saturday prior to the institution's final game, whichever was the earlier. The NCAA, however, lifted this restriction at its annual meeting in January.

"Frankly, we intended to abide by the agreement established last May, but we found out that others weren't," said Clifford H. Kern, Jr., president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl. "When one fellow jumps, you've got to jump."

Official announcement of the Florida-Nebraska matchup came hours after the Orange Bowl announced it had sent "strong feelers" in an effort to get Alabama and Notre Dame for their contest.

Last year's Sugar Bowl featured top-ranked Alabama and unbeaten Notre Dame in a game the Irish won 24-23.

Neither Notre Dame nor Alabama would confirm whether it had accepted bids to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami on New Year's night.

"We have not as yet taken any definitive action on any bowl proposal and will not make any decision until the coaches, team and the faculty board, in that order, have had an opportunity to discuss the situations available," said Irish athletic director Edward W. "Moose" Krause. "The final decision will be announced by the faculty board."

"I'm not ready to talk about bowls yet," said Alabama athletic director and coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. "I'm not thinking in those terms at this point."

At Penn State, a spokesman for the school said the sixth-ranked Nittany Lions had not received any formal invitation but that the players had voted to accept a Cotton Bowl bid "if offered."

"We've had no formal invitation," the spokesman said, "but the vote has made our intentions clear."

The Nittany Lions would meet the Southwest Conference Champion, either Texas or Texas A.M., on New Years' Day. Should they accept the Cotton Bowl bid, it would be their 13th appearance in a major bowl game since 1923. They have a bowl record of 9-2-2.

The Tulsa Tribune reported Tuesday that sources close to the Sun Bowl said Oklahoma State University and Pittsburgh will be invited to the bowl.

A spokesman for the University of Miami, Ohio said Tuesday that officials hope to meet the University of Miami, Fla., in the Tangerine Bowl.

"We would like a prestigious opponent," the spokesman said. Miami of Ohio beat Florida 16-7 in last year's Tangerine Bowl game.

Miami, Fla., officials could not be reached for immediate comment. However, Pete Elliott, the football coach and athletic director, said last Friday he didn't even want to think about bowl games for a few weeks.

Unofficial Word: Lincoln To Gain Racing Dates

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Without giving a formal guarantee, the Nebraska State Racing Commission all but agreed that Lincoln will receive additional racing dates once progress is made on its new horse racing plant.

"The Commission has said before that we wanted Lincoln improvements and when they're made Lincoln will get more dates," said Commission chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha Tuesday as the Commission ended its two-day annual fall meeting. "But when the time is necessary for that, the members of this Commission could be long gone.

"However, if I'm still on the Commission at the time you need dates, then you will get them," he said. "Other than saying that, I don't think we can say any more."

Still, that was what Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt wanted to hear. He asked for assurances of more dates when the $5 million improvements have begun.

Brandt told the Commission that he hopes money for the rebuilding of the race track and constructing new barns will be available by Dec. 1 so bids can be taken.

He said the $1,200,000 in bonds will be sold in $5,000 increments. That money will be used to tear down the old barns and construct 238 additional stalls and 26 tack stalls.

Brandt said that all the barns on the north side of track except three will be torn down. Those construction plans are hoped to be completed before next summer's meet.

"After the 1975 Fair, the present grandstand will be torn down and we'll build a new one," he explained. "It will seat 5,500, but it can be expanded to seat 20,000. But we've got to have more dates in order to make the bonds more desirable.

"We've got to race more than 25 days if we're going to have that kind of facility," he said. "By 1976, we'll have the new barns and the Fieldhouse facility so we can run closer to the fair. Say another week so we could get five more days at least.

"But it's going to be touch and go on our construction for the next couple of years," he warned.

Brandt said he would like between 35 and 40 days for his racing season starting in 1976.

Last year Lincoln raced 26 days. Although Lincoln sought 30 days this year, it was chopped to 25 as the Commission awarded Ak-Sar-Ben the week of July 8-12 that both tracks had requested.

Nevertheless, Farnham moved closer to promising more dates for Lincoln.

"You were told all this in the years you were waiting (for a new track)," he said. "You had a promise that any subsequent commissions would have a moral if not a legal obligation to uphold. It will be no problem if I'm on the commission."

While the question of how many dates Lincoln will receive will probably occur at next year's fall meetings, the news of the impending additional dates and an improved Lincoln facility were good news to horsemen.

"I'm tickled to death to have a new plant and more racing dates in Lincoln," said Lincoln's perennial leading owner-trainer Red Lee of Silver Creek.

"There's no question that they (Lincoln) should be allotted the dates they choose," said Omaha physician Lee Bevilacqua.

While the Lincoln date question highlighted the meeting, Ak-Sar-Ben general manager Dick Becker praised his longtime director of racing Noel Chilcutt, who was the target of major criticism at Monday meeting.

"Noel Chilcutt has been a very important factor in Ak-Sar-Ben racing long before I came on the scene," Becker said. "We feel Noel has been a very loyal and dedicated employee and has been important in the growth of Ak-Sar-Ben. I want to give him a vote of confidence."

Chilcutt had been cited at Monday's meeting for failing to initiate inquiries into the running of races during the 1974 meet. Becker, Farnham and state steward Jack Fickler all agreed that it would be beneficial to flash the inquiry sign on the main tote board whenever the stewards want to review a race.

"If any question whatsoever occurs, that inquiry sign should be flashed," Farnham said. "It's good public relations with the fans. It's the best thing for everyone concerned that we have a policy of numerous inquiries and apply a standard of riding to protect both horseflesh and jockeys.

"It's essential that you let the fans know the stewards are reviewing a race. That sign can be posted even while the race is going on," he added.

Becker also announced that purses for all Nebraska-bred stakes races at Ak-Sar-Ben in 1975 have been increased by $5,000.

He said major construction projects that will be completed before next spring's races include building a tunnel for jockeys so they could bypass walking through the crowds while returning to the jockeys' quarters.

He added that all roads would be hard-surfaced in the barn areas.

The Commission also received a comprehensive mathematical study of this year's Ak-Sar-Ben exacta races from George Stryker of Omaha.

The study showed that 1974 exacta races had an increased percentage of winning favorites because "the races ran truer to form in both exacta races and all races and the quality of exacta races was improved by Ak-Sar-Ben."

The percentage of winning favorites in exacta races jumped from 20.9% last year to 31.82% this year and the hike in favorites finishing first or second rose from 40.9% to 43.64%.

The Commission approved a 175-day season in 1975 for Nebraska.

Although that is two days less than this year's 177-day season, Atokad Park in South Sioux City has an option to race on two Mondays. It is therefore, possible Nebraska racing will again hold a 177-day season next year.

1975 Schedule

Fonner Park — (40 days) Feb. 27-28, Mar. 1, 6, 7, 8, 13, 14 and 15. Tuesday through Saturday racing March 18-April 26. Racing on April 21.
Ak-Sar-Ben — (56 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing April 29 through July 12. Racing on May 26.
Lincoln — (25 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing July 15 through Aug. 16.
Columbus — (25 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing Aug. 19-Sept. 20. Racing on Sept. 1. Dark on Sept. 2.
Atokad — (29 days) racing Tuesday through Saturday Sept. 24 through Nov. 1.

Good News . . . Bad News

First, the good news about Nebraska's Sugar Bowl opponent: Florida ranks last in the Southeastern Conference in passing defense.

Now, the bad news: The Gators lead the conference in passes intercepted with 16 thefts.

Perhaps one of those statistics offsets the other, but they do show that if quarterback Dave Humm throws the ball like he has this season so far he could have a good night in New Orleans.

Humm has had just two passes intercepted in 117 attempts and has completed 73 of them for 981 yards and eight touchdowns.

Although a lot can happen between now and Dec. 31, the game right now stacks up as a battle between the Huskers' I-formation attack, which features a good balance between passing and running, and Florida's combination veer-wishbone offense which leans more toward the run than the pass.

Nebraska, with Humm doing most of the throwing, has passed 147 times and rushed 462 times. Florida, on the other hand, is top-heavy in rushing with 491 tries compared with just 90 pass attempts.

In last week's 25-14 victory over Auburn, Florida passed just six times, completing four for a mere 39 passing yards. The Gators rushed 70 times for 324 yards.

The Gators are tied with Alabama for fewest interceptions thrown and they lead the SEC with eight touchdown passes.

Defensively against the pass, however, it is a different story. Florida's secondary has been hit for 1,298 yards. Opponents have completed 96 of 206 passes.

A Couple of 7-4 Teams?

Wayne Duke, former commissioner of the Big Eight, calls the post-season bowl business "a jungle" and it might be even more like a jungle this season than ever before.

Just imagine the possibility that both Nebraska and Florida could go into the Sugar Bowl each with 7-4 records. Yes, that's what could happen unless the two squads buckle down in their remaining three games.

The Huskers, of course, face a very dangerous Iowa State team at Ames on Saturday with vivid memories of how close the Cyclones came to pulling an upset two years ago on the same field.

Then they play Kansas State the following Saturday and it's not out of the realm of possibility the Wildcats might be dedicating the remainder of their season to trying to save Coach Vince Gibson's job.

And, on Nov. 23, the undefeated Oklahoma Sooners come to town for the finale. Very likely they'll be going for an undefeated season and a possible national championship.

Florida's remaining games aren't easy, either. Especially though will be Saturday's traditional rivalry battle against Georgia, played annually in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville.

A week after that, Florida journeys to Kentucky, which has a 4-4 record that includes victories over Louisiana State and Tulane and a 24-20 loss to Georgia.

After an open date, the Gators will be host to rival Miami of Florida in Gainesville on Nov. 30.

Long Wait Over Now For NU's Westbrook

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Don Westbrook just waited until he got a chance to show what he could do for the Nebraska football team. And he hasn't let anybody down now that the wait is over.

"A lot of people think I just blossomed, but that isn't so," said the Nebraska senior wingback. "I'm just getting the opportunity to play more."

Westbrook certainly has blossomed in the statistics category however, as he is the leading scorer, pass receiver and kickoff returner, besides being one of the leading rushers on the Husker squad this season.

"I've just been doing the job I knew I was capable of doing," said Westbrook. "I knew all along I could help this team in one way or another."

"This is my first season of playing full-time regularly," he adds. But you couldn't tell from the statistics he has compiled in just eight games.

Westbrook has scored nine touchdowns, six on passes and three on the ground. He has 24 receptions for 387 yards and has returned eight kickoffs for 130 yards for a 16.3 yards per return average.

The 5-11, 188-pounder from Cheyenne, Wyoming has also compiled 200 yards rushing on 34 carries for a strong 5.9 yards per carry average.

Westbrook says he relies upon natural abilities on kickoff returns. "I think that to be a good kickoff returner you just have to have some natural abilities, because we don't work on that part of the game that much."

As for pass receiving Westbrook feels that the formations and blocking make the short passes somewhat easier than the long ones because, "when I go deep there are usually two safeties going with me all the way down the field. We just run up the field together and sometimes I get lucky and just break it."

But on overall performance Westbrook comments, "I have the same tools I've always had, just a different attitude and the opportunities have made the difference.

"I like to run with the ball more than anything else because that's what I've done since high school, but as long as I get to play and play a lot, I'll be happy."

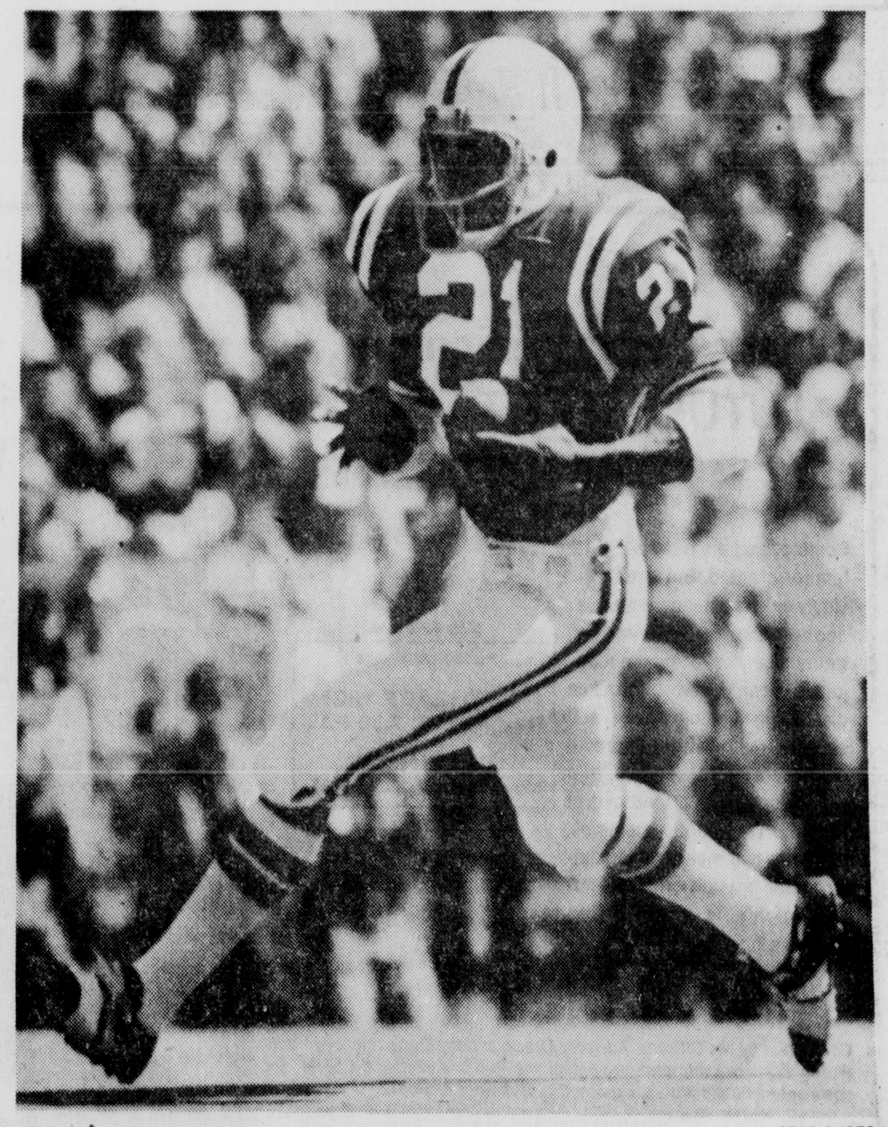

Westbrook, a two year letterman, played in obscurity the past three years at both I-Back and wingback. In his freshman year he picked up 193 yards on 73 carries and did not see action in 1971. In 1972 he rushed 39 times for 198 yards and in 1973 he gained 56 yards on seven carries.

"With the great line we have here at Nebraska I feel that I can run against almost any team," said Westbrook. "But I just try to concentrate on what the coaches tell us, that being, to block, catch and run. In that order of importance."

Westbrook modestly comments that the reason he feels he is the leading receiver is due to the formations the offense uses and the fine passing arm of quarterback Dave Humm.

"I have gotten the call as the first receiver Humm looks to and I have been able to get open," Westbrook explains, "But if it's better for the team that I just block, then I'll do just that.

"I'm out to prove something to myself and as long as I get to play steadily I'll be happy. I really don't care how many touchdowns I get, just as long as I can help the team."

A Roundup of Sports News

FOOTBALL

Kent Waldrep, a Texas Christian University player partially paralyzed in his team's game with Alabama Oct. 26, was listed in fair condition.

A knee injury suffered during a 17-14 defeat against Dallas probably will keep St. Louis running back Terry Metcalf out of action for a week.

Players for the Shreveport Steamers of the WFL, like their colleagues in Portland, have not been paid in two weeks.

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Dr. Frederick J. Wolfe Jr., 59, a former president of the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl athletic events.

Mississippi College has admitted using an ineligible football player and has forfeited two of its team's victories and a tie.

Reggie Lewis, an all-Coast tackle last year and now a nose guard for the Oregon Ducks, was suspended by Oregon coach Don Read for the remainder of the Pac-8 football season. Read said the action was for disciplinary reasons — that Lewis missed several meetings on Sunday and failed to attend practice on Monday.

BASKETBALL

The St. Louis Spirits signed free agent Mike Barr, a 6-3 guard, who averaged 7.4 points-per-game the last two seasons for the Virginia Squires before being traded to Memphis.

The Kentucky Colonels have placed guard Joe Hamilton on waivers and activated guard John Roche from the injured reserve list.

Ernie DiGregorio, a guard for the Buffalo Braves, underwent surgery for the removal of torn cartilage in his left knee.

Johnny Neumann, overweight and out-of-condition, is working out with the Indiana Pacers and may be offered a contract if he gets in shape.

OTHER SPORTS

The All-England Tennis Club was non-committal in the face of a threat by top women players to boycott Wimbledon. A letter had been received from Billie Jean King demanding the same prize money as the men.

The United States Auto Club figured that Indianapolis winner Johnny Rutherford's earnings for 1974 probably will top $375,000.

Danish cyclist Ole Ritter, pedaling against a light wind most of the way, failed Tuesday in his much heralded bid to establish a one-hour world's professional cycling record.

Jean-Claude Bouttier, former European middleweight champion and twice challenger for the world crown held by Carlos Monzon, will meet Gary Broughton in a 10-round match at New York City's Felt Forum on Nov. 11.

The World Championships of Tennis will increase its total prize and individual prize money for each tournament next year. The total prize will be $2 million compared with $1.6 million this season.

Top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia downed Japan's Jun Kuki, 6-4, 6-1, in the first round of the $50,000 Viceroy Tennis Classic in Hong Kong, and Ken Rosewall, second-seeded, downed Dick Dell, 6-2, 6-2.

Attorneys for the Chicago Cougars hockey team filed a $3 million damage suit against the village of Rosemont, charging that the suburb made "misrepresentations" in an agreement to build a $20 million multi-purpose arena to house the Cougars.

Think Big flashed past favorite Leilani in the final seconds of the Melbourne Cup horse race to win the $200,000 event in three minutes, 23.2 seconds on the two-mile Flemington track in Melbourne.

The Soviet Union and Chile agreed to play an exhibition soccer game in Spain to make up for the World Cup elimination match the Soviets refused to play in Santiago.

Kings Batter Jazz

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Nate Archibald scored 30 points and Jimmy Walker hit 25 to pace Kansas City-Omaha to a 115-97 National Basketball Association victory over New Orleans here Tuesday night.

The Kings, who snapped a two-game losing skid, had a 46-45 halftime lead. Archibald then scored 16 points in the third quarter to push the Kings ahead.

New Orleans, however, closed to 85-81 on a pair of free throws by Neal Walk with 8:33 remaining.

Ron Behagen, who added 20 for the Kings, hit a pair of free throws and Walker contributed two straight jumpers to break open the game and deal the Jazz their ninth straight loss without a victory.

Walk, appearing nearly recovered from an injury that held him out the first five games, hauled in 22 rebounds and scored 23 points for New Orleans.

Pete Maravich led with 26.

Behangen, who had only three rebounds in the first half, finished with 19 and teammate Sam Lacey grabbed 16.

Bruins Tie Buffalo, 2-2

BOSTON (UPI) — Johnny Bucyk's third goal of the season at 14:42 of the third period enabled the Boston Bruins to gain a 2-2 tie with the Buffalo Sabres Tuesday night.

The tie gave the Sabres their fifth game without a loss and kept them three points ahead of Boston in the NHL division four.

Crete's Parks Delivers When Needed

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Football coaches maintain that rushing yards can be a misleading individual statistic. What counts are the yards delivered when most needed.

Crete halfback Mike Parks delivers them. He proved that last week in a clutch situation and earns the Sunday Journal and Star prep Player of the Week award.

Class B's third-ranked Norris took a 14-8 lead over second-ranked Crete with 7:44 remaining in the fourth quarter last Friday.

Crete needed to cover 67 yards to bounce back. The Cardinals launched a 15-play scoring drive and accomplished the mission with 2:38 remaining.

Parks showed his value to produce clutch yards. He accounted for 60 of the 67 yards rushing against a defense obviously keying on him.

Mike Parks
Crete Halfback

The effort produced a 14-14 tie between the Class B powers as Parks finished the game with 149 yards rushing on a workman-like 32 carries.

"He's done the job for us all season," Crete coach Larry Frost says of Parks. "He did the same thing in the last minute and a half to help us tie York. It seems like when we need him the most, he runs with even more desire."

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Jeff Barta, Niobrara — Senior fullback rushed for 331 yards on 24 carries for four touchdowns against Verdigre. He also snared three passes for 47 yards and another TD. He has rushed for 1,725 yards and 18 TD's this season.

Steve Burson, Giltner — Rushed for 286 yards on 23 carries in unbeaten eight-man team's win over Milligan, bringing his season rushing total to 1,970 yards.

Dan Kling, Gordon — Senior rushed for 238 yards on 23 carries and scored two touchdowns and an extra point in easy win over Crawford.

Mark Stamps and Jack Gleason, Lexington — Former, a middle guard, was in on 20 tackles in Minutemen's decisive 30-8 upset win over previously unbeaten Ord. Latter, a halfback and safety, contributed 120 yards rushing on 24 carries and 16 tackles.

Brian Ubben, Raymond Central — Senior linebacker had five unassisted tackles, seven assists and two forced fumbles in Class C-rated team's narrow win over Bennington.

Dave Watters, Lincoln East — Second team junior quarterback came on in second quarter to hit 9 of 12 passes for 226 yards and three touchdowns to spur top-ranked Spartans to 34-7 win over Lincoln High.

Gary Armknecht, Johnson-Brock — Rushed for 123 yards on 18 carries, caught a 37-yard pass to set up a touchdown and led tacklers with 12 in upset win over Humboldt.

Russ Larson, Mead — I-back rushed 29 times for 190 yards and two touchdowns to lead team to 26-20 win over Waterloo.

Tom Micek, Hastings St. Cecilia — Senior halfback accumulated 233 yards rushing on only 14 carries while scoring three touchdowns and reaching 1,000-yard mark in C-rated team's easy win over Weeping Water.

Dan Keyser, Arnold — Fullback rushed for 124 of team's 193 yards and scored two touchdowns as team rallied from 18-7 halftime deficit to post 19-18 win over Callaway. He also was in on 15 tackles at middle linebacker as team won Custer County championship for playoff berth in Loup Valley.

Doug Schmeckpeper, Bloomfield — Senior middle guard had 11 solo tackles and four assists to spark Class C team's 22-14 win over Class B Pierce. For the season, he has 116 unassisted tackles, 43 assisted stops, four fumble recoveries, two blocked punts and two blocked PAT's.

Mike Schenck, Mullen — In team's win over Halsey-Dunning, he scored four touchdowns on runs of 3, 9, and 44 yards and a 62-yard pass interception, kicked a field goal and extra point, hit 9 of 16 passes for 83 yards, recovered a fumble, intercepted a pass and made 10 tackles.

Tom Garay, Norris — Linebacker keyed Norris defense in 14-14 tie with Crete.

Scott Fischer, Grand Island — Rushed for 71 yards on 10 carries, scored a touchdown and caught a 13-yard pass to set up other TD in 12-0 win over Hastings.

Royal Refuses Comment

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal refused today to say whether he was misquoted recently on resentment at having to play Oklahoma "when they develop a monster team with illegal tactics."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said Monday he was upset over what he called several misquotations of himself by Sports Illustrated in an article about one news service's refusal to rank teams on probation, including Oklahoma.

Royal serves on the 12-member committee of the American Football Coaches Association that proposed last year that teams on NCAA probation for illegal recruitcng should not be ranked.

Switzer said the quote attributed to Royal was a year old and he doubted its accuracy. "I've got to feel that if I have been misquoted, then he could have, too."

Weaver Fired At Villanova

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Jim Weaver, in his first year as football coach at Villanova University, was fired Tuesday only hours after he disclosed he would quit at the end of the season to go to Clarion State College.

Dr. Ted Aceto, the athletic director, announced the firing because "of a contractural conflict which interfered with his interests at Villanova."

Weaver, 29, who was an assistant to Joe Paterno at Penn State for six years, will be succeeded by Lou Ferry.

Pitt, Penn State On TV Thanksgiving

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt and Penn State will meet Thanksgiving Night at Three Rivers Stadium before a nationally televised audience, Pitt athletic director Casimir Myslinski announced Tuesday.

Myslinski said both teams will receive $244,000 from a contract with the American Broadcasting Company.

The Nittany Lions, ranked sixth this week in the UPI poll of college coaches, has appeared on television twice this season, nationally against Stanford in the opener, and regionally against Maryland last Saturday.

Pitt, ranked 14th and in the Top 20 this week for the first time since the beginning of the season, has not appeared on an ABC broadcast since 1965.

The schools will be meeting for the 74th time in a series dating back to 1893. Penn State's win last year evened the series at 35-35-3.

The game was moved from Pitt Stadium to provide sufficient lighting. Myslinski said 4,000 tickets remain on sale.

Anthony Joins 'Big Game' Charts

When Nebraska Freshman Monte Anthony rushed for 157 yards against Colorado as the Huskers posted a 31-15 victory last week, he joined some mighty big names as a double-century performer.

Since 1963 only six Husker runners have managed to post two or more games of 100-yards or more in a season. Jeff Kinney, the workhorse of the 1970-71 national championship era is the leader with three 100-plus days — 171 in the 1971 Game of the Century with Oklahoma, 127 against Oklahoma in 1969 and 116 against Iowa State in 1970.

The other Huskers who ran for 100 yards twice in a single season during the past 12 years are Harry Wilson, Joe Orduna, Ron Kirkland, Rudy Johnson and, of course, Anthony.

The Bellevue frosh first cracked the century mark with 111 yards against Northwestern as the Huskers won, 49-7. Then, pepped by a 55-yard sprint that helped the Huskers move 98 yards to post a 24-0 lead, the quick-stepping, hard-running rookie piled up 157 yards on 23 carries at Colorado.

Anthony's 157 yards ranks No. 4 on the 1963-1974 chart, trailing only NU record-holder Frank Solich's 204 (Air Force, 1965), Kinney's 171 (Oklahoma, 1971), and Wilson's 160 (Oklahoma, 1965).

The Bellevue Bomber's output against the Buffs also vaulted him into the No. 1 spot on the 1974 Husker rushing chart. He now has 453 yards and a 6.2 average for the season.

Despite his 157-yard day, Anthony says he was having trouble against the Buffs.

"I was really running better when they were just giving me the ball and letting me run," the studious (he's carrying 23 hours and making top grades) freshman observed after the game. "Now, I'm being taught to read defenses and I'm having some trouble."

Coach Tom Osborne will no doubt keep smiling if he continues to have the same kind of problems he had at Colorado.

Here's the Nebraska "Big Day" chart for the 1963-74 era:

Yards	Player	Opponent	Year
*204	Frank Solich	Air Force	1965
171	Jeff Kinney	Oklahoma	1971

Gallo Beset By Labor Dispute Trying Step Toward Fine Wines

©The New York Times

Modesto, Calif. — Forty-one years ago, Ernest and Julio Gallo, the sons of an Italian immigrant, sank $5,900 of savings into the production of their first vat of wine.

Today, Ernest, 65 years old, is chairman of the E. & J. Gallo Winery Company, by far the nation's largest vintner and mass producer of wine. Julio, 64, is president of the family-owned business.

And the company is smack in the middle of a bitter dispute pitting Caeser Chavez against the Teamsters Union while at the same time it is trying to make a major step toward the rarer atmosphere of fine wines.

Sitting at an antique desk and surrounded by tapestries and paintings of grapes, the Gallo chairman, in a rare interview, says of Chavez's United Farm Workers of America: "We believe we have turned the other cheek too long." The union has been boycotting his products.

Ambitious Project

He also waxes enthusiastic about the company's ambitious current project — bringing out a line of premium varietal and generic wines. True to Gallo tradition, the new line is to be lower priced than those of many of its competitors.

The Gallo varietals, which sell for between $1.69 (for a fifth of Zinfandel) and $1.89 (for Sauvignon Blanc) are the culmination of more than 10 years of planning and experimentation. They are said to have received generally favorable notice from wine experts.

This hasn't always been the case. For years Gallo has produced mass-market, low-priced wines that sold well (almost one of every three bottles of wine sold in the United States is produced by Gallo) but seldom impressed the cognoscenti.

The company markets more than 50 brands, including Spanada, Madria-Sangria, Boone's Farm and Red Mountain, as well as Thunderbird and Ripple. They are sold in half-gallon and quart bottles and priced from 75¢ for a quart of Ripple to $2.49 for a half-gallon of pink chablis.

But for the new wines, Gallo has abandoned its traditional mundane labels and screw caps in favor of richly lettered labels, corks and lead foil caps.

Ernest Gallo, usually taciturn and publicity shy, spoke optimistically in the recent interview about the future of his company, whose headquarters here spreads over a 100-acre plot of neatly mowed lawns and low rambling buildings. Its two wineries in Fresno and Livingston have a production capacity of 150,000 cases a day.

"I have seen over the years how our sales have increased in direct proportion to our ability to improve the quality of our wine," he said.

However, Gallo apparently has not escaped the trend of slackening consumer demand for wine which began to take hold last year.

Drop In Sales

State sales figures show that Gallo's share of first-half production in California had actually dropped an average of 7% from the comparable 1973 period.

The lagging sales rate is attributed to the rising retail price of wine, the increasing budget-consciousness of consumers hit by inflation and a decline in the popularity of so-called pop wines.

Further, Gallo is bedeviled by the boycott efforts of Chavez' United Farm Workers of America, A.F.L.-C.I.O., which is trying to win back a labor contract covering the company's 600 farm workers.

Gallo signed a contract with the Teamsters Union last year after being one of the first growers in the state to sign with the U.F.W. in 1967. Chavez has called the Teamsters pact a "sweetheart" contract made against the wishes of its workers. But Gallo contends it was the workers who rejected U.F.W. practices.

No Laws

There are no state or federal laws governing union elections among farmworkers, which makes it virtually impossible to determine which union the workers do really favor.

What effect the nationwide boycott is having on Gallo sales is difficult to determine, given the turbulent condition of industry sales. But as one Gallo competitor said, "It certainly doesn't help them."

In the San Francisco Bay area, for example, the U.F.W. says 250 retail outlets have taken Gallo wine off their shelves.

And as evidence that the company is being hurt, the U.F.W. cites a report by Wheat First Securities, Inc., that Gallo's 1973 sales were only 98.5 million gallons, off 6.5% from 1972.

Ernest Gallo, however, says the boycott has not affected sales at all. "Our sales this year are up over last year," he said, giving no specific figures.

Mobil Shelves Refinery Plans In New Jersey

NEW YORK (AP) — Citing higher costs and reduced demand for oil, the Mobil Oil Corp. said Tuesday it has cancelled plans to expand a New Jersey refinery.

The expansion, announced in April 1973, was supposed to add 150,000 barrels a day capacity to Mobil's Paulsboro, N.J., plant, which now has a production capacity of 100,000 barrels a day.

Meanwhile, a securities analyst for the industry, Ed Ix of the Dreyfus Corp., said he expected other major oil companies to shelve previously planned refinery projects also.

Mobil said two factors — "spiraling inflation and declining oil demand" — spurred the expansion cancellation. Since April, it said, the expansion's cost has risen from $300 million to $400 million.

"I would say that other refinery expansion plans are quietly being placed to rest," said Ix.

Record Interest Paid By N.Y.C.

New York (AP) — New York City paid a record 8.34% interest on part of its $615 million note offering Monday.

Dealers said the higher rate reflected the city's increasing reliance on borrowed funds to meet budget deficits. Within the past two months the city has borrowed $3 billion by issuing notes and bonds.

Market Close Is Highest Since Sept. 6

New York (AP) — The stock market jumped to its highest close in nearly two months Tuesday, rallying strongly with little visible encouragement from the economic news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 17.52 to 674.75, its highest finish since Sept. 6, when it closed at 677.88.

The over-all New York Stock Exchange scoreboard showed 991 advances and 394 declines among the 1,763 issues traded.

Big Board volume increased to 15.96 million shares in spite of the closing of major banks — major participants in the market — for election day.

No results were in from the elections by the time the market closed, and brokers said it did not appear the market was paying any particularly sharp attention to them anyway.

Indeed, they noted, it appeared investors were shrugging off much in the immediate news of the day — including the evidently heightened prospect of a coal strike.

The Dow slipped about 2 points at the outset in the wake of the news that talks between the coal industry and the United Mine Workers union had been broken off during the night, less than a week before the expiration of the current contract.

The modest extent of the decline, however, could well have been looked upon as a bullish sign by traders who had braced themselves for a more substantial selloff.

Late in the first hour some buying appeared, and the market seemed to gather upward momentum through the day.

Brokers noted that the Dow appeared headed for another effort to penetrate the 680 level — a point at which it has turned back several times in the past few weeks after mid-session attempts to surpass it.

Several issues which had been deeply depressed in the long slide of the late spring and summer posted notable gains. Ryder System, the most-active issue on the Big Board, rose 1¾ to 6½; MGIC Investment added 1½ to 8½; and National Semiconductor was up 1½ to 10⅜.

In the auto-equipment sector, Monroe Auto Equipment was up 1½ to 8⅞, and Maremont rose 1½ to 11¾. Analysts said the issues apparently were buoyed by the theory that lagging new-car sales would mean increased demand for such replacement parts as shock absorbers for cars now on the road.

King's Department Stores was up 1 at 6. The company said it expeted to offer $2 in cash and $6 principal amount of debentures for each of its common shares under a plan authorized by directors Monday.

Big-name growth and blue-chip issues also were strong, as demonstrated by the four "glamor" issues in the Dow. Du Pont rose 3¼ to 110⅝, Eastman Kodak 3⅛ to 110⅝, Eastman Kodak 3⅛ to 74⅞, Sears, Roebuck 2⅛ to 53⅝, and Procter & Gamble 3 to 90¼.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index was up 1.01 at 39.54.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .00 to 69.78.

Giant Yellowknife Mines, which reported lower quarterly earnings Monday, slipped 1 to 14⅛ at the top of the Amex most-active list.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 65.90, up 1.37.

October-End Sales By GM Plunge 40%

Detroit (AP) — General Motors' car sales plunged nearly 40% in the last 11 days of October, as the nation's four domestic auto makers reported October sales down 26.8% compared to a year ago.

But import sales were up an estimated 4.3% in figures released Tuesday.

October was disastrous for GM, whose Oct. 21-31 sales of 126,558 were off 39.4% from last year. Monthly GM sales were barely better — down 32% from October, 1973, to 327,148.

Ford, with sales of 195,156, was off 17% from a year ago, while Chrysler was down 17% to 87,811. American Motors was off more than 52% to just over 17,408 sold.

Including imports, industry sales during the month totaled about 755,700, compared to some 980,000 in October, 1973. Deliveries last month by the four U.S. auto makers were 627,321, down from 857,073 a year earlier.

Bowater Co. To Hike Price Of Newsprint

New York (AP) — Bowater Sales Co. said Tuesday it would increase its price of 30-pound newsprint by $35 a ton to $270 a ton, effective Jan. 1.

Other newsprint producers in the U.S. and Canada previously had announced increases to $260 a ton, also effective Jan. 1.

Bowater President B. R. Pryde said the company "deliberately delayed any announcement until the four Bowater North American mills had prepared their manufacturing cost estimates for next year."

Pryde said a "very dismal picture" showed that manufacturing costs would rise $15 per ton due to a 65% increase in fuel and electrical costs during 1975 at the firm's two Southern mills.

The company's capital budget programs are expected to exceed $65 million in 1975 to cover environmental control, good-order maintenance and limited modernization, Pryde said.

The 1974 capital budget was $44 million.

Siberia Pipeline Is Inaugurated By Soviet Union

©The New York Times

New York — The Soviet Union, in the annual rush to complete key construction projects in time for the anniversary of the revolution on Nov. 7, has inaugurated a 2,000-mile pipeline from the vast Siberian natural gas fields to Moscow.

The new 48-inch transmission main, with an annual capacity of 14.5 billion cubic meters, is the westernmost extension of a growing gas network based in the West Siberian fields.

The Siberian network will ultimately become a major supplier of natural gas to the industrial nations of western Europe. Present soviet gas deliveries to Austria, West Germany and Italy originate mostly in the Ukraine.

Oil Find Reported

Houston (AP) — Continental Oil Co. announced an oil and gas discovery 17 miles southeast of Cameron, La., in the Gulf of Mexico.

Cattle Prices Are Steady To 50¢ Lower

Omaha (AP) — Slaughter steers and heifers sold steady to 50 cents lower in uneven trading here Tuesday.

Demand was only fair as buyers remained highly selective in their purchases and very cautious.

Depressed beef prices and a lack of movement in the carcass trade were behind their hesitant stance.

Cows were weak to 50 lower and bulls steady.

Several loads choice and prime 1,075-1,125 lbs steers earned 39.50-40.00, bulk choice 38.25-39.50. Two loads choice yield 3-5 1,375-1,400 lbs offerings were weighed up at 37.00.

Heifers choice 850-1,025 lbs were cleared 37.25-38.50, several loads choice with end prime 975-1,050 lbs included at 38.50 and a load and part load 1,000-1,025 lbs 38.75.

Most cows stopped at 18.50, a few 19.00-19.25.

Butcher hog trading turned into a two-way affair. Early dealings were active and steady to 25 lower, but from mid-session on prices were termed steady to strong, possibly a bit higher.

Most 200-280 lbs butchers were ticketed 37.75-38.75, a short load 210-240 lbs 39.00-39.25.

Sows were mostly steady, 325-600 lbs returning 34.50-35.75.

Wooled lambs were fully 50 higher, choice-prime 90-105 lbs at 38.00-38.50.

Shorn were unchanged as a part deck choice with end prime 103 lbs No. 1 pelts cleared at 40.00.

Butcher ewes were steady, 5.50-7.00.

Linemen Boost Adams

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

In the eight-man football ranks, it seems attention too often focuses on running backs who accumulate huge chunks of yardage.

Ken Cook, coach at No. 1-ranked Adams, doesn't subscribe to that theory, however. He's built winning football teams with solid line play.

Two of his best linemen have been offensive guard Dean Schoneweis (6-0, 190) and defensive nose guard Tony Rhoden (5-10, 185).

Both played exceptional games last week in Adams' 44-0 win over what's considered a good Lewiston team.

Schoneweis, according to Cook, produced one of his best blocking efforts of the season. He also was sharp in the win over Odell the week before.

In its last two outings, Adams has rushed for almost 1,000 yards.

Rhoden, Adams' defensive leader for the past two seasons, also delivered one of his best games against Lewiston. He finished with 13 unassisted tackles, eight assists and intercepted a pass.

Cook is hoping to get the same type of effort Wednesday night as his team takes aim at a perfect 10-0 season. Adams hosts ninth-ranked Barneston in the Homesteader Conference playoff.

Adams won the first matchup, 33-20, Oct. 11 at Adams. It was Barneston's only setback in an 8-1 season.

Class D

1—Fairmont (8-0)	6—Loomis (8-1)
2—Shickley (7-1)	7—Lyman (8-1)
3—Nelson (8-1)	8—Ponca (6-3)
4—Gurley (9-0)	9—Polk (5-4)
5—Medicine Valley (7-1)	10—Clarks (6-2)

Comment — Nelson and Loomis recorded Class D's most prestigious wins last week. Nelson bumped previously unbeaten Class C Alma, 12-7. Loomis measured Pleasanton (14-6), another previous Class C unbeaten. Medicine Valley, which dropped a 6-0 decision to strong Class C North Platte St. Pat's, faces another big challenge Friday at Class C's second-ranked Grant.

Eight-Man

1—Adams (9-0)	6—Giltner (9-0)
2—Farnam (8-0)	7—Cedar Bluffs (7-0)
3—East Butler (8-0)	8—Mullen (8-1)
4—Bartlett (9-0)	9—Barneston (8-1)
5—Wheatland (9-0)	10—Shelby (8-1)

Comment — Shelby gains top 10 berth for first time this season after 37-18 win over previously unbeaten Gresham. Arthur (9-0) is another top candidate. Top games this week are No. 9 Barneston at No. 1 Adams Wednesday night in Homesteader Conference playoff and No. 3 East Butler at No. 7 Cedar Bluffs Friday night.

'Let Big 10 Clubs Go To Other Bowls'

Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan coach Bo Schembechler is tired of the agreement which annually sends one Big Ten and one Pacific Eight team to the Rose Bowl and the rest home to the Wash Bowl.

Not that the coach of the second-rated Wolverines is preparing any alibis or laments for his team's Nov. 23 clash with top-rated Ohio State — he doesn't think that way.

But Schembechler believes the rise of the Big Ten, and it's further growth, depend on a change in the rule.

"There is a strong sentiment, not only at Michigan but throughout the Big Ten, for permitting other teams to go to other bowls," the Michigan coach said.

"The fear of losing the Rose Bowl pact is a lot of malarky," he said. "I don't think that's true any more.

"I'm not just concerned with the top two teams, either," he said, not specifically mentioning his own team and the one Woody Hayes coaches.

"A third place team with a 9-2 record should go," Schembechler said. "It would be a great boost for the programs of all the schools in our conference."

It is true that ever since Schembechler came to Michigan, for the 1969 season, the Wolverines and Buckeyes have won or shared the Big Ten title.

But the whole conference, Schembechler said, is on the rise and the days of titles and roses for only the Buckeyes and Wolves may be just about over.

The third place team in the big ten, Michigan State, is only a game and a half behind the co-leaders at this relatively late stage in the season and until at least after Saturday's game between the Spartans and Buckeyes, there is a possibility that someone other than Michigan or Ohio State could win or share the title for the first time since Indiana in 1967.

Big Ten teams also posted their best record against outside competition (16-13-1) in 10 years this season.

"Name me a better conference than ours from top to bottom," Schembechler said. "The offenses today are so good, we're having a hard time keeping teams off the board. The equalization of grants (in aid) has helped us, too. We've got some good football players in this league."

Most of the talent is at Ohio State and Michigan, but Schembechler said the other eight schools are catching up — too fast.

"They may be up and down, but they can be pretty good on occasion," he said.

Michigan faces one of them, Illinois, this Saturday.

Bruce Cites NU's Humm

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State drilled for nearly two hours in the mud Tuesday ironing out game plans for Saturday's home finale against ninth-rated Nebraska.

"Dave Humm is as good a quarterback as there is in the country," said Coach Earle Bruce of the Nebraska signal-caller.

"He does a tremendous job of moving the team and putting points on the board."

Bruce said Humm's chief asset is his ability to read defenses "and then pick them apart." Bruce, who displayed at least four offensive sets against Oklahoma last week, also pointed to the Huskers' stellar defense.

"They have yielded only seven total points in the first three quarters of all their games," he noted.

Bruce said the Cyclone should be at full strength by Saturday. Offensive tackle Randy Young was expected to return to drills Wednesday after injuring both shoulders against Oklahoma.

Cyclone Strachan Fined $30 In Ames

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State University football star Mike Strachan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to a charge of receiving stolen property. He was fined $30.

Strachan, 21, was charged late Monday with possession of stolen property under $20 after campus security potice reported discovering a stolen parking permit in his car. The charge, a misdemeanor, carries a maximum penalty of 30 days in jail or a $100 fine or both.

Elephants Help Clear The Way

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What do you do when your circus truck jack-knifes and stalls on a road surrounding Candlestick Park's parking lot, stopping four lanes of drivers anxious to attend a football game?

You simply open the truck door, lead out two elephants and have them tow the truck into the proper position. And then you restart the motor, load the elephants and proceed.

Don Madeiros, 32, and Clark Craig, 29, did just that Monday night.

They said they became confused while driving the Vargas Circus truck from San Francisco to San Jose and got off Bayshore Freeway onto the road surrounding the parking lot.

Traffic headed for the San Francisco 49ers-Los Angeles Rams game was backed up to the freeway until Henry and Manny, the two 8,500-pound elephants, righted the truck.

Nebraska Gains In UPI Poll

Compiled From News Wires

Ohio State leaves no doubt about No. 1 but the rest of the top collegiate football teams in the nation underwent some reshuffling this week in the Associated Press and United Press International ratings released Tuesday.

Nebraska, after a 31-15 win over Colorado, moved up one spot in the UPI ratings to eighth but remained in the No. 9 spot in the AP listing.

Both Penn State and Florida went around the Huskers after wins over rated teams. Penn State toppled Maryland, 24-17, to move into UPI's sixth spot and to AP's seventh. Florida riddled Auburn, previously No. 5, 25-14, to move to 7th in the UPI poll and 6th in the AP poll.

Ohio State still holds a commanding lead in both polls, improving on a 99-point advantage over No. 2 Oklahoma in the AP listing to a 122-point edge after Oklahoma struggled in a 28-10 win over Iowa State. The Buckeyes had ruined Illinois, 49-7, last weekend.

Southern California dropped out of the top ten after a 15-15 tie with unrated California. The tie brought Cal into the AP's top 20 to 18th.

Notre Dame, despite a 14-6 battle with Navy, moved to No. 5 in the coaches' UPI ratings and is 8th in the AP list.

Oklahoma State made its entry to the top 20 in the AP poll with a 17th-place stand.

Marion Campbell
New Falcon Coach

Falcons Fire Van Brocklin

ATLANTA (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin was fired as general manager and coach of the Atlanta Falcons Tuesday and replaced as coach by Marion Campbell, the National Football League team's defensive coordinator.

Falcon owner Rankin Smith announced the action in a brief statement.

Van Brocklin was in the midst of one of his most frustrating seasons since becoming head coach of the Falcons after the third game of the 1968 season. The team, picked in some preseason estimates as a contender for the playoffs, has a 26 record.

The volatile Van Brocklin, a star quarterback during his playing days with the Los Angeles Rams and later the Philadelphia Eagles, has been under intense criticism from local fans and news media and Smith also had been criticized for failing to fire the coach, known as the Dutchman.

Local newspapers reported in Tuesday's editions that Smith was in Miami, where the Falcons suffered their worst defeat in three seasons—42-7 by the Dolphins on Sunday.

Smith's brief statement said: "Van Brocklin has been relieved of his duties as general manager and coach of the Atlanta Falcons. Marion Campbell has been appointed head coach. I haven't been hiding in Miami."

The strain began showing acutely on Van Brocklin Monday at his routine weekly news conference. When a newsman asked him if he was still a fighter, as he had insisted several weeks ago, the Dutchman challenged the writer to a fight.

Van Brocklin extended the invitation to about a dozen other writers, broadcasters and photographers in attendance, but pointed it specifically at Ron Hudspeth of The Atlanta Journal. No one accepted his challenge.

Van Brocklin had a brilliant 12-year NFL career that earned him a berth in pro football's Hall of Fame.

Florida Proves To Be More Than Darkhorse

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The University of Florida went into the 1974 football season rated a darkhorse in the Southeastern Conference race and after eight games the Gators are more than a darkhorse.

They've got a chance to tie Alabama's perennial league leaders should they win their remaining SEC games and the Crimson Tide stumbles just once.

No one in Gainesville, Fla., where the Gator campus is located, or elsewhere for that matter, dares compare Florida with Alabama, which is going for its fourth consecutive league title.

But Florida had a schedule break this season, not being called on to play Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi. The Gators are 3-1 in the league, losing only to Vanderbilt. Alabama is 4-0.

Despite losing two outstanding offensive backs, Nat Moore and Vince Kendrick, and several fine defensive performers from last season, the Gators are stronger than last season when they won their last five regular season games to post a 7-4 record.

"We have a half dozen big backs who can run for us in the veer," said Coach Doug Dickey. Leader so far has been Tony Green, who is 5-10 and 180. He rushed for 530 yards in the first seven games.

Last Saturday, when the Gators knocked Auburn out of the undefeated ranks, the top ball carrier was fullback Jimmy DuBose, who ran for 143 yards through the middle of the Plainsmen defense.

Florida's strong point this fall appears to be in its offensive line, which averages 240 pounds from tackle to tackle. "We've got the most mature line of scrimmage since I've been here," Dickey said. This is his fifth season with the Gators.

"Our big problem has been replacing those key losses on defense," he added. As a result, the Gators rank sixth in total defense and tenth in passing defense in the SEC.

Dickey started with 40 lettermen, including 14 starters from last season. He had an excellent recruiting effort during the past winter, partially because cross-state rival Florida State has come upon hard times.

"Usually," said Dickey, "Florida State (0-11 last season) gets eight or nine of the better players here in the state that we would like to have. This year they got only two."

Maryland's Driesell Wary Of Prep Draft

The Charlotte News

College basketball teams with 6-foot-6 centers. Perhaps 3,000 people in the stands. No national television.

These are things Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell visualizes if the professional basketball leagues continue to sign star players before they have completed their college careers or, as Driesell has so painfully experienced in the celebrated case of Moses Malone, even before they enter college.

"Nobody else seems to be concerned about it," said Driesell, noted as one of the country's best collegiate recruiters, "But I am. Somebody like the athletic directors and conference commissioners and the NCAA had better get together with the pro owners and league commissioners and reach some kind of agreement, a compromise."

Driesell predicts that the signing by the Utah Stars of the 6-foot-11 Malone, a Petersburg, Va., high school star who had planned to enter Maryland, will lead other pro teams to go after the good big players right out of high school.

"I think there's real good chance a guy like Jabbar, Walton or Malone will go pro instead of going to college, unless he's really academically oriented," said Driesell. "Even so, Tom McMillen, who went on to become Rhodes Scholar at Maryland, wanted to sign at the end of his freshman year. He had gone to a Buffalo Braves summer camp and they spent a month convincing him to apply for a ruling as a hardship case. But he couldn't qualify as a hardship case.

"Buffalo was offering him a very, very poor contract."

Driesell said, "I can coach with 6-6 centers, but I don't know where the money's coming from if there are only 3,000 people in the stands and we don't have any national TV. That's what it'll come to if the pros keep getting the good players.

"You could run down the lists of pros today and find most of the guys who would have been All-American this season if they hadn't signed before completing college."

Driesell, one of the most successful coaches in America for more than a decade first at Davidson and now at Maryland, would streak through a herd of bulls in red underwear to land a good ball player, but he insists his advice to Malone was based on his concern for the youngster's future.

"I told Moses, my great friend, much as I love him, that he made a very bad mistake when he signed a pro contract. It's simply a business deal and you have to handle it that way.

"There has never been a player who didn't get more money for signing pro than he would have gotten if he had signed a year earlier. Bill Walton got $800,000 more after this senior year than he was offered after his junior year.

"In effect that means he earned $800,000 while completing his last year of college and not having that 80-game pro grind. And if anybody thinks it's not a grind, look at Wilt Chamberlain. Anybody would give him a million dollars to play this season, but he won't do it."

Driesell said he considers N. C. State forward David Thompson, national player of the year as a junior last season, "very, very smart" for waiting until after graduation this year to go pro.

"For one thing," said Driesell, "his education will mean a lot to him when he stops playing basketball, but I'm looking at it primarily from a financial standpoint. He'll just be worth more to the pros, so he's actually making money by going to N. C. State another season.

"Moses wanted to play pro ball real bad. I told him if he wanted to play that badly, he should just hold off for several months, play one season of college ball, make All-America—which he would have—and then negotiate with both leagues. He would have gotten twice, three times as much money as he got.

STAR PHOTO

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The Sugar Bowl won in a "landslide" in the University of Nebraska's "election day" voting Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the Cornhusker football team were "unanimous" in approving a bid to play the University of Florida in the 40th annual game in New Orleans New Year's Eve.

The vote was taken prior to Tuesday's practice in preparation for an important Big Eight Conference game Saturday in Ames, Ia.

Coach Tom Osborne said he was contacted late Monday by Sugar Bowl officials who offered the invitation. Although the vote was considered a formality, Osborne said it always has been Nebraska's practice to let the players decide whether to go to a bowl game.

"We're most pleased with the bid," Osborne said, "But in some ways sorry the invitation came before we play Iowa State. That puts some extra heat on us, but we can't do anything about that. It does make us an attractive target."

Both Florida, 7-1, and Nebraska, 6-2, will be making their second appearance in the Sugar Bowl. The Gators lost 20-18 to Missouri in 1966 and Nebraska lost to Alabama 34-7 in 1967.

Florida moved into the bowl picture last weekend with its upset of previously unbeaten Auburn. The only loss Coach Doug Dickey's Gators have this season is a 24-10 upset by Vanderbilt.

Osborne said it now is important that the players get the bowl talk out of their heads as soon as possible because of Saturday's game against worrisome Iowa State.

"Our main goal is to win the Big Eight championship and if we win the rest of our games at least we will tie for it," Osborne said.

He pointed out that Oklahoma used Nebraska's bid to the Cotton Bowl last year as an incentive against the Huskers because the Sooners had beaten Texas, the NU foe. "To them it was their bowl game since they couldn't play in one," Osborne said.

"Now, because the bid came so early, the three teams left on our schedule can do the same thing. We want to win so we can hold up our end of the bargain with the Sugar Bowl."

He said, though, that there were no strings attached to the bid, but the bowl people naturally would like to see NU win to make their game more attractive.

No decision has been made on such details as when the team will head to New Orleans and practice plans. It is expected athletic director Bob Devaney and ticket manager Jim Pittenger will go to New Orleans after Saturday's game to make arrangements for the game.

The Huskers practiced on their grass field behind the stadium getting ready for a similar field at Iowa State.

Osborne said only Ritch Bahe, wingback who has a pulled hamstring muscle, remains a question mark for the game. "He's still very questionable unless he shows improvement in a day or so," Osborne said.

Monsterman Wonder Monds, fullback Tony Davis, and tight end Larry Mushinskie missed the workout with minor ailments Tuesday, but all three are expected to practice Wednesday.

Just like Nebraska, Florida faces an old foe Saturday when the Gators play Georgia before a packed stadium in the 70,000-seat Gator Bowl in Jacksonville.

"Our players wanted to play in the Sugar Bowl and we wanted the best possible competition," Gator coach Doug Dickey said. "Nebraska certainly will be a tough opponent. This is not only a great opportunity but a challenge to our team and the University of Nebraska.

"After the game played in the Sugar Bowl last year, it will be an added challenge to give New Orleans the kind of game they are accustomed to having."

In the 1973 Sugar Bowl, Notre Dame edged Alabama 24-23 in a battle between the nation's top-rated teams.

Split end Lee McGriff, the Southeastern Conference's leading pass receiver, said the seniors on the team were contacted by telephone about the invitation.

"Coach Dickey called me last night and said to have all the seniors in his office to officially announce it," McGriff said. "The seniors voted unanimously to go and then started running around the dormitory screaming. We're awfully excited about it and extremely happy to be playing a team as powerful as Nebraska. History shows they're a great team with high-powered offense and defense and I'm sure this team is no exception."

The invitation makes the 1974 Nebraskans the sixth consecutive team to play in a bowl and 11th since 1962. The Huskers have won their last five appearances in post-season competition.

Huskers Set Ticket Policy

As in the past, a priority system will be used to fill orders for the Sugar Bowl tickets, said Nebraska, ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

Those who placed their orders before the Sugar Bowl bid was accepted need not now reorder. Pittenger said they will be handled as though received on Nov. 7 and in accordance with the presently announced policies. These individuals will be billed — do not send check until requested.

Checks should be made payable to the University of Nebraska and the price is $9.00 per ticket. Those now placing orders should enclose their checks and include $.50 per order to cover mailing and handling charges.

The prime aim of the priority system, he said, is to give first consideration to those who have demonstrated a sustained interest in backing the Cornhuskers.

On that basis, Pittenger said, priority consideration is being extended to:

1. University of Nebraska Students and Faculty
2. Major Athletic Contributing Organizations
3. Season Ticket Holders of Record
4. Former N Men
5. Travel Agencies, public and private, which normally have provided tour service for fans to Cornhusker games.

"In handling orders which involve none of the above priorities" Pittenger said, "we are going to lean in favor of members of the University of Nebraska Alumni Association and particularly Alumni Clubs."

Individuals ordering tickets who feel they are entitled to one of the above priorities should so stipulate at the time his order is placed.

Above-noted priorities will be observed on all orders received in the office by Nov. 17. After that date, all orders will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Pittenger said his office reserves the right to adjust any ticket orders for two reasons; first, to make scalping and resale difficult, and second, to stretch the supply of tickets to as many bona fide Cornhusker fans as possible.

University students expecting to have a priority will have an opportunity to place their orders at a special sale Nov. 18, 19 & 20.

To give Nebraskans outside the Lincoln area an even break with those close to the University, date of postmark rather than the date of receipt will be used, Pittenger said. However, orders must be postmarked Nov. 17 or in the ticket office by noon, Nov. 16 to receive priority.

He explained that the Ticket Office operates under State and University regulations which require prompt deposit of checks. Therefore, all checks received with orders will be deposited even though eventual inability to fill the order will require a refund.

'Secret Bowl Agreements' Not Secret

Compiled from News Wires

An agreement by the representatives of several major bowl associations not to announce the participants in their various post-season classics until Nov. 16 was broken Tuesday when it became known that Florida and Nebraska had already accepted bids to play in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans on New Year's Eve.

Two more of the nation's top-ranked clubs — Alabama and Notre Dame — also let it be known that they had been offered "strong feelers" by the Orange Bowl while another of the nation's major college grid powers, Penn State, admitted publicly its team members had voted to accept a Cotton Bowl bid, if and when it was offered.

The early announcements of the expected bowl pairings was in violation of a "gentlemen's agreement" established by the representatives of 10 major bowl associations at a meeting in St. Simon's Island, Ga., last May. At that time the representatives agreed not to announce any pairings until Nov. 16. Those agreeing to the deal were the Astro-Bluebonnet, Cotton, Gator, Fiesta, Liberty, Orange, Peach, Sugar, Sun and Tangerine Bowl representatives.

Prior to this year the NCAA had a regulation in its by-laws which prohibited the contact of prospective bowl participants by bowl associations until the third Saturday in November or the Saturday prior to the institution's final game, whichever was the earlier. The NCAA, however, lifted this restriction at its annual meeting in January.

"Frankly, we intended to abide by the agreement established last May, but we found out that others weren't," said Clifford H. Kern, Jr., president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl. "When one fellow jumps, you've got to jump."

Official announcement of the Florida-Nebraska matchup came hours after the Orange Bowl announced it had sent "strong feelers" in an effort to get Alabama and Notre Dame for their contest.

Last year's Sugar Bowl featured top-ranked Alabama and unbeaten Notre Dame in a game the Irish won 24-23.

Neither Notre Dame nor Alabama would confirm whether it had accepted bids to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami on New Year's night.

"We have not as yet taken any definitive action on any bowl proposal and will not make any decision until the coaches, team and the faculty board, in that order, have had an opportunity to discuss the situations available," said Irish athletic director Edward W. "Moose" Krause. "The final decision will be announced by the faculty board."

"I'm not ready to talk about bowls yet," said Alabama athletic director and coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. "I'm not thinking in those terms at this point."

At Penn State, a spokesman for the school said the sixth-ranked Nittany Lions had not received any formal invitation but that the players had voted to accept a Cotton Bowl bid "if offered."

"We've had no formal invitation," the spokesman said, "but the vote has made our intentions clear."

The Nittany Lions would meet the Southwest Conference Champion, either Texas or Texas A.M., on New Years' Day. Should they accept the Cotton Bowl bid, it would be their 13th appearance in a major bowl game since 1923. They have a bowl record of 9-2-2.

The Tulsa Tribune reported Tuesday that sources close to the Sun Bowl said Oklahoma State University and Pittsburgh will be invited to the bowl.

A spokesman for the University of Miami, Ohio said Tuesday that officials hope to meet the University of Miami, Fla., in the Tangerine Bowl.

"We would like a prestigious opponent," the spokesman said. Miami of Ohio beat Florida 16-7 in last year's Tangerine Bowl game.

Miami, Fla., officials could not be reached for immediate comment. However, Pete Elliott, the football coach and athletic director, said last Friday he didn't even want to think about bowl games for a few weeks.

Unofficial Word: Lincoln To Gain Racing Dates

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Without giving a formal guarantee, the Nebraska State Racing Commission all but agreed that Lincoln will receive additional racing dates once progress is made on its new-horse racing plant.

"The Commission has said before that we wanted Lincoln improvements and when they're made Lincoln will get more dates," said Commission chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha Tuesday as the Commission ended its two-day annual fall meeting. "But when the time is necessary for that, the members of this Commission could be long gone.

"However, if I'm still on the Commission at the time you need dates, then you will get them," he said. "Other than saying that, I don't think we can say any more."

Still, that was what Fairgrounds general manager Henry Brandt wanted to hear. He asked for assurances of more dates when the $5 million improvements have begun.

Brandt told the Commission that he hopes money for the rebuilding of the race track and constructing new barns will be available by Dec. 1 so bids can be taken.

He said the $1,200,000 in bonds will be sold in $5,000 increments. That money will be used to tear down the old barns and construct 238 additional stalls and 26 tack stalls.

Brandt said that all the barns on the north side of track except three will be torn down. Those construction plans are hoped to be completed before next summer's meet.

"After the 1975 Fair, the present grandstand will be torn down and we'll build a new one," he explained. "It will seat 5,500, but it can be expanded to seat 20,000. But we've got to have more dates in order to make the bonds more desirable.

"We've got to race more than 25 days if we're going to have that kind of facility," he said. "By 1976, we'll have the new barns and the Fieldhouse facility so we can run closer to the fair. Say another week so we could get five more days at least.

"But it's going to be touch and go on our construction for the next couple of years," he warned.

Brandt said he would like between 35 and 40 days for his racing season starting in 1976.

Last year Lincoln raced 26 days. Although Lincoln sought 30 days this year, it was chopped to 25 as the Commission awarded Ak-Sar-Ben the week of July 8-12 that both tracks had requested.

Nevertheless, Farnham moved closer to promising more dates for Lincoln.

"You were told all this in the years you were waiting (for a new track)," he said. "You had a promise that any subsequent commissions would have a moral if not a legal obligation to uphold. It will be no problem if I'm on the commission."

While the question of how many dates Lincoln will receive will probably occur at next year's fall meetings, the news of the impending additional dates and an improved Lincoln facility were good news to horsemen.

"I'm tickled to death to have a new plant and more racing dates in Lincoln," said Lincoln's perennial leading owner-trainer Red Lee of Silver Creek.

"There's no question that they (Lincoln) should be allotted the dates they choose," said Omaha physician Lee Bevilacqua.

While the Lincoln date question highlighted the meeting, Ak-Sar-Ben general manager Dick Becker praised his longtime director of racing Noel Chilcutt, who was the target of major criticism at Monday meeting.

"Noel Chilcutt has been a very important factor in Ak-Sar-Ben racing long before I came on the scene," Becker said. "We feel Noel has been a very loyal and dedicated employee and has been important in the growth of Ak-Sar-Ben. I want to give him a vote of confidence."

Chilcutt had been cited at Monday's meeting for failing to initiate inquiries into the running of races during the 1974 meet. Becker, Farnham and state steward Jack Fickler all agreed that it would be beneficial to flash the inquiry sign on the main tote board whenever the stewards want to review a race.

"If any question whatsoever occurs, that inquiry sign should be flashed," Farnham said. "It's good public relations with the fans. It's the best thing for everyone concerned that we have a policy of numerous inquiries and apply a standard of riding to protect both horseflesh and jockeys.

"It's essential that you let the fans know the stewards are reviewing a race. That sign can be posted even while the race is going on," he added.

Becker also announced that purses for all Nebraska-bred stakes races at Ak-Sar-Ben in 1975 have been increased by $5,000.

He said major construction projects that will be completed before next spring's races include building a tunnel for jockeys so they could bypass walking through the crowds while returning to the jockeys' quarters.

He added that all roads would be hard-surfaced in the barn areas.

The Commission also received a comprehensive mathematical study of this year's Ak-Sar-Ben exacta races from George Stryker of Omaha.

The study showed that 1974 exacta races had an increased percentage of winning favorites because "the races ran truer to form in both exacta races and all races and the quality of exacta races was improved by Ak-Sar-Ben."

The percentage of winning favorites in exacta races jumped from 20.9% last year to 31.82% this year and the hike in favorites finishing first or second rose from 40.9% to 43.64%.

The Commission approved a 175-day season in 1975 for Nebraska.

Although that is two days less than this year's 177-day season, Atokad Park in South Sioux City has an option to race on two Mondays. It is therefore, possible Nebraska racing will again hold a 177-day season next year.

1975 Schedule

Fonner Park — (40 days) Feb. 27-28, Mar. 1, 6, 7, 8, 13, 14 and 15 Tuesday through Saturday racing March 18-April 26. Racing on April 21

Ak-Sar-Ben — (56 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing April 29 through July 12. Racing on May 26.

Lincoln — (25 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing July 15 through Aug. 16.

Columbus — (25 days) Tuesday through Saturday racing Aug. 19-Sept. 20. Racing on Sept. 1. Dark on Sept. 2.

Atokad — (29 days) racing Tuesday through Saturday Sept. 24 through Nov. 1.

Good News . . . Bad News

First, the good news about Nebraska's Sugar Bowl opponent: Florida ranks last in the Southeastern Conference in passing defense.

Now, the bad news: The Gators lead the conference in passes intercepted with 16 thefts.

Perhaps one of those statistics offsets the other, but they do show that if quarterback Dave Humm throws the ball like he has this season so far he could have a good night in New Orleans.

Humm has had just two passes intercepted in 117 attempts and has completed 73 of them for 981 yards and eight touchdowns.

Although a lot can happen between now and Dec. 31, the game right now stacks up as a battle between the Huskers' I-formation attack, which features a good balance between passing and running, and Florida's combination veer-wishbone offense which leans more toward the run than the pass.

Nebraska, with Humm doing most of the throwing, has passed 147 times and rushed 402 times. Florida, on the other hand, is top-heavy in rushing with 491 tries compared with just 90 pass attempts.

In last week's 25-14 victory over Auburn, Florida passed just six times, completing four for a mere 38 passing yards. The Gators rushed 70 times for 324 yards.

The Gators are tied with Alabama for fewest interceptions thrown and they lead the SEC with eight touchdown passes.

Defensively against the pass, however, it is a different story. Florida's secondary has been hit for 1,298 yards. Opponents have completed 96 of 206 passes.

A Couple of 7-4 Teams?

Wayne Duke, former commissioner of the Big Eight, calls the post-season bowl business "a jungle" and it might be even more like a jungle this season than ever before.

Just imagine the possibility that both Nebraska and Florida could go into the Sugar Bowl each with 7-4 records. Yes, that's what could happen unless the two squads buckle down in their remaining three games.

The Huskers, of course, face a very dangerous Iowa State team at Ames on Saturday with vivid memories of how close the Cyclones came to pulling an upset two years ago on the same field.

Then they play Kansas State the following Saturday and it's not out of the realm of possibility the Wildcats might be dedicating the remainder of their season to trying to save Coach Vince Gibson's job.

And, on Nov. 23, the undefeated Oklahoma Sooners come to town for the finale. Very likely they'll be going for an undefeated season and a possible national championship.

Florida's remaining games aren't easy, either. Especially though will be Saturday's traditional rivalry battle against Georgia, played annually in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville.

A week after that, Florida journeys to Kentucky, which has a 4-4 record that includes victories over Louisiana State and Tulane and a 24-20 loss to Georgia.

After an open date, the Gators will be host to rival Miami of Florida in Gainesville on Nov. 30.

Long Wait Over Now For NU's Westbrook

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Don Westbrook just waited until he got a chance to show what he could do for the Nebraska football team. And he hasn't let anybody down now that the wait is over.

"A lot of people think I just blossomed, but that isn't so," said the Nebraska senior wingback. "I'm just getting the opportunity to play more."

Westbrook certainly has blossomed in the statistics category however, as he is the leading scorer, pass receiver and kickoff returner, besides being one of the leading rushers on the Husker squad this season.

"I've just been doing the job I knew I was capable of doing," said Westbrook. "I knew all along I could help this team in one way or another."

"This is my first season of playing full-time regularly," he adds. But you couldn't tell from the statistics he has compiled in just eight games.

Westbrook has scored nine touchdowns, six on passes and three on the ground. He has 24 receptions for 367 yards and has returned eight kickoffs for 130 yards for a 16.3 yards per return average.

The 5-11, 188-pounder from Cheyenne, Wyoming has also compiled 200 yards rushing on 34 carries for a strong 5.9 yards per carry average.

Westbrook says he relies upon natural abilities on kickoff returns. "I think that to be a good kickoff returner you just have to have some natural abilities, because we don't work on that part of the game that much."

As for pass receiving Westbrook feels that the formations and blocking make the short passes somewhat easier than the long ones because, "when I go deep there are usually two safeties going with me all the way down the field. We just run up the field together and sometimes I get lucky and just break it."

But on overall performance Westbrook comments, "I have the same tools I've always had, just a different attitude and the opportunities have made the difference.

"I like to run with the ball more than anything else because that's what I've done since high school, but as long as I get to play and play a lot, I'll be happy."

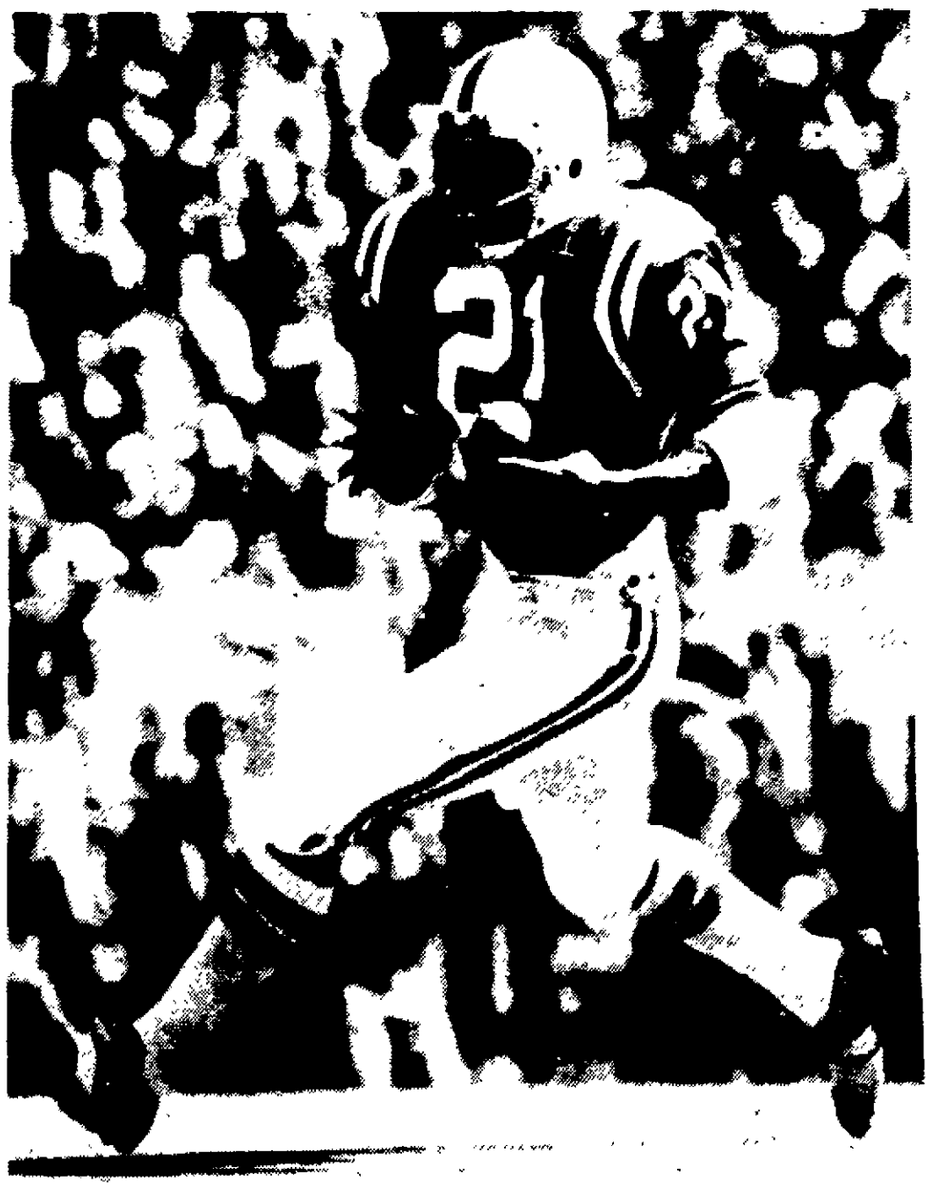

Westbrook, a two year letterman, played in obscurity the past three years at both I-Back and wingback. In his freshman year he picked up 193 yards on 73 carries and did not see action in 1971. In 1972 he rushed 30 times for 198 yards and in 1973 he gained 56 yards on seven carries.

"With the great line we have here at Nebraska I feel that I can run against almost any team," said Westbrook. "But I just try to concentrate on what the coaches tell us, that being, to block, catch and run. In that order of importance."

Westbrook modestly comments that the reason he feels he is the leading receiver is due to the formations the offense uses and the fine passing arm of quarterback Dave Humm.

"I have gotten the call as the first receiver Humm looks to and I have been able to get open," Westbrook explains, "But if it's better for the team that I just block, then I'll do just that.

"I'm out to prove something to myself and as long as I get to play steadily I'll be happy. I really don't care how many touchdowns I get, just as long as I can help the team."

Oakland Heads AL All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (UPI) — As if they needed further proof of their superiority, the Oakland A's have named four players to the 1974 United Press International American League AllStar squad.

The A's, winners of three consecutive World Series, placed shortstop Bert Campaneris, outfielders Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson and pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter on the squad which was selected by sports writers and correspondents from the league's 12 cities.

No other team had more than two players selected to the squad. Texas, Detroit and Baltimore each placed two while Chicago and Minnesota named one each.

Outfielder Jeff Burroughs and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins were chosen from the Texas Rangers, catcher Bill Freehan and relief pitcher John Hiller were named from the Detroit Tigers and third baseman Brooks Robinson and designated hitter Tommy Davis were selected from the Baltimore Orioles.

Rounding out the team were first baseman Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox and second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins.

Allen, although he "retired" before the season ended, was an easy winner in the voting for first base. The controversial slugger grabbed 13 of the 17 votes cast for the position, even though he skipped the last three weeks of the campaign. Allen batted .301, led the league with 32 home runs and drove in 88 runs.

Carew also had no trouble winning the race for second base. Carew, who led the majors with a .364 average, received 16 votes while Campaneris, who enjoyed his best year in the majors, won the balloting for shortstop over Texas' Toby Harrah by a vote of 11-6. Campaneris hit .290 while Harrah hit .260 with 21 homers and 74 rbi's.

The closest balloting was in the race for third base where the 37-year-old Robinson edged Oakland's Sal Bando by two votes, nine to seven. Robinson enjoyed his best year at the plate by hitting .288. Bando hit only .243 but belted 22 homers and drove in 103 runs.

Burroughs was the top vote-getter among the outfielders with 15 votes. The 23-year-old slugger led the league in runs batted in with 118 and also hit 25 home runs and batted .301.

Rudi and Jackson each collected 14 votes. Rudi batted .293, hit 22 homers and drove in 99 runs while Jackson batted .289 with 29 homers and 93 rbi's.

Freehan, who made a dramatic comeback, beat out New York's Thurman Munson in the voting for catcher. Freehan, enjoying his best season since 1971, hit .296 with 18 homers and 60 rbi's and received eight votes to four for Munson, who batted .261 with 13 homers and 60 rbi's.

Davis was an easy winner in the voting for designated hitter. The 35-year-old veteran collected nine votes to beat out Kansas City's Hal McRae, who was second with three. Davis hit .289 and drove in 84 runs while helping the Orioles to the AL East Division title.

In the balloting for pitchers each voter was asked to select two starters and one reliever. Hunter, Jenkins and Hiller easily emerged as the top vote-getters. Hunter, the AL Cy Young Award winner, received 16 votes and Jenkins collected 14 while Hiller led the relievers with seven votes.

Hunter posted a 25-12 record with a 2.49 earned run average while Jenkins was also 25-12 with a 2.83 era. Hiller posted a 17-14 record with a 2.64 era.

McBride, Gross Top Rookies

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielders Bake McBride of the St. Louis Cardinals and Greg Gross of the Houston Astros and first baseman Mike Hargrove of the Texas Rangers were the leading vote getters on the 1974 Major League Rookie All-Star Team, it was announced Tuesday.

McBride topped the balloting, recieving 500 of the 574 ballots cast by maor league players, managers and coaches. Gross collected 490 votes and Hargrove garnered 472.

Others selected to the team were second baseman Larry Milbourne of Houston, shortstop Bucky Dent of the Chicago White Sox, third baseman Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs, outfielder Claudell Washington of the Oakland A's, catcher Barry Foote of the Montreal Expos, left-handed pitcher Frank Tanana of the California Angels and right-handed pitcher John D'Acquisto of the San Francisco Giants.

The balloting was conducted by the Topps Chewing Gum Co.

Foreman's Alibis Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Goodman said George Foreman lost his title to Muhammad Ali last week on the same type of ring flooring used in his victories over Joe Frazier and Ken Norton.

"I am surprised to read that George is trying to use the ring as an alibi for his defeat," Goodman, who with his father handled press relations and other details for the promoters, added Tuesday. "It was a case of George losing to a superior fighter on that particular evening. The ring had nothing to do with it."

Goodman is the son of Murray Goodman of Goodman Associates, which has had a vital role in many title fights.

Foreman charged in Paris that he was beaten because "Ali's pros" tampered with the ring, loosening the ropes and padding the flooring to Ali's advantage.

"That is ridiculous and George knows it," Bobby Goodman said. "I went to the stadium to check the ring the day of the fight. So did Angelo Dundee (Ali's trainer). We found the ring improperly set up for the fight and spent around four hours correcting it.

"It's the same job I do on every fight with which I am associated. I did it in Kingston, Jamaica, when Foreman won the title, and in Caracas, when he beat Ken Norton. Foreman didn't complain then.

"The fact was the ropes were strung improperly. They were loose and a fight would have been impossible if we had not made corrections. It was necessary to cut the ropes, put them together again and hand tighten them.

"When the fight started, the ropes still were too loose and Angelo tightened them some more. There was nothing shady about it at all."

Goodman said the ring padding was the same as that used at Madison Square Garden ad in other big arenas. Having the commercial name of Everlast Enseflor, it was the same flooring used in previous Foreman fights.

"Actually, I would have thought the slow footing would have been to Foreman's advantage," Goodman said.

"Foreman complains of Ali's pros. I consider myself a pro, but not an Ali pro. I would have been happy if Dick Sadler (Foreman's manager and trainer) had come out himself and helped with the job."

WFL Playoff Battles Resume

By The Associated Press

The World Football League, nearing the end of its first chaotic season amidst a sea of red ink and red faces, has come up with perfect pairings for its games this week—the five teams that have clinched playoff berths against the five teams that are struggling for the other three playoff spots.

Already assured of making the eight-team playoffs in the 10-team league—a reduction of two since the start of the season—are divisional champions Memphis, Florida and Southern California plus Birmingham and Charlotte. Battling for the remainikg playoff berths ares Philadelphia, the Hawaiians, Chicago, Portland and Shreveport.

This week's schedule begins Wednesday night with Charlotte at Memphis, Philadelphia at Birmingham and Southern California at the Hawaiians. Thursday night, it will be Portland at Florida, and Chicago at Memphis in a nationally televised game.

Originally, the Portland-Florida game was scheduled for Wednesday night at Portland, but the date and site were changed at the insistence of the Blazers' new owners.

The Storm players, who had not been receiving their paychecks for about the past month, voted last Saturday not to practice and to boycott games until their salaries were brought up to date. But they changed their minds Monday after being given assurances they would be paid in full shortly.

The decision came after the WFL decided to move the game to Orlando at the insistence of the new owners of the Blazers who were ready to invest $3 million in the club, which also is in financial trouble.

"The plan will terminate in not only us being current in pay by the end of this week or early next week, but it also will benefit the entire league," said Sam Silas, Portland's player representative.

Details of the plan will be announced by Allan Miller, legal counsel for the player association, during the nationally televised Chicago-Memphis game.

On the field, Portland, winner of seven of its last 10 games following a woeful 0-7-1 start and now 7-10-1 over-all, will be banking on the passing of Pete Beathard and the running of Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson to beat the Blazers, who already have clinched the Eastern Division title with a 12-6 record. Florida has the league's leading rusher in Tommy Reamon.

The passing of John Huarte and the running of rookie J.J. Jennings have helped Memphis clinch the Central Diision crown with a 15-3 record. The Southmen will be facing a Chicago team that is 7-11 after nine straight losses following injuries to Virgil Carter, Mark Kollar and James Scott, the WFL's top passer, rusher and receiver, respectively.

Southern Cal, 13-5, the Western Division champion, will try and hold off the Hawaiians, 711, whose offense has been clicking since the acquisition of quarterback Randy Johnson. Birmingham, 13-5, likely will be keying on stopping the passing of Philadelphia's King Corcoran in its game against the Bell, 810. Charlotte, 10-8, will be without injured quarterback Tom Sherman for its game against Shreveport, 6-11-1.

Irish Pacing Defense

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame, which has been holding opponents to an average gain of only 179.4 yards per game, continued as the nation's top defensive football team, according to statistics released Tuesday by National Collegiate Sports Services.

Texas A&M is a distant second in total defense with an average of 204.3 yards against, while Oklahoma is third with 211.4.

Penn State proved most effective in defending against the rush, yielding 102.5 yards per game, compared with 105.6 for Michigan and 111.1 for Notre Dame.

South Carolina, Iowa and Furman are 1-2-3 in pass defense. South Carolina has given up only 61.9 yards per game and no touchdown passes so far this season. Iowa has held opponents to an average of 64.9 yards in the air and Furman 65.1.

Other defensive leaders are Ohio State in punting with 43.6 yards per punt and Yale in points scored against, a meager 4.7 per game.

Kennedy Rejects Love's Complaint

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy rejected Tuesday a grievance complaint filed by Bob Love in his contract dispute with the Chicago Bulls.

Love can appeal the verdict, either through his lawyer or the NBA Players Association, in which case it would go to binding arbitration with an outside observer making the final decision.

The veteran pro filed three grievances against the Bulls in an Oct. 26 hearing and all were rejected Tuesday by Kennedy.

The NBA head said Love first claimed he wasn't properly represented by counsl when he signed a Dec., 1972 contract with the club, but Kennedy pointed out the player "had been properly represented."

"Mr. Love then claimed that at various times Chicago agreed to renegotiate his contract but failed to do so," Kennedy said. "There was considerable contradictory testimony at the grievance hearing, but it was clear that Chicago, while indicating a willingness to listen to any demands Mr. Love or his agent might make, never agreed that such discussions would result in a new or modified contract."

Finally, Kennedy turned down a Love claim that Chicago had no right to fine him for missing practice or exhibition games prior to the 1973-74 and 74-75 seasons.

"I rejected this claim because Chicago has the right to levy such fines and withhold money to defray them under Paragraph Four of the Uniform Player Contract."

Kennedy did rule, however, that fines imposed prior to the start of the current season were excessive and ordered them reduced from $250 per missed practice and $500 for each exhibition AWOL be sliced to $100 and $200 respectively.

"I also direct that since Love is suspended without pay, fines imposed after the start of the 1974-75 season be reduced to $100 per missed practice and-or team meeting from the present fines imposed of $250."

Miller Ready For Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Senior fullback Robert Miller will be ready for Kansas' game against Colorado Saturday, Coach Don Fambrough announced late Tuesday.

The 5-foot-11, 202-pound co-captain was out of action for almost three full games, starting with an injury in the first offensive series against Nebraska. "It's really a big boost to have him back," Fambrough said, "not only because of his physical ability but because of the leadership he provides as well. His presence strengthens our inside running game considerably and this is something we've been lacking since he was hurt."

Starting defensive end Mike Lemon and offensive tackle Gordon Stockemer and second unit linebacker Dean Baird sat out of contact work Tuesday because of lingering injuries. Fambrough said he expected at least Lemon and Stockemer to be ready in time for Colorado. "By game time we should be in pretty good physical shape," he said.

Cast Removed From Jabbar

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had a cast removed Tuesday from his right hand, broken Oct. 5, but a Milwaukee Bucks' spokesman said the 7-foot-2 superstar may not be ready for fulltime duty until Nov. 16.

Dr. George Korkos, physician for the National Basketball Association team, said Abdul-Jabbar will undergo therapy, mainly whirlpool treatments and exercise, for five or six days to strengthen the hand.

Korkos said the hand remained swollen but that the fourth metacarpal bone had healed. Abdul-Jabbar broke the hand when he punched a backboard support in a fit of anger in a preseason exhibition and has not played since.

He is expected to begin light workouts with the Bucks late this week.

The Bucks, beaten by Boston in the NBA championship series last spring, have lost eight of their first nine games, including their last six in a row, one short of the team record. They are to play four more games before meeting Cleveland Nov. 16.

Record Profits For World Cup

ROME (AP) — Soccer's World Cup tournament in West Germany this year has produced a record profit of more than $20 million, the International Soccer Federation (FIFA) announced Tuesday.

Total expenses for the Cup, including taxes, costs for traveling and stay of the 16 teams, referees and officials was $7 million, said FIFA spokesman Rene Courte.

Total income amounted to $27.5 million, although the theater rights had not all been calculated yet, Courte said.

The profit from the 1970 World Cup in Mexico barely exceeded the $6 million mark, Courte said.

Borg Gains Second Round

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg, seeded No. 1 in his homeland for the $100,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament, breezed into the second round Tuesday with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Anand Amritraj of India.

The 18-year-old Swede broke Amritraj's service twice in each set and wrapped up the match in just 50 minutes although he said he was not in top form. Borg's next opponent will be Paul Gerken. Gerken, who has beaten Borg in both of their previous matches, ousted Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico 6-4, 6-1 and joined Arthur Ashe as first-round winners from the United States.

Ashe, the No. 4 seed who won the title in 1971, eliminated compatriot Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 7-6 after winning the tie-breaker 14-12.

U. S. victors in the second round included Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried. Dibbs beat Milan Holecek, the self-exiled Hungarian, 6-2, 7-5, and Gottfried defeated Sashi Menon of India 7-6, 7-6.

Erik van Dillen was eliminated in the first round. Manuel Orantes defeated the Californian 6-3, 6-4.

In other second-round matches, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, who leads Borg in the Grand Prix points standings, scored a 6-2, 6-0 triumph over Jasjit Singh of India; Jan Kodes, the No. 6 seed from Czechoslovakia, beat Karl Meiler of West Germany 6-7, 6-1, 6-1; Frew McMillan of South Africa beat Ray Keldie of Australia 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 and Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Jairo Velasco of Colombia 6-2, 3-6, 6-0.

Part-Time Students Called 'New Majority' In Higher Education

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Part-time students must be allowed to share eligibility with full-time students for money available for postsecondary education programs, according to Harold Glen Clark of Brigham Young University.

The American Council on Education (ACE) 1974 report on Financing of Higher Education for Adult Students, Clark said, indicates "a growing concern in the U.S." for plans to support part-time students, "the new majority in postsecondary education."

But there is one catch, the dean emeritus of Brigham Young's Continuing Education Department said: Proposals and new plans allowing grants, veteran benefits or loans, for example, "are not directed in the main toward the great student body" of part-timers, "but to the full-time student."

Part-time students are no longer the "foreigners" in post-high school education, Clark told about 85 participants from eight states attending the Region V National University Extension Association Conference in Lincoln.

According to the ACE report, he said, part-time students taking credit and non-credit courses in the U.S. in 1972 accounted for 57% of all students. The rate of increase for part-time students "has been 2.3 times faster than for full-time students" since 1969.

Clark called on educators to study the part-time student "and give immediate attention to more equitable treatment in financing the education of this new majority," and institutions must "strengthen their delivery systems for their part-time clientele."

The ACE report "found that part-time students on the whole are massively discriminated against in federal and state institutional aid programs, Social Security survivors' benefits, tuition rates and financial aid programs and income tax requirements," Clark said.

To illustrate, he said "only one state provides equal funding for part-time and full-time students in institutional aid formulas." And "only 12 of 23 states" in one study provide funds for off-campus credit students.

"Half of our four-year institutions of higher education charged higher tuition fees for part-time students, and 34% of all institutions denied student aid to part-time students completely," he said.

Clark recommended that eligibility criteria for federal, state and institutional aid should include students in all credit programs; and tuition charges in credit programs be equalized for part-time and full-time students.

He recommended aid for part-time and non-credit students in both on-campus and off-campus programs, and for part-time students in certificate or diploma non-degree programs.

"In all publicly funded student aid programs, eligibility should be approved as a right of all qualified students" Clark said, "and not as an institutional discretionary power."

Clark also recommended an incentive tax credit of 20% of the amount wage earners spend in a year, against their federal tax liabilities, regardless of whether the education programs relate to employment.

He urged that private sources "foot the bill" for professional and occupational continuing education, and that organizations consider establishing "continuing education as a requirement for advancement."

Clark said extension services can serve "a very identifiable need" in such areas as drug abuse by forming "public problem-solving programs."

Following up Clark's report, Steven B. Sample, University of Nebraska system vice president for academic affairs, said "practically all student aid, except tuition, is based on family wealth.

"I think we'll see an end to the family income test as a basis for student aid, along with the death of out-of-state tuition," he said. "These are legally defensible positions.

"I realize this could spell the demise of many student aid programs" and hamper other higher education financing plans, Sample said.

"However, it may encourage low tuition and low-interest loans as politically acceptable alternatives.

"If the lowering of tuition indeed becomes fact, then the implications for the part-time student are good," he said. In part, it will "hasten the equity called for" in the ACE report and in broadening the status of students, it "will weaken discrimination against part-time adult students."

"No matter what happens," Sample said, "in the short run, any changes" in financing higher education "will cost the institutions. If we can't look at parental income, we'll either lose students or be forced to increase amounts for aid."

"Similarly, part-time students can cost more money" because of increased administrative loads Sample said one solution is to establish a fixed fee per student, part-time or full-time, and add an amount of dollars per credit hour. "To me, this is equitable."

"Encouraging part-time students through fair and equitable treatment takes us even more quickly into uncharted political waters," Sample said, adding schools must serve that "exciting new market."

County Names Omahan As Fiscal Systems Analyst

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday named an Omaha man, Elmer Cheek, as their fiscal systems analyst.

The position is the second to be created recently by the commissioners. Cheek will join Wayne Hart, the county board's administrative assistant and personnel director. Yet to be filled is a third position, that of human services coordinator.

Cheek has had his own private accounting firm in Omaha for the past two years. He also has taught business courses at Nettleton Business College in Omaha.

Computerization

In his new position, which he will assume Nov. 18, Cheek will help computerize the county's budget and accounting procedures.

Cheek's annual salary will be $13,280.

In other action, the commissioners approved a contract with the City of Lincoln for purchasing services for the county.

The action came despite renewed opposition from County Surveyor Walter Hoppe, who told the commissioners that the contract is "not going to save a dime."

County Board Chairman Robert Colin, however, countered that the contract will result in savings because it will permit "volume buying. Commissioner Jan Gauger added that she feels the new contract will assure that private businesses have access to county business.

The contract does not bear a specific price tag, but county board members have indicated that the amount cannot exceed the $10,000 they have budgeted for the services for this year.

The commissioners had deferred action on the contract last week to make minor changes suggested by the county attorney's office.

The commissioners also accepted a bid from the Alexander and Alexander insurance brokerage firm to insure county property for the next three years with the Home Insurance Co.

The cost for three years of coverage is $49,212.

The next lowest bid was submitted by the Stuart brokerage firm with Aetna Life and Casualty Co. That bid was $49,396.

Boeing Has Strong Gains In Quarter

New York (AP)—Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., announced strong gains in sales and earnings during both the third quarter and the first nine months of 1974.

T.A. Wilson, Boeing's chairman, said the results reflected continued strong operating performance on major aircraft programs as well as lessened interest-rate expenses. He added, however, the company was saddled by inflationary pressures and material shortages.

Net income in the third quarter came to $17.2 million, or 81 cents a share on sales of $914 8 million. In the third quarter last year, net income totaled $12.2 million, or 57 cents a share on sales of $785.2 million.

In the first nine months of 1974 earnings totaled $53.2 million, or $2 51 a share, compared with $37 4 million or $1.73 a share a year ago. Sales amounted to $2 72 billion, compared with last year's $2.39 billion.

The company added that its unfilled order backlog as of Sept. 30 totaled $3.53 billion, up from $3.25 billion in the comparable period last year.

Board Paroles Three Women; One Refused

The State Parole Board Tuesday paroled three women, effective Nov. 8.

The three are:

— Shirley D Bonwell, Lancaster County, sentenced to 2-3 years imprisonment for grand larceny. She has served 1 year and eight months.

— Sandra K. Jenkins, Lancaster County, sentenced to 1-2 years for forgery. She has served 9 months.

— Linda E. Fisher, Douglas County, sentenced to 1-3 years for uttering a forged instrument. She has served 1 year.

The board refused to parole Mary McIntosh of Lincoln County who is serving 1-3 years for forgery.

Poster Child For Retarded To Start Drive

Scott Wells, newly-named poster child for the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens, will be in Lincoln Saturday for a coffee to kick off the annual Honey Sunday drive to raise money for The Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens (NebARC).

Scott, 7, is the son of Mr. and Mrs Bob Wells of Holdrege.

Hosting the coffee will be Mrs. J. James Exon, wife of Nebraska's governor and honorary Honey Sunday chairperson.

Honey Sunday is an annual fund-raising event for NebARC when volunteers sell jars of honey for NebARC.

Bogus Money Found In Car; Two Men Held

Omaha (AP) — More than $3,000 in counterfeit bills have been found in a car in which two men were arrested, after Lincoln police requested they be picked up in Omaha.

They were identified by police as Donald H. Kimble, 38, of Minneapolis and Timothy Blackwell, 27, of Glendive, Mont.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Thomas Thalken said the bogus money — in 50, 20 and 100 dollar bills — was found in the car by Secret Service agents after a search warrant had been issued.

Jump In Doctors' Fees Blamed On Duration Of Price Controls

Norfolk (UPI) — Dr. James H. Dunlap of Norfolk, Nebraska Medical Association president, said Tuesday price controls account for the substantial increases this year in physician fees.

Dunlap said, however, even with the fee increases reported in May, June and July of this year, which were above the Consumer Price Index increase for that period, fees have generally increased at a slower rate than the index.

The association president said in the three-year period from August 1971 through July of this year fees increased 16.1%, compared to 21.4% for the Consumer Price Index on all items.

In May, June and July, fees increased 4.4% while the cost of living index increased only 3% for the same period.

Dunlap said the reason for the situation was that physician fees were controlled for a longer period of time than most other sectors.

"As a result of being controlled longer, physicians fee schedules caused considerable problems," he contended.

"Physicians who experienced substantial increases in operating costs during the last three years were unable to pass along these costs in the form of increased fees," he said.

Thus, Dunlap said, when controls lapsed, physicians had to bring fees into line with costs, resulting in the May, June and July increases over and above the index increase.

However, he said, even with the recent increases, "We are pleased that the total history of physicians fee increases shows that they are at least 25% below the general cost of living index increase for the past three years."

Cooper Designated

Washington (AP)—President Ford designated Charles A., Cooper, assistant secretary of the treasury, to serve on the board of directors of the Overseas Private Investment Corp.

Danbury Serviceman Listed Killed In Action

Danbury — Major Larry Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Knight of Danbury, has been declared killed in action after being missing in action in Vietnam for the past eight years.

The Defense Department made the decision after a review of his disappearance.

Maj. Knight was one of three Danbury area servicemen who had been listed as missing in action.

The other two, still on the MIA list, are Daniel Thomas and Donovan Walter.

Special services for Maj. Knight, a U.S. Air Force pilot, will be held Sunday at the Danbury city park by a special honor team from Offutt Air Force Base.

During the ceremonies, Maj. Knight's medals and flag will be presented to his mother. His father is presently a patient at the Veterans Hospital in Grand Island.

Another service will be held in Massachusetts where the major's wife, Joan, and two children reside. In addition to his wife, children and parents, Maj. Knight is survived by a brother, Richard of Oregon, and a sister, Mrs. Alan Messinger of McCook.

A native of Red Willow County, Maj. Knight attended grade school in Danbury before moving to Oregon where he finished high school and attended college.

Bomber Gets Life

London (UPI) — A judge has sentenced former Women's Royal Army Corps member Judith Ward, 25, to life in prison for her part in the bombing of a bus which killed 12 persons last February.

Linemen Boost Adams

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

In the eight-man football ranks, it seems attention too often focuses on running backs who accumulate huge chunks of yardage.

Ken Cook, coach at No. 1-ranked Adams, doesn't subscribe to that theory, however. He's built winning football teams with solid line play.

Two of his best linemen have been offensive guard Dean Schoneweis (6-0, 190) and defensive nose guard Tony Rhoden (5-10, 185).

Both played exceptional games last week in Adams' 44-0 win over what's considered a good Lewiston team.

Schoneweis, according to Cook, produced one of his best blocking efforts of the season. He also was sharp in the win over Odell the week before.

In its last two outings, Adams has rushed for almost 1,000 yards.

Rhoden, Adams' defensive leader for the past two seasons, also delivered one of his best games against Lewiston. He finished with 13 unassisted tackles, eight assists and intercepted a pass.

Cook is hoping to get the same type of effort Wednesday night as his team takes aim at a perfect 10-0 season. Adams hosts ninth-ranked Barneston in the Homesteader Conference playoff.

Adams won the first matchup, 33-20, Oct. 11 at Adams. It was Barneston's only setback in an 8-1 season.

Bruce Cites NU's Humm

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State drilled for nearly two hours in the mud Tuesday ironing out game plans for Saturday's home finale against ninth-rated Nebraska.

"Dave Humm is as good a quarterback as there is in the country," said Coach Earle Bruce of the Nebraska signal-caller.

"He does a tremendous job of moving the team and putting points on the board."

Bruce said Humm's chief asset is his ability to read defenses "and then pick them apart." Bruce, who displayed at least four offensive sets against Oklahoma last week, also pointed to the Huskers' stellar defense.

"They have yielded only seven total points in the first three quarters of all their games," he noted.

Bruce said the Cyclone should be at full strength by Saturday. Offensive tackle Randy Young was expected to return to drills Wednesday after injuring both shoulders against Oklahoma.

Cyclone Strachan Fined $30 In Ames

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State University football star Mike Strachan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Tuesday to a charge of receiving stolen property. He was fined $30.

Strachan, 21, was charged late Monday with possession of stolen property under $20 after campus security potice reported discovering a stolen parking permit in his car. The charge, a misdemeanor, carries a maximum penalty of 30 days in jail or a $100 fine or both.

Class D

1—Fairmont (8-0)	6—Loomis (8-1)
2—Shickley (7-1)	7—Lyman (8-1)
3—Nelson (8-1)	8—Ponca (6-3)
4—Gurley (9-0)	9—Polk (5-4)
5—Medicine Valley (7-1)	10—Clarks (6-2)

Comment — Nelson and Loomis recorded Class D's most prestigious wins last week. Nelson bumped previously unbeaten Class C Alma, 12-7. Loomis measured Pleasanton (14-6), another previous Class C unbeaten. Medicine Valley, which dropped a 6-0 decision to strong Class C North Platte St. Pat's, faces another big challenge Friday at Class C's second-ranked Grant.

Eight-Man

1—Adams (9-0)	6—Giltner (9-0)
2—Farnam (8-0)	7—Cedar Bluffs (7-0)
3—East Butler (8-0)	8—Mullen (8-1)
4—Bartlett (8-0)	9—Barneston (8-1)
5—Wheatland (9-0)	10—Shelby (8-1)

Comment — Shelby gains top 10 berth for first time this season after 37-18 win over previously unbeaten Gresham. Arthur (9-0) is another top candidate. Top games this week are No. 9 Barneston at No. 1 Adams Wednesday night in Homesteader Conference playoff and No. 3 East Butler at No. 7 Cedar Bluffs Friday night.

'Let Big 10 Clubs Go To Other Bowls'

Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan coach Bo Schembechler is tired of the agreement which annually sends one Big Ten and one Pacific Eight team to the Rose Bowl and the rest home to the Wash Bowl.

Not that the coach of the second-rated Wolverines is preparing any alibis or laments for his team's Nov. 23 clash with top-rated Ohio State — he doesn't think that way.

But Schembechler believes the rise of the Big Ten, and it's further growth, depend on a change in the rule.

"There is a strong sentiment, not only at Michigan but throughout the Big Ten, for permitting other teams to go to other bowls," the Michigan coach said.

"The fear of losing the Rose Bowl pact is a lot of malarky," he said. "I don't think that's true any more.

"I'm not just concerned with the top two teams, either," he said, not specifically mentioning his own team and the one Woody Hayes coaches.

"A third place team with a 9-2 record should go," Schembechler said. "It would be a great boost for the programs of all the schools in our conference."

It is true that ever since Schembechler came to Michigan, for the 1969 season, the Wolverines and Buckeyes have won or shared the Big Ten title.

But the whole conference, Schembechler said, is on the rise and the days of titles and roses for only the Buckeyes and Wolves may be just about over.

The third place team in the big ten, Michigan State, is only a game and a half behind the co-leaders at this relatively late stage in the season and until at least after Saturday's game between the Spartans and Buckeyes, there is a possibility that someone other than Michigan or Ohio State could win or share the title for the first time since Indiana in 1967.

Big Ten teams also posted their best record against outside competition (16-13-1) in 10 years this season.

"Name me a better conference than ours from top to bottom," Schembechler said. "The offenses today are so good, we're having a hard time keeping teams off the board. The equalization of grants (in aid) has helped us, too. We've got some good football players in this league."

Most of the talent is at Ohio State and Michigan, but Schembechler said the other eight schools are catching up — too fast.

"They may be up and down, but they can be pretty good on occasion," he said.

Michigan faces one of them, Illinois, this Saturday.

Elephants Help Clear The Way

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What do you do when your circus truck jack-knifes and stalls on a road surrounding Candlestick Park's parking lot, stopping four lanes of drivers anxious to attend a football game?

You simply open the truck door, lead out two elephants and have them tow the truck into the proper position. And then you restart the motor, load the elephants and proceed.

Don Madeiros, 32, and Clark Craig, 29, did just that Monday night.

They said they became confused while driving the Vargas Circus truck from San Francisco to San Jose and got off Bayshore Freeway onto the road surrounding the parking lot.

Traffic headed for the San Francisco 49ers-Los Angeles Rams game was backed up to the freeway until Henry and Manny, the two 8,500-pound elephants, righted the truck.

Nebraska Gains In UPI Poll

Compiled From News Wires

Ohio State leaves no doubt about No. 1 but the rest of the top collegiate football teams in the nation underwent some reshuffling this week in the Associated Press and United Press International ratings released Tuesday.

Nebraska, after a 31-15 win over Colorado, moved up one spot in the UPI ratings to eighth but remained in the No. 9 spot in the AP listing.

Both Penn State and Florida went around the Huskers after wins over rated teams. Penn State toppled Maryland, 24-17, to move into UPI's sixth spot and to AP's seventh. Florida riddled Auburn, previously No. 5, 25-14, to move to 7th in the UPI poll and 6th in the AP poll.

Ohio State still holds a commanding lead in both polls, improving on a 99-point advantage over No. 2 Oklahoma in the AP listing to a 122-point edge after Oklahoma struggled in a 28-10 win over Iowa State. The Buckeyes had ruined Illinois, 49-7, last weekend.

Southern California dropped out of the top ten after a 15-15 tie with unrated California. The tie brought Cal into the AP's top 20 to 18th.

Notre Dame, despite a 14-6 battle with Navy, moved to No. 5 in the coaches' UPI ratings and is 8th in the AP list.

Oklahoma State made its entry to the top 20 in the AP poll with a 17th-place stand.

Marion Campbell
New Falcon Coach

Falcons Fire Van Brocklin

ATLANTA (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin was fired as general manager and coach of the Atlanta Falcons Tuesday and replaced as coach by Marion Campbell, the National Football League team's defensive coordinator.

Falcon owner Rankin Smith announced the action in a brief statement.

Van Brocklin was in the midst of one of his most frustrating seasons since becoming head coach of the Falcons after the third game of the 1968 season. The team, picked in some preseason estimates as a contender for the playoffs, has a 2-6 record.

The volatile Van Brocklin, a star quarterback during his playing days with the Los Angeles Rams and later the Philadelphia Eagles, has been under intense criticism from local fans and news media and Smith also had been criticized for failing to fire the coach, known as the Dutchman.

Local newspapers reported in Tuesday's editions that Smith was in Miami, where the Falcons suffered their worst defeat in three seasons—42-7 by the Dolphins on Sunday.

Smith's brief statement said: "Van Brocklin has been relieved of his duties as general manager and coach of the Atlanta Falcons. Marion Campbell has been appointed head coach. I haven't been hiding in Miami."

The strain began showing acutely on Van Brocklin Monday at his routine weekly news conference. When a newsman asked him if he was still a fighter, as he had insisted several weeks ago, the Dutchman challenged the writer to a fight.

Van Brocklin extended the invitation to about a dozen other writers, broadcasters and photographers in attendance, but pointed it specifically at Ron Hudspeth of The Atlanta Journal. No one accepted his challenge.

Van Brocklin had a brilliant 12-year NFL career that earned him a berth in pro football's Hall of Fame.

Florida Proves To Be More Than Darkhorse

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

The University of Florida went into the 1974 football season rated a darkhorse in the Southeastern Conference race and after eight games the Gators are more than a darkhorse.

They've got a chance to tie Alabama's perennial league leaders should they win their remaining SEC games and the Crimson Tide stumbles just once.

No one in Gainesville, Fla., where the Gator campus is located, or elsewhere for that matter, dares compare Florida with Alabama, which is going for its fourth consecutive league title.

But Florida had a schedule break this season, not being called on to play Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi. The Gators are 3-1 in the league, losing only to Vanderbilt. Alabama is 4-0.

Despite losing two outstanding offensive backs, Nat Moore and Vince Kendrick, and several fine defensive performers from last season, the Gators are stronger than last season when they won their last five regular season games to post a 7-4 record.

"We have a half dozen big backs who can run for us in the veer," said Coach Doug Dickey. Leader so far has been Tony Green, who is 5-10 and 180. He rushed for 530 yards in the first seven games.

Last Saturday, when the Gators knocked Auburn out of the undefeated ranks, the top ball carrier was fullback Jimmy DuBose, who ran for 143 yards through the middle of the Plainsmen defense.

Florida's strong point this fall appears to be in its offensive line, which averages 240 pounds from tackle to tackle. "We've got the most mature line of scrimmage since I've been here," Dickey said. This is his fifth season with the Gators.

"Our big problem has been replacing those key losses on defense," he added. As a result, the Gators rank sixth in total defense and tenth in passing defense in the SEC.

Dickey started with 40 lettermen, including 14 starters from last season. He had an excellent recruiting effort during the past winter, partially because cross-state rival Florida State has come upon hard times.

"Usually," said Dickey, "Florida State (0-11 last season) gets eight or nine of the better players here in the state that we would like to have. This year they got only two."

Maryland's Driesell Wary Of Prep Draft

The Charlotte News

College basketball teams with 6-foot-6 centers. Perhaps 3,000 people in the stands. No national television.

These are things Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell visualizes if the professional basketball leagues continue to sign star players before they have completed their college careers or, as Driesell has so painfully experienced in the celebrated case of Moses Malone, even before they enter college.

"Nobody else seems to be concerned about it," said Driesell, noted as one of the country's best collegiate recruiters, "But I am. Somebody like the athletic directors and conference commissioners and the NCAA had better get together with the pro owners and league commissioners and reach some kind of agreement, a compromise."

Driesell predicts that the signing by the Utah Stars of the 6-foot-11 Malone, a Petersburg, Va., high school star who had planned to enter Maryland, will lead other pro teams to go after the good big players right out of high school.

"I think there's real good chance a guy like Jabbar, Walton or Malone will go pro instead of going to college, unless he's really academically oriented," said Driesell. "Even so, Tom McMillen, who went on to become Rhodes Scholar at Maryland, wanted to sign at the end of his freshman year. He had gone to a Buffalo Braves summer camp and they spent a month convincing him to apply for a ruling as a hardship case. But he couldn't qualify as a hardship case.

"Buffalo was offering him a very, very poor contract."

Driesell said, "I can coach with 6-6 centers, but I don't know where the money's coming from if there are only 3,000 people in the stands and we don't have any national TV. That's what it'll come to if the pros keep getting the good players.

"You could run down the lists of pros today and find most of the guys who would have been All-American this season if they hadn't signed before completing college."

Driesell, one of the most successful coaches in America for more than a decade first at Davidson and now at Maryland, would streak through a herd of bulls in red underwear to land a good ball player, but he insists his advice to Malone was based on his concern for the youngster's future.

"I told Moses, my great friend, much as I love him, that he made a very bad mistake when he signed a pro contract. It's simply a business deal and you have to handle it that way.

"There has never been a player who didn't get more money for signing pro than he would have gotten if he had signed a year earlier. Bill Walton got $800,000 more after this senior year than he was offered after his junior year.

"In effect that means he earned $800,000 while completing his last year of college and not having that 80-game pro grind. And if anybody thinks it's not a grind, look at Wilt Chamberlain. Anybody would give him a million dollars to play this season, but he won't do it."

Driesell said he considers N. C. State forward David Thompson, national player of the year as a junior last season, "very, very smart" for waiting until after graduation this year to go pro.

"For one thing," said Driesell, "his education will mean a lot to him when he stops playing basketball, but I'm looking at it primarily from a financial standpoint. He'll just be worth more to the pros, so he's actually making money by going to N. C. State another season.

"Moses wanted to play pro ball real bad. I told him if he wanted to play that badly, he should just hold off for several months, play one season of college ball, make All-America—which he would have—and then negotiate with both leagues. He would have gotten twice, three times as much money as he got.

FOOTBALL

Kent Waldrep, a Texas Christian University player partially paralyzed in his team's game with Alabama Oct. 26, was listed in fair condition.

A knee injury suffered during a 17-14 defeat against Dallas probably will keep St. Louis running back Terry Metcalf out of action for a week.

Players for the Shreveport Steamers of the WFL, like their colleagues in Portland, have not been paid in two weeks.

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Dr. Frederick J. Wolfe Jr., 59, a former president of the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl athletic events.

Mississippi College has admitted using an ineligible football player and has forfeited two of its team's victories and a tie.

Reggie Lewis, an all-Coast tackle last year and now a nose guard for the Oregon Ducks, was suspended by Oregon coach Don Read for the remainder of the Pac-8 football season. Read said the action was for disciplinary reasons — that Lewis missed several meetings on Sunday and failed to attend practice on Monday.

BASKETBALL

The St. Louis Spirits signed free agent Mike Barr, a 6-3 guard, who averaged 7.4 points-per-game the last two seasons for the Virginia Squires before being traded to Memphis.

The Kentucky Colonels have placed guard Joe Hamilton on waivers and activated guard John Roche from the injured reserve list.

Ernie DiGregorio, a guard for the Buffalo Braves, underwent surgery for the removal of torn cartilage in his left knee.

Johnny Neumann, overweight and out-of-condition, is working out with the Indiana Pacers and may be offered a contract if he gets in shape.

OTHER SPORTS

The All-England Tennis Club was non-committal in the face of a threat by top women players to boycott Wimbledon. A letter had been received from Billie Jean King demanding the same prize money as the men.

The United States Auto Club figured that Indianapolis winner Johnny Rutherford's earnings for 1974 probably will top $375,000.

Danish cyclist Ole Ritter, pedaling against a light wind most of the way, failed Tuesday in his much heralded bid to establish a one-hour world's professional cycling record.

Jean-Claude Bouttier, former European middleweight champion and twice challenger for the world crown held by Carlos Monzon, will meet Gary Broughton in a 10-round match at New York City's Felt Forum on Nov. 11.

The World Championships of Tennis will increase its total prize and individual prize money for each tournament next year. The total prize will be $2 million compared with $1.6 million this season.

Top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia downed Japan's Jun Kuki, 6-4, 6-1, in the first round of the $50,000 Viceroy Tennis Classic in Hong Kong, and Ken Rosewall, second-seeded, downed Dick Dell, 6-2, 6-2.

Attorneys for the Chicago Cougars hockey team filed a $3 million damage suit against the village of Rosemont, charging that the suburb made "misrepresentations" in an agreement to build a $20 million multi-purpose arena to house the Cougars.

Think Big flashed past favorite Leilani in the final seconds of the Melbourne Cup horse race to win the $200,000 event in three minutes, 23.2 seconds on the two-mile Flemington track in Melbourne.

The Soviet Union and Chile agreed to play an exhibition soccer game in Spain to make up for the World Cup elimination match the Soviets refused to play in Santiago.

Kings Batter Jazz

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Nate Archibald scored 30 points and Jimmy Walker hit 25 to pace Kansas City-Omaha to a 115-97 National Basketball Association victory over New Orleans here Tuesday night.

The Kings, who snapped a two-game losing skid, had a 46-45 halftime lead. Archibald then scored 16 points in the third quarter to push the Kings ahead.

New Orleans, however, closed to 85-81 on a pair of free throws by Neal Walk with 8:33 remaining.

Ron Behagen, who added 20 for the Kings, hit a pair of free throws and Walker contributed two straight jumpers to break open the game and deal the Jazz their ninth straight loss without a victory.

Walk, appearing nearly recovered from an injury that held him out the first five games, hauled in 22 rebounds and scored 23 points for New Orleans.

Pete Maravich led with 26.

Behangen, who had only three rebounds in the first half, finished with 19 and teammate Sam Lacey grabbed 16.

Bruins Tie Buffalo, 2-2

BOSTON (UPI) — Johnny Bucyk's third goal of the season at 14:42 of the third period enabled the Boston Bruins to gain a 2-2 tie with the Buffalo Sabres Tuesday night.

The tie gave the Sabres their fifth game without a loss and kept them three points ahead of Boston in the NHL division four.

Crete's Parks Delivers When Needed

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Football coaches maintain that rushing yards can be a misleading individual statistic. What counts are the yards delivered when most needed.

Crete halfback Mike Parks delivers them. He proved that last week in a clutch situation and earns the Sunday Journal and Star prep Player of the Week award.

Class B's third-ranked Norris took a 14-8 lead over second-ranked Crete with 7:44 remaining in the fourth quarter last Friday.

Crete needed to cover 67 yards to bounce back. The Cardinals launched a 15-play scoring drive and accomplished the mission with 2:38 remaining.

Parks showed his value to produce clutch yards. He accounted for 60 of the 67 yards rushing against a defense obviously keying on him.

Mike Parks
Crete Halfback

The effort produced a 14-14 tie between the Class B powers as Parks finished the game with 149 yards rushing on a workman-like 32 carries.

"He's done the job for us all season," Crete coach Larry Frost says of Parks. "He did the same thing in the last minute and a half to help us tie York. It seems like when we need him the most, he runs with even more desire."

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Jeff Barta, Niobrara — Senior fullback rushed for 331 yards on 24 carries for four touchdowns against Verdigre. He also snared three passes for 47 yards and another TD. He has rushed for 1,725 yards and 18 TD's this season.

Steve Burson, Giltner — Rushed for 286 yards on 23 carries in unbeaten eight-man team's win over Milligan, bringing his season rushing total to 1,970 yards.

Dan Kling, Gordon — Senior rushed for 238 yards on 23 carries and scored two touchdowns and an extra point in easy win over Crawford.

Mark Stamps and Jack Gleason, Lexington — Former, a middle guard, was in on 20 tackles in Minutemen's decisive 30-8 upset win over previously unbeaten Ord. Latter, a halfback and safety, contributed 120 yards rushing on 24 carries and 16 tackles.

Brian Ubben, Raymond Central — Senior linebacker had five unassisted tackles, seven assists and two forced fumbles in Class C-rated team's narrow win over Bennington.

Dave Watters, Lincoln East — Second team junior quarterback came on in second quarter to hit 9 of 12 passes for 226 yards and three touchdowns to spur top-ranked Spartans to 34-7 win over Lincoln High.

Gary Armknecht, Johnson-Brock — Rushed for 123 yards on 18 carries, caught a 37-yard pass to set up a touchdown and led tacklers with 12 in upset win over Humboldt.

Russ Larsen, Mead — I-back rushed 29 times for 190 yards and two touchdowns to lead team to 26-20 win over Waterloo.

Tom Micek, Hastings St. Cecilia — Senior halfback accumulated 233 yards rushing on only 14 carries while scoring three touchdowns and reaching 1,000-yard mark in C-rated team's easy win over Weeping Water.

Dan Keyser, Arnold — Fullback rushed for 124 of team's 193 yards and scored two touchdowns as team rallied from 18-7 halftime deficit to post 19-18 win over Callaway. He also was in on 15 tackles at middle linebacker as team won Custer County championship for playoff berth in Loup Valley.

Doug Schmeckpeper, Bloomfield — Senior middle guard had 11 solo tackles and four assists to spark Class C team's 22-14 win over Class B Pierce. For the season, he has 116 unassisted tackles, 43 assisted stops, four fumble recoveries, two blocked punts and two blocked PAT's.

Mike Schenck, Mullen — In team's win over Halsey-Dunning, he scored four touchdowns on runs of 3, 9, and 44 yards and a 62-yard pass interception, kicked a field goal and extra point, hit 9 of 16 passes for 83 yards, recovered a fumble, intercepted a pass and made 10 tackles.

Tom Garay, Norris — Linebacker keyed Norris defense in 14-14 tie with Crete.

Scott Fischer, Grand Island — Rushed for 71 yards on 10 carries, scored a touchdown and caught a 13-yard pass to set up other TD in 12-0 win over Hastings.

Royal Refuses Comment

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal refused today to say whether he was misquoted recently on resentment at having to play Oklahoma "when they develop a monster team with illegal tactics."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said Monday he was upset over what he called several misquotations of himself by Sports Illustrated in an article about one news service's refusal to rank teams on probation, including Oklahoma.

Royal serves on the 12-member committee of the American Football Coaches Association that proposed last year that teams on NCAA probation for illegal recruiting should not be ranked.

Switzer said the quote attributed to Royal was a year old and he doubted its accuracy. "I've got to feel that if I have been misquoted, then he could have, too."

Weaver Fired At Villanova

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Jim Weaver, in his first year as football coach at Villanova University, was fired Tuesday only hours after he disclosed he would quit at the end of the season to go to Clarion State College.

Dr. Ted Aceto, the athletic director, announced the firing because "of a contractural conflict which interfered with his interests at Villanova."

Weaver, 29, who was an assistant to Joe Paterno at Penn State for six years, will be succeeded by Lou Ferry.

Pitt, Penn State On TV Thanksgiving

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt and Penn State will meet Thanksgiving Night at Three Rivers Stadium before a nationally televised audience, Pitt athletic director Casimir Myslinski announced Tuesday.

Myslinski said both teams will receive $244,000 from a contract with the American Broadcasting Company.

The Nittany Lions, ranked sixth this week in the UPI poll of college coaches, has appeared on television twice this season, nationally against Stanford in the opener, and regionally against Maryland last Saturday.

Pitt, ranked 14th and in the Top 20 this week for the first time since the beginning of the season, has not appeared on an ABC broadcast since 1965.

The schools will be meeting for the 74th time in a series dating back to 1893. Penn State's win last year evened the series at 35-35-3.

The game was moved from Pitt Stadium to provide sufficient lighting. Myslinski said 4,000 tickets remain on sale.

Anthony Joins 'Big Game' Charts

When Nebraska Freshman Monte Anthony rushed for 157 yards against Colorado as the Huskers posted a 31-15 victory last week, he joined some mighty big names as a double-century performer.

Since 1963 only six Husker runners have managed to post two or more games of 100-yards or more in a season. Jeff Kinney, the workhorse of the 1970-71 national championship era is the leader with three 100-plus days — 171 in the 1971 Game of the Century with Oklahoma, 127 against Oklahoma in 1969 and 116 against Iowa State in 1970.

The other Huskers who ran for 100 yards twice in a single season during the past 12 years are Harry Wilson, Joe Orduna, Ron Kirkland, Rudy Johnson and, of course, Anthony.

The Bellevue frosh first cracked the century mark with 111 yards against Northwestern as the Huskers won, 49-7. Then, pepped by a 55-yard sprint that helped the Huskers move 98 yards to post a 24-0 lead, the quick-stepping, hard-running rookie piled up 157 yards on 23 carries at Colorado.

Anthony's 157 yards ranks No. 4 on the 1963-1974 chart, trailing only NU record-holder Frank Solich's 204 (Air Force, 1965), Kinney's 171 (Oklahoma, 1971), and Wilson's 160 (Oklahoma, 1965).

The Bellevue Bomber's output against the Buffs also vaulted him into the No. 1 spot on the 1974 Husker rushing chart. He now has 453 yards and a 6.2 average for the season.

Despite his 157-yard day, Anthony says he was having trouble against the Buffs.

"I was really running better when they were just giving me the ball and letting me run," the studious (he's carrying 23 hours and making top grades) freshman observed after the game. "Now, I'm being taught to read defenses and I'm having some trouble."

Coach Tom Osborne will no doubt keep smiling if he continues to have the same kind of problems he had at Colorado.

Here's the Nebraska "Big Day" chart for the 1963-74 era:

Yards	Player	Opponent	Year
*204	Frank Solich	Air Force	1965
171	Jeff Kinney	Oklahoma	1971
160	Harry Wilson	Oklahoma	1965
157	Monte Anthony	Colorado	1974
147	Tony Davis	UCLA	1973
147	Ron Kirkland	Kansas	1965
145	Joe Orduna	Oklahoma State	1968
135	Joe Orduna	So. California	1970
129	Jeff Moran	Kansas State	1972
127	Jeff Kinney	Oklahoma	1969
127	Dick Davis	Oklahoma	1967
126	Rudy Johnson	Missouri	1963
123	Ron Kirkland	Oklahoma State	1965
120	Ben Gregory	Oklahoma State	1967
116	Jeff Kinney	Iowa State	1970
111	Monte Anthony	Northwestern	1974

Jump In Doctors' Fees Blamed On Duration Of Price Controls

Norfolk (UPI) — Dr. James H. Dunlap of Norfolk, Nebraska Medical Association president, said Tuesday price controls account for the substantial increases this year in physician fees.

Dunlap said, however, even with the fee increases reported in May, June and July of this year, which were above the Consumer Price Index increase for that period, fees have generally increased at a slower rate than the index.

The association president said in the three-year period from August 1971 through July of this year fees increased 16.1%, compared to 21.4% for the Consumer Price Index on all items.

In May, June and July, fees increased 4.4% while the cost of living index increased only 3% for the same period.

Dunlap said the reason for the situation was that physician fees were controlled for a longer period of time than most other sectors.

"As a result of being controlled longer, physicians fee schedules caused considerable problems," he contended.

"Physicians who experienced substantial increases in operating costs during the last three years were unable to pass along these costs in the form of increased fees," he said.

Thus, Dunlap said, when controls lapsed, physicians had to bring fees into line with costs, resulting in the May, June and July increases over and above the index increase.

However, he said, even with the recent increases, "We are pleased that the total history of physicians fee increases shows that they are at least 25% below the general cost of living index increase for the past three years."

Cooper Designated

Washington (AP)—President Ford designated Charles A. Cooper, assistant secretary of the treasury, to serve on the board of directors of the Overseas Private Investment Corp.

UNL To Host Dorms Confab

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln will host an annual regional conference of the national Association of College and University Housing Officers Thursday and Friday at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel.

Residence hall government, food service, legal issues, women's and other minorities' programs will be discussed by representatives from eight midwestern states and Manitoba.

Chet Peters of Kansas State University will discuss "creativity" in a Thursday evening banquet.

Best Singers Picked At Wayne

Twenty-nine contestants took part in the third annual singing contest at Wayne State College, conducted by the National Association of Teachers of Singing. First place winners were, back row, from left, Delene Hays, soprano from Midland College, and Vaughn Fritts, bass from the University of Nebraska; front row, Dale Ganz, bass from University of Nebraska and Charlotte Brown soprano from Kearney State College.

Danbury Serviceman Listed Killed In Action

Danbury — Major Larry Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Knight of Danbury, has been declared killed in action after being missing in action in Vietnam for the past eight years.

The Defense Department made the decision after a review of his disappearance.

Maj. Knight was one of three Danbury area servicemen who had been listed as missing in action.

The other two, still on the MIA list, are Daniel Thomas and Donovan Walter.

Special services for Maj. Knight, a U.S. Air Force pilot, will be held Sunday at the Danbury city park by a special honor team from Offutt Air Force Base.

During the ceremonies, Maj. Knight's medals and flag will be presented to his mother. His father is presently a patient at the Veterans Hospital in Grand Island.

Another service will be held in Massachusetts where the major's wife, Joan, and two children reside. In addition to his wife, children and parents, Maj. Knight is survived by a brother, Richard of Oregon, and a sister, Mrs. Alan Messinger of McCook.

A native of Red Willow County, Maj. Knight attended grade school in Danbury before moving to Oregon where he finished high school and attended college.

Bomber Gets Life

London (UPI) — A judge has sentenced former Women's Royal Army Corps member Judith Ward, 25, to life in prison for her part in the bombing of a bus which killed 12 persons last February.

Oakland Heads AL All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (UPI) — As if they needed further proof of their superiority, the Oakland A's have named four players to the 1974 United Press International American League AllStar squad.

The A's, winners of three consecutive World Series, placed shortstop Bert Campaneris, outfielders Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson and pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter on the squad which was selected by sports writers and correspondents from the league's 12 cities.

No other team had more than two players selected to the squad. Texas, Detroit and Baltimore each placed two while Chicago and Minnesota named one each.

Outfielder Jeff Burroughs and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins were chosen from the Texas Rangers, catcher Bill Freehan and relief pitcher John Hiller were named from the Detroit Tigers and third baseman Brooks Robinson and designated hitter Tommy Davis were selected from the Baltimore Orioles.

Rounding out the team were first baseman Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox and second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins.

Allen, although he "retired" before the season ended, was an easy winner in the voting for first base. The controversial slugger grabbed 13 of the 17 votes cast for the position, even though he skipped the last three weeks of the campaign. Allen batted .301, led the league with 32 home runs and drove in 88 runs.

Carew also had no trouble winning the race for second base. Carew, who led the majors with a .364 average, received 16 votes while Campaneris, who enjoyed his best year in the majors, won the balloting for shortstop over Texas' Toby Harrah by a vote of 11-6. Campaneris hit .290 while Harrah hit .260 with 21 homers and 74 rbi's.

The closest balloting was in the race for third base where the 37-year-old Robinson edged Oakland's Sal Bando by two votes, nine to seven. Robinson enjoyed his best year at the plate by hitting .288. Bando hit only .243 but belted 22 homers and drove in 103 runs.

Burroughs was the top vote-getter among the outfielders with 15 votes. The 23-year-old slugger led the league in runs batted in with 118 and also hit 25 home runs and batted .301.

Rudi and Jackson each collected 14 votes. Rudi batted .293, hit 22 homers and drove in 99 runs while Jackson batted .289 with 29 homers and 93 rbi's.

Freehan, who made a dramatic comeback, beat out New York's Thurman Munson in the voting for catcher. Freehan, enjoying his best season since 1971, hit .296 with 18 homers and 60 rbi's and received eight votes to four for Munson, who batted .261 with 13 homers and 60 rbi's.

Davis was an easy winner in the voting for designated hitter. The 35-year-old veteran collected nine votes to beat out Kansas City's Hal McRae, who was second with three. Davis hit .289 and drove in 84 runs while helping the Orioles to the AL East Division title.

In the balloting for pitchers each voter was asked to select two starters and one reliever. Hunter, Jenkins and Hiller easily emerged as the top vote-getters. Hunter, the AL Cy Young Award winner, received 16 votes and Jenkins collected 14 while Hiller led the relievers with seven votes.

Hunter posted a 25-12 record with a 2.49 earned run average while Jenkins was also 25-12 with a 2.83 era. Hiller posted a 17-14 record with a 2.64 era.

McBride, Gross Top Rookies

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielders Bake McBride of the St. Louis Cardinals and Greg Gross of the Houston Astros and first baseman Mike Hargrove of the Texas Rangers were the leading vote getters on the 1974 Major League Rookie All-Star Team, it was announced Tuesday.

McBride topped the balloting, recieving 500 of the 574 ballots cast by maor league players, managers and coaches. Gross collected 490 votes and Hargrove garnered 472.

Others selected to the team were second baseman Larry Milbourne of Houston, shortstop Bucky Dent of the Chicago White Sox, third baseman Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs, outfielder Claudell Washington of the Oakland A's, catcher Barry Foote of the Montreal Expos, left-handed pitcher Frank Tanana of the California Angels and right-handed pitcher John D'Acquisto of the San Francisco Giants.

The balloting was conducted by the Topps Chewing Gum Co.

Foreman's Alibis Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Goodman said George Foreman lost his title to Muhammad Ali last week on the same type of ring flooring used in his victories over Joe Frazier and Ken Norton.

"I am surprised to read that George is trying to use the ring as an alibi for his defeat," Goodman, who with his father handled press relations and other details for the promoters, added Tuesday. "It was a case of George losing to a superior fighter on that particular evening. The ring had nothing to do with it."

Goodman is the son of Murray Goodman of Goodman Associates, which has had a vital role in many title fights.

Foreman charged in Paris that he was beaten because "Ali's pros" tampered with the ring, loosening the ropes and padding the flooring to Ali's advantage.

"That is ridiculous and George knows it," Bobby Goodman said. "I went to the stadium to check the ring the day of the fight. So did Angelo Dundee (Ali's trainer). We found the ring improperly set up for the fight and spent around four hours correcting it.

"It's the same job I do on every fight with which I am associated. I did it in Kingston, Jamaica, when Foreman won the title, and in Caracas, when he beat Ken Norton. Foreman didn't complain then.

"The fact was the ropes were strung improperly. They were loose and a fight would have been impossible if we had not made corrections. It was necessary to cut the ropes, put them together again and hand tighten them.

"When the fight started, the ropes still were too loose and Angelo tightened them some more. There was nothing shady about it at all."

Goodman said the ring padding was the same as that used at Madison Square Garden ad in other big arenas. Having the commercial name of Everlast Enseflor, it was the same flooring used in previous Foreman fights.

"Actually, I would have thought the slow footing would have been to Foreman's advantage," Goodman said.

"Foreman complains of Ali's pros. I consider myself a pro, but not an Ali pro. I would have been happy if Dick Sadler (Foreman's manager and trainer) had come out himself and helped with the job."

Record Profits For World Cup

ROME (AP) — Soccer's World Cup tournament in West Germany this year has produced a record profit of more than $20 million, the International Soccer Federation (FIFA) announced Tuesday.

Total expenses for the Cup, including taxes, costs for traveling and stay of the 16 teams, referees and officials was $7 million, said FIFA spokesman Rene Courte.

Total income amounted to $27.5 million, although the theater rights had not all been calculated yet, Courte said.

The profit from the 1970 World Cup in Mexico barely exceeded the $6 million mark, Courte said.

WFL Playoff Battles Resume

By The Associated Press

The World Football League, nearing the end of its first chaotic season amidst a sea of red ink and red faces, has come up with perfect pairings for its games this week—the five teams that have clinched playoff berths against the five teams that are struggling for the other three playoff spots.

Already assured of making the eight-team playoffs in the 10-team league—a reduction of two since the start of the season—are divisional champions Memphis, Florida and Southern California plus Birmingham and Charlotte. Battling for the remainukg playoff berths ares Philadelphia, the Hawaiians, Chicago, Portland and Shreveport.

This week's schedule begins Wednesday night with Charlotte at Memphis, Philadelphia at Birmingham and Southern California at the Hawaiians. Thursday night, it will be Portland at Florida, and Chicago at Memphis in a nationally televised game.

Originally, the Portland-Florida game was scheduled for Wednesday night at Portland, but the date and site were changed at the insistence of the Blazers' new owners.

The Storm players, who had not been receiving their paychecks for about the past month, voted last Saturday not to practice and to boycott games until their salaries were brought up to date. But they changed their minds Monday after being given assurances they would be paid in full shortly.

The decision came after the WFL decided to move the game to Orlando at the insistence of the new owners of the Blazers who were ready to invest $3 million in the club, which also is in financial trouble.

"The plan will terminate in not only us being current in pay by the end of this week or early next week, but it also will benefit the entire league," said Sam Silas, Portland's player representative

Details of the plan will be announced by Allan Miller, legal counsel for the player association, during the nationally televised Chicago-Memphis game.

On the field, Portland, winner of seven of its last 10 games following a woeful 0-7-1 start and now 7-10-1 over-all, will be banking on the passing of Pete Beathard and the running of Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson to beat the Blazers, who already have clinched the Eastern Division title with a 12-6 record. Florida has the league's leading rusher in Tommy Reamon.

The passing of John Huarte and the running of rookie J.J. Jennings have helped Memphis clinch the Central Dision crown with a 15-3 record. The Southmen will be facing a Chicago team that is 7-11 after nine straight losses following injuries to Virgil Carter, Mark Kollar and James Scott, the WFL's top passer, rusher and receiver, respectively.

Southern Cal, 13-5, the Western Division champion, will try and hold off the Hawaiians, 711, whose offense has been clicking since the acquisition of quarterback Randy Johnson. Birmingham, 13-5, likely will be keying on stopping the passing of Philadelphia's King Corcoran in its game against the Bell, 810. Charlotte, 10-8, will be without injured quarterback Tom Sherman for its game against Shreveport, 6-11-1.

Irish Pacing Defense

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame, which has been holding opponents to an average gain of only 179.4 yards per game, continued as the nation's top defensive football team, according to statistics released Tuesday by National Collegiate Sports Services.

Texas A&M is a distant second in total defense with an average of 204.3 yards against, while Oklahoma is third with 211.4.

Penn State proved most effective in defending against the rush, yielding 102.5 yards per game, compared with 105.6 for Michigan and 111.1 for Notre Dame.

South Carolina, Iowa and Furman are 1-2-3 in pass defense. South Carolina has given up only 61.9 yards per game and no touchdown passes so far this season. Iowa has held opponents to an average of 64.9 yards in the air and Furman 65.1.

Other defensive leaders are Ohio State in punting with 43.6 yards per punt and Yale in points scored against, a meager 4.7 per game.

Kennedy Rejects Love's Complaint

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy rejected Tuesday a grievance complaint filed by Bob Love in his contract dispute with the Chicago Bulls.

Love can appeal the verdict, either through his lawyer or the NBA Players Association, in which case it would go to binding arbitration with an outside observer making the final decision.

The veteran pro filed three grievances against the Bulls in an Oct. 26 hearing and all were rejected Tuesday by Kennedy.

The NBA head said Love first claimed he wasn't properly represented by counsl when he signed a Dec. 1972 contract with the club, but Kennedy pointed out the player "had been properly represented."

"Mr. Love then claimed that at various times Chicago agreed to renegotiate his contract but failed to do so," Kennedy said.

"There was considerable contradictory testimony at the grievance hearing, but it was clear that Chicago, while indicating a willingness to listen to any demands Mr Love or his agent might make, never agreed that such discussions would result in a new or modified contract."

Finally, Kennedy turned down a Love claim that Chicago had no right to fine him for missing practice or exhibition games prior to the 1973-74 and 74-75 seasons.

"I rejected this claim because Chicago has the right to levy such fines and withhold money to defray them under Paragraph Four of the Uniform Player Contract."

Kennedy did rule, however, that fines imposed prior to the start of the current season were excessive and ordered them reduced from $250 per missed practice and $500 for each exhibition AWOL be sliced to $100 and $200 respectively.

"I also direct that since Love is suspended without pay, fines imposed after the start of the 1974-75 season be reduced to $100 per missed practice and-or team meeting from the present fines imposed of $250."

Miller Ready For Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Senior fullback Robert Miller will be ready for Kansas' game against Colorado Saturday, Coach Don Fambrough announced late Tuesday.

The 5-foot-11, 202-pound co-captain was out of action for almost three full games, starting with an injury in the first offensive series against Nebraska. "It's really a big boost to have him back," Fambrough said, "not only because of his physical ability but because of the leadership he provides as well. His presence strengthens our inside running game considerably and this is something we've been lacking since he was hurt."

Starting defensive end Mike Lemon and offensive tackle Gordon Stockemer and second unit linebacker Dean Baird sat out of contact work Tuesday because of lingering injuries. Fambrough said he expected at least Lemon and Stockemer to be ready in time for Colorado. "By game time we should be in pretty good physical shape," he said.

Cast Removed From Jabbar

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had a cast removed Tuesday from his right hand, broken Oct. 5, but a Milwaukee Bucks' spokesman said the 7-foot-2 superstar may not be ready for fulltime duty until Nov. 16.

Dr. George Korkos, physician for the National Basketball Association team, said Abdul-Jabbar will undergo therapy, mainly whirlpool treatments and exercise, for five or six days to strengthen the hand.

Korkos said the hand remained swollen but that the fourth metacarpal bone had healed Abdul-Jabbar broke the hand when he punched a backboard support in a fit of anger in a preseason exhibition and has not played since.

He is expected to begin light workouts with the Bucks late this week.

The Bucks, beaten by Boston in the NBA championship series last spring, have lost eight of their first nine games, including their last six in a row, one short of the team record. They are to play four more games before meeting Cleveland Nov. 16.

Borg Gains Second Round

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg, seeded No. 1 in his homeland for the $100,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament, breezed into the second round Tuesday with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Anand Amritraj of India.

The 18-year-old Swede broke Amritraj's service twice in each set and wrapped up the match in just 50 minutes although he said he was not in top form. Borg's next opponent will be Paul Gerken. Gerken, who has beaten Borg in both of their previous matches, ousted Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico 6-4, 6-1 and joined Arthur Ashe as first-round winners from the United States.

Ashe, the No. 4 seed who won the title in 1971, eliminated compatriot Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 7-6 after winning the tie-breaker 14-12.

U. S. victors in the second round included Eddie Dibbs and Brian Gottfried. Dibbs beat Milan Holecek, the self-exiled Hungarian, 6-2, 7-5, and Gottfried defeated Sashi Menon of India 7-6, 7-6.

Erik van Dillen was eliminated in the first round. Manuel Orantes defeated the Californian 6-3, 6-4.

In other second-round matches, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, who leads Borg in the Grand Prix points standings, scored a 6-2, 6-0 triumph over Jasjit Singh of India; Jan Kodes, the No. 6 seed from Czechoslovakia, beat Karl Meiler of West Germany 6-7, 6-1, 6-1; Frew McMillan of South Africa beat Ray Keldie of Australia 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 and Jaime Fillol of Chile beat Jairo Velasco of Colombia 6-2, 3-6, 6-0.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 11-6

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 11-6

BATTERIES INSTALLED FREE

WARDS BATTERY PROTECTION PLAN

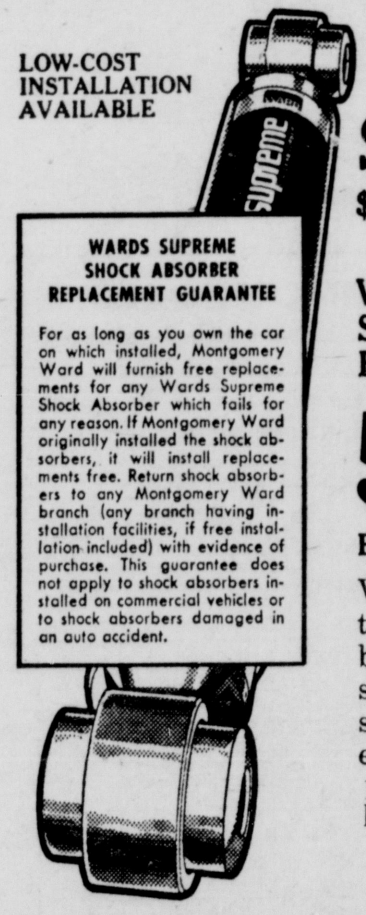

Montgomery Ward will replace this battery at no cost to the original owner if it fails to accept and hold a charge in non-commercial passenger car use during the Free Replacement Period shown:

TOTAL GUARANTEE PERIOD: 60 48 42 36 24 18 Mos.
FREE REPLACEMENT PERIOD: 24 16 12 9 6 3 Mos.

After this period, to the end of the guarantee period, Montgomery Ward will replace the battery, charging only a pro-rated amount for the time since purchase, based on the current regular selling price less trade-in. Batteries in commercial use are guaranteed on a similar basis for half of the specified periods. Commercial use is defined as use in any vehicle for other than family or personal use.

For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

LOW-COST INSTALLATION AVAILABLE

WARDS SUPREME SHOCK ABSORBER REPLACEMENT GUARANTEE

For as long as you own the car on which installed, Montgomery Ward will furnish free replacements for any Wards Supreme Shock Absorber which fails for any reason. If Montgomery Ward originally installed the shock absorbers, it will install replacements free. Return shock absorbers to any Montgomery Ward branch (any branch having installation facilities, if free installation included) with evidence of purchase. This guarantee does not apply to shock absorbers installed on commercial vehicles or to shock absorbers damaged in an auto accident.

WINTER PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car winter tires for a specified number of months from the time of purchase, when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire becomes unserviceable during this time because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32" inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of the guarantee period, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining portion of the guarantee period, replace it for a pro-rata charge based on months of ownership.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guarantee period.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guarantee period based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Winter passenger tires used on taxicabs and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in material and workmanship only.
